In Newton Centre the weeds were taller than the bushes. In Auburndale they're almost taller than the cars. A member of the Auburndale Garden Club suggested this "senic" spot at the intersection of Grove Street and Central Avenue right over the bridge from Auburndale Square. She went on to say that the garden club has transformed the median strips farther up Central Avenue by planting perennials. Travelers down Central Avenue can take note of the bright, well cared for flowery spots. They make a telling contrast to this triangle of land. (Lupo Photo)

Reorganization gets tentative okay

The city administration's plan for reorganizing four operating departments in city government got good reviews this week at its first full-scale presentation.

No strong opposition was voiced by any of the more than a dozen aldermen who attended the briefing session, although there were some points of disagreement.

In essence the plan restructures the duties and functions of the Recreation Department, Public Works Department, and Public Buildings Department and adds to the business of the Purchasing Department.

There will be some problems with Civil Service regulations, and according to Board of Aldermen President Eliot Cohen 28 City ordinances will have to be changed or created to implement the reorganization.

All new or revised ordinances have to be drafted in the appropriate committees of the Board of Aldermen, approved for legality by the Law Department, and passed by the full Board. The entire procedure for one ordinance has often taken more than six months.

The major changes to be brought about by reorganization will affect the Public Works Department, which as the largest employer in the city government will also incure the most personnel problems.

The new Public Works Department will gather into its seven new divisions functions previously carried out by the Recreation and Buildings Departments when they are related to maintenance of ground and facilities.

To help run the new Department of Public Works, two high-level jobs will be added, those of deputy commissioner of public works and director of parks and grounds.

Maintenance of parks and grounds and recreation facilities has come under increasing criticism recently.

Consultant Stephen Andrews, of Planalysis, Inc., a Washington, D.C., firm that has helped on the reorganization plan, commented that the Department of Public Works has been weak in budget, costing procedures, and work control and coordination.

The consolidation of the Public Works and Buildings Departments should improve these procedures, he said.

A minor rearrangement caused almost as much comment as some of the large issues. As proposed, the School Board modifies transportation policy

The Newton School Committee made several modifications of its transportation poolcy this week after receiving a legal opinion from a Boston law firm.

The School Committee contracted with the firm of Moulton, Looney, Mazzone, Falk, and Markham several weeks ago to get opinions on its transportation obligations to private and public school students.

The opinion generally stated that the School Committee is required to make the same transportation available to Newton private school students that is available to public school students.

Specifically, the opinion said that the School Committee is not required to provide transportation for private school students going to schools outside of Newton. The rationale for this opinion appeared to be that public school students are generally not furnished transportation to schools outside the city, except to state vocational schools.

In all, the legal opinion responded to seven questions concerning transportation. After Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink summarized the responses, School Committee member Dorothy Reichard said that the School Committee should reconsider its policy of busing secondary school students who board a bus a mile-and-one-quarter or more from their school. She noted that Newton is reimbursed only for bus travel of a mile-and-a-half and up.

Mrs. Reichard moved that the School Committee adopt a policy as of September, 1974, that transportation be made available to all secondary students, public and private, who board buses one-and-one-half miles and beyond from the school they are entitled to attend. Also, that transportation be made available for all elementary students, public and private, to the school they are entitled to attend, on the basis of safety only. The motion was approved, 7-0-1.

The legal opinion had also responded to the question of whether the School Committee is obliged to transport public school students who, under open enrollment, attend schools not in their district.

The opinion appeared to say that the School Committee is not obliged to provide transportation unless a student is specifically being transferred from a crowded school to an underenrolled school.

Fink explained that the present written policy of the School Department is to allow students to transfer from crowded schools to lett crowded schools. In actuality, however, he said, students are allowed to transfer to any school in which there is space available. No transportation is provided.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell moved that the concept of transferring students from "crowded schools" be stricken from the School Committee policy. Mandell said that "his means we're allowing transfers on a permissive basis." He added that this "removes the requirement of transportation." Mandell's motion was accepted unanimously.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal expressed concern that not providing transportation for public school transfer students would be denying them a right which will be granted to private school students.

Under Mrs. Reichard's motion, a Newton Catholic student living near Newton South would presumably be provided transportation, while present policy denies transportation to a public school student living in the same neighborhood who attends Newton North under open enrollment.

Regal asked that the policy denying transportation to public school transfer students be eliminated. He said that transportation of such students would not

Newton misses July EPA parking deadline

Few employers, including the City of Newton, have submitted "action plans" for the reduction of parking spaces to the Environmental Protection Agency by the July 31 deadline.

On July 30 Planning Director Charles Thomas said that Mayor Theodore Mann has sent memos to all heads of departments that employ more than 50 people, asking for compliance plans to reduce employee parking by 25 per cent according to EPA regulations.

Thomas said the city will send this week to the EPA a "notice of intent" to comply with the regulations.

EPA regulations call for an "employer action plan." The action plan spells out the number of employee spaces available on Oct. 15, 1973, the number to be eliminated, and the resulting ratio of parking spaces to employees.

Other information on the plan that was required by July 31 was what if any effort has been made by the city, including the School Department, and by all other employers of more than 50 people, to institute a carpool program, and what if any efforts the city has made to negotiate with existing mass transit systems to improve scheduling and routing to increase service to the employment facilities.

Another step called for is the possible use of company-owned or city-owned passenger vehicles by employees who agree to transport two or more fellow employees to and from work.

EPA Public Information Officer Paul Keough said this week that the agency will accept a delay of "about a month" in the submission of action plans, provided the EPA feels a "good-faith effort" has been made. Thomas said he had been told the city could submit its action plan around Sept. 15.

By Sept. 30 the city must submit plans to the EPA to prevent spillover from employees to visitor parking lots and the street and from teacher parking lots at schools to visitor and student parking lots and the street, and must submit plans on how to prevent business spillover from employee lots to the street.

EPA regulations for municipal officials say that all employees shall be issued stickers so that municipal authorities can identify employees' cars.

On Tuesday of this week (one day before the deadline), Thomas said only about eight businesses had submitted plans to the Planning Department. Businesses' action plans are to be sent to the Planning Department for review and approval.

The facilities of the city government that employ more than 50 people in any one location are the Fire and Police Departments; the main library; the Crafts Street, Elliot Street, and Auburndale yards of the Street Department; the Water Department headquarters; the two senior and five junior high schools; the School Department administration building; and City Hall.

There is apparently no inventory of businesses according to number of employees. The Planning Department does not have such a grouping, and inquiries at the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce did not turn up a listing by number of employees.

According to Chamber Executive Vice-President Louis Songer, there are probably 100 businesses in Newton that will be affected by the EPA parking regulation.

Violation of the EPA laws can be punished by up to a $25,000 fine.

Store delays razing

Cumberland Farms has successfully delayed and possibly killed an order of the Board of Aldermen to raze its former Auburndale store at Prairie and Auburndale Avenues.

A representative of a real estate company owned by Cumberland Farms said last week at a special meeting of the Board that Cumberland was selling the property. The meeting was called for the purpose of appropriating money to have the city raze the building, since Cumberland Farms had refused to obey the order to do so.

The Cumberland Farms representative assured the aldermen that the firm would secure the building to the Summer theater bridges gap between cultural seasons

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Two Newton theater groups are trying an experiment this month which may have repercussions on the city's cultural life for years to come.

Both a group sponsored by the Recreation Department and a new organization called the Ward Street Players are planning productions for the next two weeks. The community's response to their efforts will largely determine whether future preductions will follow.

Bruce Ward and Diane Rothauser rehearse a dance scene in "Fiddler on the Roof." They play Perchick and Hodel in the well-known musical. (Lupo Photo)

The Recreation Department will present "Fiddler on the Roff" on Aug. 7, 8, and 9 at Newton North High School, while the Ward Street Players have slated Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn" for Aug. 12, 13, 14, and 15 at Temple Emanuel, Newton.

Co-director Gary Godd says that "Fiddler" is "pretty much the first all-Newton production" attempted. It involves between 125 and 150 people from all over the city.

Good called the "Fiddler" production an example of the Recreation Department's "widening view of recreation." Auditions were held in the middle of June and rehearsals have been going on for about five weeks.

"I don't know how the public weill react," Godd commented. "We have nothing in the past to guage by."

Good said that he would like to see summer productions become an annual event, but a "big factor will be how it draws."

Good noted that a benefit of the production is that "kids see different kinds of people working together." He reported that there are some kids with "Fiddler" who have never been involved with a show.

Good pointed out that a summer production allows some kids to get away from the peer pressure experienced during the school year, while other kids joined the show as a result of coming with friends.

"Fiddler" will be performed with a full orchestra. After auditions, Good said that he "put some kids in there who might not be the best musicians, but who are going to learn a lot from older people." People involved in the production range from junior high to college age.

Godd said that "Fiddler" is "my favorite show." He has seen about 35 "Fiddler" productions. He called it a play about "tradition vs. new ideas."

Good remarked that a tribute to "Fiddler's" universality is that it has played in dozens of courtries with native casts. He related a story about a Japanese production which was being overseen by an American director.

Good said that a Japanese member of the audience came up to the director after a show and asked if the play was written in America. When the director replied that it was, the man expressed surprise, commenting that "its just so Japanese."

Michael Zolli of the Newton North art department is the set designer for "Fiddler." Good said that the "whole set is essentially in purple," and that a "fairy tale, fanciful effect is created." He remarked that miraculous things are done with lighting.

Good reported that nothing was budgeted for "Fiddler" costumes. He said that "the kids put together their own costumes with the help of Marci Armsby, a former Broadway costumer.

Tevya will be played by Frank Aronson, a senior in high school next year. Aronson tells of starting his acting career in ninth grade on crutches in "Damn Yankees."

"Someone said 'break a leg,' and I did," Aronson commented.

Ticket information or phone reservations for "Fiddler" may be gained by calling 969-9810, ext. 348, or 969-3171. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students of high school age and below. The Newton North auditorium, where the play will be performed on three consecutive nights, has a seating capacity of 700.

The Ward Street Players were organized this summer by Andrew L. Golov, a 1969 graduate of Newton South, and currently a fine arts student at Boston University.

Golov, who acted and directed at South, said that "the same 25-30 kids did all the shows at Newton South," and he "wanted to get people together again."

Candidates

Mouthful

The scene is the spaghetti dinner held last Friday at American Legion Post No. 440 for Congressman Robert F. Drinan, Democratic candidate for reelection. Drinan was held up in Washington by the late session of the House Judiciary Committee but did address the dinner via telephone. "Along with impeachment," he told diners, "the severe economic problems facing those of us in the Fourth District and across the nation are of great concern of this Congress."

WILLIAM P. MATTHEWS

"I am saddened that the speaker of the House will kill the bill requiring district attorneys to serve full time," William P. Matthews commented this week.

Matthews is the Republican candidate for state representative from the 16th Middlesex district that includes Auburndale, West Newton and a precinct of Newtonville.

"Again the public loses and apparently for what appear to be purely partisan reasons," Matthews continued. "I commend District Attorney John Droney for his support of this legislation and condemn those who oppose it."

Part time district attorneys cannot possibly convict the guilty nor help free the innocent as efficiently as full time district attorneys, Matthews observed.

"Failure to make them full time at minimum expense to the public with the mere possibility of poor prosecution borders on being immoral," he said.

DAVID J. MOFENSON

The state House of Representatives last week passed a bill cosponsored by State Rep. David J. Mofenson to provide for pretrial diversion of delinquency complaints.

Pretrial diversion is a program designed to "divert" youthful offenders out of the criminal justice system and into improved job and living situations.

"In a period characterized by a growing crime rate, rising costs of government, increasing complexity in legal processes and growing recognition of the ineffectivness of existing correctional programs, it is imperative that present methods for dealing with crime be reexamined and new alternatives developed," the legislator commented.

The bill now goes to the State Senate for further consideration.

LOIS PINES

The State Legislature this session amended the elderly tax exemption law to allow homeowners 70 or older to deduct the minimum allowable Social Security benefits from their gross annual receipts when determining eligibility for exemption, Rep. Lois Pines, Democratic candidate for reelection in the 19th Middlesex district, reported this week.

"The change in the application of the exemption represents one step toward equalizing the burden borne by individuals on Social Security," she said. "Recognition of the difficulty imposed on our elderly by rising taxes is long overdue."

Rep. Pines is a member of the Taxation Committee which drafted the bill.

JACK BACKMAN

State Sen. Jack H. Backman of Brookline has been elected to the board of directors of People vs. Handguns, a nonprofit, statewide citizens organization dedicated to strict handgun control.

Backman joins Sheriff John Buckley, Janet Wohlberg, Peter Nichols, Josiah Spaulding and hundreds of Massachusetts citizens in a bipartisac campaign to eliminate the handgun.

In 1972, he introduced the first bill in the legislature to ban the private ownership of handguns.

MICHAEL DUKAKIS

Michael Dukakis, Democratic candidate for governor, this week called on the Sargent Administration to reach a "prompt out-of-court settlement "of the class action suit brought against the state to improve conditions at the Fernald School in Waltham.

The Fernald League last week brought suit against several state officials in U.S. District Court on behalf of the school's 1700 retarded residents.

"It's time," the candidate said, "to end third-rate institutional care in Massachusetts. It's time to begin treating our handicapped citizens humanely and do our best to make their lives more comfortable and more productive."

CHARLES CABOT

Charles Cabot, Republican candidate for attorney general, proposed a new "strike force" approach to enforcing consumer protection laws this week.

"Processing complaints is important and should be continued," Cabot said. "But it does not present the broad deterrent to fraudulent practices in the marketplace that is necessary today."

The candidate suggested dividing the Consumer Protection Division legal staff into several "strike forces" and having them conduct "extensive investigations into whole areas of consumer abuse and then bring remedial legal actions which benefit broad segments of the public."

EDWARD HARRINGTON

Edward F. "Ted" Harrington, Democratic candidate for attorney general, told a Newton audience last week that he wanted to reiterate his "firm opposition to the widespread ownership of handguns."

"I believe that only police officers and other persons with legal and logical reasons for owning handguns should have them," he said.

JOHN P. LYNCH

Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor John Pierce Lynch of Springfield, this week said the real issues in his campaign are "permissiveness in government, power politics and loss of confidence in government."

Lovely retires after 39 years with Newton Police Department

By CHARLES E. FEELEY
Newton Police Department

After 39 years of outstanding service, John F. Lovely, who has been the proud holder of badge number 1, turned in his prized badge, along with his service number, club, and other tools, and concluded his association with the Newton Police Department that started as a reserve officer in 1955.

There are not too many Newton residents who remember the department without Frank. He was appointed by Chief Michael T. Hughes with the approval of Mayor Edwin O. Childs. The latter was rather pleased as Frank had been one of the boys that grew up in "Ned Childs' Nonantum Boys Club."

Frank's family arrived in Newton in 1858 and built a house on Watertown Street, opposite Foxon, where Frank was born. He attended Our Lady's School and played varsity baseball and football, later transferring to Newton High where he was outstanding in football and track.

Following his graduation from Newton High, Lovely joined the National Guard, and while at Camp Devens, he won the 26th Division middleweight and light-heavyweight titles, both of which he held for several years. In addition he had over 60 amateur boxing contests at Dilboy Field, Revere Rollerdrome, Boston Arena, Mechanics Hall, and the Boston Garden.

Also during this time, he was prominent in the Nonantum Boys Club, having joined as a boy, and worked his way up to the presidency. He was later appointed by Mayor Edwin Childs to the Good Citizens Association and later to the Executive Board of Seven, that eventually passed a building on, at Lovely's urging, to the present Newton Boys' Club.

Frank Lovely was also active with the Newton Lodge of Elks, and held every office up to exalted ruler, and participated at one time or another on all committees.

Two days after Lovely was appointed a police officer in 1935, he qualified as an expert with his police side-arm and has never been qualified less than expert in the intervening years. He has been an instructor in the New England Police Revolver League since 1943, a certified instructor with the National Rifle Association, and has instructed every present member of the Newton Police Department in defensive weapons training.

For many years, Lovely, along with the late Officer Joe Smith, now retired Officer Joe Greeley, and in later years Sergeant Neal Dwyer and Officer Fred Friani, put on demonstrations for clubs and civic organizations on weapons safety. They would fire into a small trap target and fire at a bayonet and two balloons, one on each side, splitting the bullet on the bayonet and hit both balloons. They were well known throughout New Englad for their expertise and showmanship, and in hundreds of exhibitions, never had one bullet go astray or miss the small steel trap.

In addition to his police work, Frank Lovely has been active in community service and held office as Secretary of the Newton Police Benefit Association for many years. He has been a member and officer of the National Guard Association.

He is married to the former Dorothy Gallant, of Newton, has two married daughters, Mrs. Shirley Mosher and Judith Coulter, a son, Russell, who is in real estate in New York, and a son, Robert, who earned a Ph.D. at Notre Dame and is presently teaching at the University of Indiana.

John F. Lovely, after 39 years of service in every facet of police work, from patrolman to detective, desk officer, traffic inspector, ambulance driver, instructor, is turning in his gear and is leaving the Newton Police Department, but to quote Lovely himself, "I am leaving the Department, but I have no intention of retiring."

Chief William F. Quinn stated that Frank will be missed by the Department and that "Frank was many police officers rolled into one. We wish him well for the future."

Brenda Ross attends institute

Brenda B. Ross of Chestnut Hill, guidance counselor in Boston Public Schools, attended the professional public relations institute at Boston University last week.

Sponsored by the Massachusetts School Counselor Association (MSCA) the three day conference focused on techniques and skills of print and electronic media.

Twenty counselors representing regional guidance associations attended the conference. Ms. Ross represented the Massachusetts Personnel and Guidance Association for whom she has been secretary and is now chairperson for the professional development committee.

Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum of the Newton School Committee has announced the appointment of Erna Gill of 168 Homer street, Newton Centre, as chairwoman of the Citizens Advisory Committe on Declining Enrollment and School District Oranization.

The School Committee voted on May 28 to authorize the establishment of such a committee, the chairman to be appointed by the chairman of the School Committee with the approval of the members of the School Committee.

According to the same vote, a number of community organizations were asked to appoint representatives as members of the committee.

A brief preliminary organizational meeting of the committee was held at Mrs. Gill's home Monday, July 29 for the purpose of agreeing upon a time and place for the regular meetings which will be held in the fall.

As is the case in all meetings of this committee, interested members of the community are welcome to attend. There will be a public announcement of the time and place of each meeting.

Mrs. Gill is a social worker who is presently connected with the Salvation Arny Day Care Center. He husband, Dr. Benjamin Gill, is a psychiatrist practicing in Newton. The Gills have two daughters, Lucia, a student at Mason-Rice, and Nancy, a student at Weeks Junior High School. Mrs. Gill has in the past been involved in a number of school-related activities including service as chairman of the mental and public health committee of the PTA Council.

Following are the members of the committee and the organizations which chose them: Mrs. Gill, 168 Homer St.; Dr. Lemont Kier, 94 Grove St., Auburndale and Sanford Cohen, 171 Fairway Dr., West Newton, Pt.a. council, north side; Marc Rector, 48 Harrison St., Newton Highlands and Mrs. Jane Weingarten, 31 Sewall St., West Newton, P.T.A. Council, central section; and Edward Shapiro, 43 Rosalie Rd., Newton Centre and William Shaevel, 881 Dedham St. Newton Centre, P.T.A. Council, south section.

Also, Robert Provencher and Mrs. Joanne Warner, 121 Cornell St., Newton Lower Falls, Newton Teachers' Association; Mrs. Joyce Picard, Halycon Rd., Newton Centre, Newton Citizens for Education; Mrs. Susan Green, 272 Highland St., West Newton, Newton League of Women Voters; Robert Hayden, 77 Beaumont Ave., Newtonville, Black Citizens of Newton; Dr. Ronald Nuttall, 106 Washington St., Newton, Newton Taxpayers' Association; and Mrs. Lois Alexander, 242 Lake Ave., Newton Highlands, Community School Council.

James Salter will represent the mayor's office. Members of the school administration will serve as resource people upon request.

Quinn notes increase in number of bicyclists

Chief William F. Quinn has announced that there has been a noticeable increase in the number of bicycle commuters on Newton's main streets between the hours of 7 to 9 a.m.

The Chief stated, "These communities have been observing the rules of the road and have for the most part, according to reports, have been exercising good judgment in how they ride, but they do need some additional help and courtesy from the motorist."

The Chief continued, "The motorist does not realize the increase in numbers and perhaps hasn't noticed that the roads are being shared by these bicyclists, and drivers should be willing to assist by a greater use of turn signals. Many cyclists state that they have been cut off by cars turning both right and left. In addition, drivers should be cognizant of the fact that under the Saltonstall Bicycle Law, cyclists have the right to signal a left turn, and move from the right side of thr road to the center line in preparing for the left turn."

Chief Quinn also complimented most drivers for their courtesy to cyclists and also the cyclists for their observance of the rules of the road and added, "During the nine snowless months, we can expect a gradual build-up of the numbers of bicycle riders, both adult and young people, and if we are prepared to share the roadways, they can be safe for all."

Route 9 median to have fence

A seven-foot-high chain-link fence will be built by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works along the portion of the Route 9 median strip by the Chestnut Hill Mall.

The fence will extend from Langley Road to the Brookline town line and is designed to eliminate pedestrian crossings on that part of Route 9. Work will begin Aug. 14.

In his announcement of the project, Mayor Theodore Mann expressed his gratitude for the cooperation of the state DPW "for responding to our concern for pedestrian safety," and urged all pedestians to use only marked crosswalks.

Sargent to be in Newton tonight

Governor Francis Sargent and Lt. Governor Donald Dwight will be in Newton Thursday (Aug. 1) to attend the gathering of Middlesex County campaign workers at Post 440, American Legion Building, 295 California St.

Among those planning the event representing the Newton Committee are: Steve Pauler, Barbara Schiller, David Thomas, Edward Trundle and W. Frederick Uehlein.

School Committe fights to hold place in building design process

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The School Committee brought up its big guns to try to knock down a change in the Design Review ordinance that would eliminate all School Committee voting representation on the Design Review Committee.

The amendment, proposed by Ald. Edward Richmond, has already been approved once by the aldermanic Legislation & Rules Committee. It was at the point of being voted on by the full Board of Aldermen last month when the Board instead voted to return it to committee.

Richmond has long been dissatisfied with the composition of the Design Review Committee, which is the body responsible for coordinating all the city agencies and citizen groups involved in construction of schools and other public facilities and giving final approval to each step of the archetectural process.

In the case of school construction, the present Design Review Committee shall have an additional four members and two community representatives selected by the School Committee. The School Committee appointees ard in addition to the regular complement of the Design Review Committee—eight permanent members (four each appointed by the mayor and the Board of Aldermen) plus for each facility one additional member appointdd by the mayor and by the Board.

Richmond's amendment would crezate a 12-member committee, six of whom would be appointed by the mayor and six by the Board of Aldermen, augumented one alderman and one School Committee member who will not have a vote.

In addition, for each facility the head of the using agency (e.g., School Department, library) and one community representative (from the neighborhood) would be appointed by the using agency and would serve as nonvoting members.

Florence Rubin, who was chairman of the Charter Commission at the time the Design Review ordinance was under consideration, commented to Richmond, "It seems strange that you want to wipe out (as voting members) the two or more citizen representatives. The public has a perfectly proper interest."

"It seems strange also to remove School Committee people as voting members—that structure defeats itself," Mrs. Rubin added.

Richmond explained that in his opinion the framers of the ordinance "never envisioned a clash between school and nonschool factions. I see a clash of interests. My concept is a review by professional and lay people in which the using agency is not a party.", Another part of Richmond's amendment calls for the 12 members to have professional qualifications in the fields of architecture, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, structural engineering, general construction, and landscape architecture, with not more than two members from any one field.

Design Review Committee member Laurence Bishoff said it is more important to have user representation on the committee than to have neighborhood (community) representation. "We can always discuss it with the community."

Bishoff said the proposed revision overemphasizes technical representation, and suggested relying more on the city's Building Department for technical knowledge.

"We need to monitor the design and how it meets the need," Bishoff said.

The League of Women Voters presented a statement opposing Richmond's proposed changes in the ordinance. Beverly Smith and LWV President Miriam Erlich explained that the League feels the changes would adversely affect improvement of communication between the School Committee and the public and between the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen.

The League also feels that the changes would be detrimental to "prompt and effective implementation" of school building programs.

"We are most seriously concerned that the elimination of voting input and fair representation on this committee when the using agency is the School Committee is not in the best interest of the city and the community which it serves," the statement said.

Richmond challenged the basis on which the League took its position, and asked how many members the League has and how many were represented in the position. Mrs. Erlich explained that such psoitions are expressed by the League board, which does not poll each member but is representative of the membership.

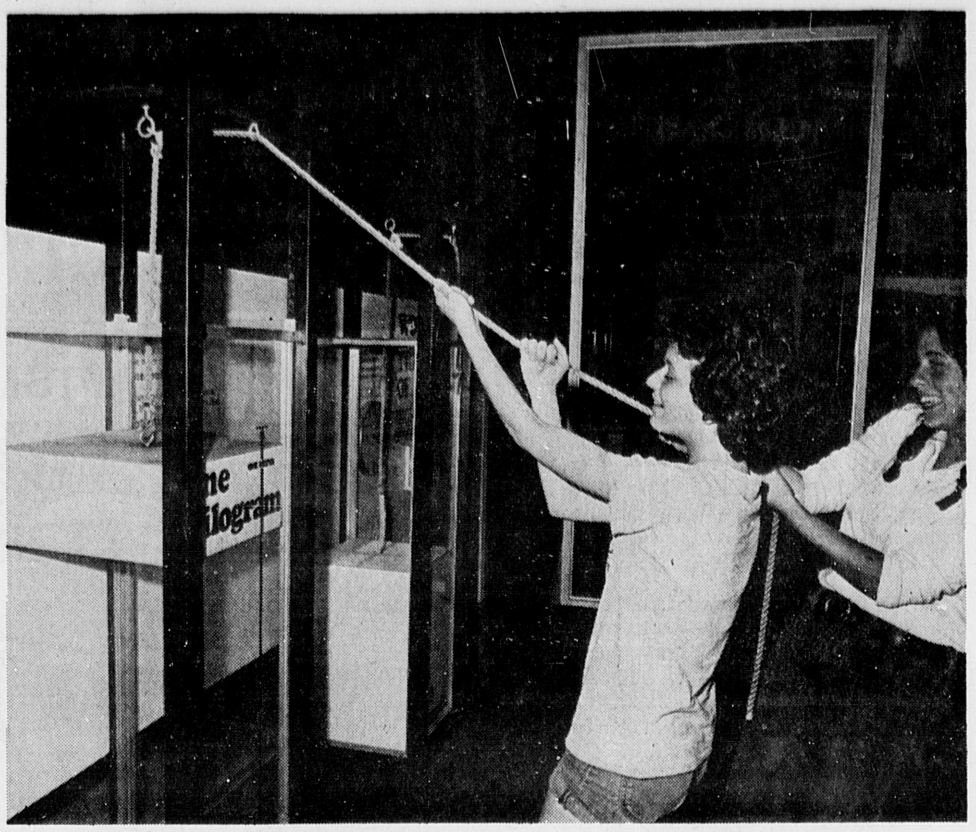
Other speakers opposed to Richmond's amendment were School Committeeman Alvin Mandell, who pointed out that the user has final acceptance under state law, and School Committeeman Gerard Byrne, who asked why the necessary technical expertise can't be achieved by better appointments to the Design Review Committee.

Ald. Joan Saklad thought that being a community representative does not preclude being an expert in one of the fields desirable.

Rep. Peter Harrington cautioned that "serious consideration should be given before you remove the School Committee representation. While some groups may abuse the appointments, we shouldn't just sit back and appoint experts."

No decision was reached at this meeting, and a special meeting was scheduled for Aug. 7 to finish deliberations.

Brief discussion indicated that the Legislation and Rules Committee will probably restore at least two School Committee appointments.



Woman power

McDonald's continues to pursue permit

McDonald's Restaurant has "authorized whatever proceedings are necessary to regain the (revoked) building permit," McDonald's lawyer James Kickham said this week.

There are two courses of action, Kickman said. First, McDonald's will appeal to the city's Building Law Board of Appeals; if denied the reissuance of a building permit there, McDonald's will enter a suit in Superior Court.

But McDonald's may also file in court "right away" Kickham said.

McDonald's building permit for alteration of a building now owned by McDonald's at 330 Walnut St., Newtonville, was issued by Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson July 10, then revoked on a technicality, signature of the wrong person, on July 12.

McDonald's wants to establish a 148-seat sit-down restaurant at the Newtonville location, which does not have any off-street parking facilities. There has been considerable neighborhood and aldermanic opposition.

The issue is now complicated by the fact that after McDonald's building permit was revoked, a proposed ordinance has been filed, and notice of public hearing published, to allow fast-order and automobile-oriented food establishments to move into the city only with a special permit of the Board of Aldermen.

The proposed ordinance would in effect supersede present building permit and Licensing Board function, if the Board of Aldermen did not wish the new establishment.

Crystal Lake has a curious history

By PETER MORALES

Crystal Lake as a curious history behind it .

In the 18th century, it extended beyond its present size but was gradually filled in. Even so, the lake still covers more than 4.5 acres.

It once was known as Baptist Pond and local churches used it for their baptisma.

As is true of many such places, people mention it in their folklore. It is claimed that in 1918, a team of horses used by an ice house fell through the ice to the bottom of the lake and were never found.

In those days, Crystal Lake was also used as a recreational area for residents of Boston.

Crystal Lake has been very appropriately named. Its waters owe their amazing clarity to a combination of underwater springs that keep the water in constant motion and an aqualator which, with its very powerful motor, circulates the water every 24 hours, producing a phenomenally low pollution count — four parts to a million. This is the equivalent of drinking water.

Theoretically, only abutters and their guests can swim outside the supervised area of the lake. This rule holds true for the use of private boats too.

This lake is a year-round source of entertainment.

In the winter months skating and ice fishing are permitted. During the spring and fall, there are plenty more fish waiting to be caught. The lake is kept well stocked with pickerel, sunfish, perch, catfish and other species. Fishing is unlimited and allowed anywhere on the lake except in the swimming areas.

Summer is naturally the busiest season with plenty of aquatic activity for everyone. Swimming lessons are offered for beginners, advanced beginners and intermediate swimmers. Water safety, junior and senior lifesaving and water ballet are also taught.

Sailing is one of the most attractive pastimes Crystal Lake has to offer. Experienced sailors have their choice of several types of crafts, including the speedy "sunfish," offered free of charge for one hour or longer depending on the number of epople who want to sail. If too many people request a "sunfish," the remaining boaters can content themselves with canoeing or rowing. Three sessions of sailing classes are also offered free of charge throughout the summer. It takes only three weeks to earn a certificate.

For those with some experience in sailing, a "refresher course" is offered.

Crystal Lake even has its own local "Loch Ness monster." It doesn't quite rival its notorious counterpart in size or fame, but still manages to keep local lake patrons on the lookout.

This "monster" is a snapping turtly that is six feet in diameter. It has been spotted periodically throughout the years and was glimpsed last summer.

No need to panic. There are no reports that it has ever attacked anyone.

For $3, Newton residents can purchase a season permit for Crystal Lake. An adult permit entitles the permit holder to swim and use the lake during adult swimming hours. Non-residents cannot purchase season permits but can buy day passes for 50 cents.

I talked to Henry Barry, manager of the lake and a mathematics teacher in the Newton public schools. I asked him about safety aspects.

Excerpts from the interview follow:

H.B.: We haven't had a drowning since I've been here. The last one was about 10 years ago on a Sunday afternoon. A young Irish lad who had been here for two weeks somehow drowned underneath the raft. To my knowledge, there have two drownings in the supervised area in the last 25 years.

P.M.: That's a very good record.

H.B.: I would think so.

P.M.: Excellent.

H.B.: Every person, with the exception of one, that we have pulled out or that has drowned, ironically has come from outside the community, from a place beginning with a "C." It's very unusual . . .

P.M.: Chicago, I remember that two years ago . . .

P.M.: Really?

H.B.: Very ironic. So we're not going to have anybody in here from Cleveland . . .

P.M.: I'm from Colombia.

Although it's just a coincidence, I still think about it every time I go swimming there.

Crystal Lake has something to offer for those people who don't want to go swimming, sailing, canoeing, rowing or fishing. At one curve along the lake, there are park benches.

Here, people can sit and watch an occasional seagull swoop down onto the water and emerge with a poor, defenseless fish, that suddenly finds itself zooming through the air and does not know that it is about to become the seagull's meal.

Regulation of amusement devices urged

Mayor Theodore D. Mann recently urged Speaker of the House David M. Bartley to support House Bill 6505, regulating the operation of mechanical amusement devices.

Provided in House Bill 6505 are annual inspection of Ferris wheels, carousels, inclined railways and other mechanical devices; immediate shutdown of any machine which has caused injury or creates a hazard to life, until necessary repairs are made; and prominent display of instructions for safely stopping the amusement devices.

The bill also prohibits any minor from operating the amusement machines.

A long trial

Legal experts now appear to be divided on the question of whether a trial on the removal of President Nixon could be started in late summer or early autumn by the present U.S. Senate and be completed next winter by the Senate which assumes office in January.

That question becomes pertinent because it is considered unlikely that a Senate trial started in September or October could be completed by the end of the year. This is an issue which eventually may have to be resolved by the U.S. Supreme Court.

A majority of the legal sharps queried expressed doubt that the court would permit a trial of such great importance to be started by one Senate and finished by another even though a big majority of the Senators would be the same in both bodies.

One highly respected attorney said it would be tantamount to changing the makeup of a jury midway through a murder trial. "The court wouldn't allow it," he insisted.

However, other eminent lawyers pointed out that the Senate is a continuing body and that only one-third of its members are elected each two years which means that the change in the makeup of the Senate next January will be relatively small even though several Senators are retiring from office at the end of the year.

The prevailing opinion appears to be that a new trail would have to be started in the Senate next year if Nixon is impeached by the national House and a removal trial is started in the Senate this year but is not completed before the present Congress goes out of existence.

The period in which an impeached President is standing trial in the Senate is both a difficult and dangerous one for the nation. In the case of Richard Nixon it might also be a long one.

But let us begin.

A Bostonian looks at forced busing

Commentary by Dick Sinnott

(Editor's note: Dick Sinnott, Hyde Park resident and columnist outlines his personal views on busing and what it means to him.)

THIS IS A DIFFICULT COLUMN TO WRITE.

Perhaps the most difficult of all those I have penned since you and I and Maggie were young.

It is not one that I enjoy writing.

But it is one that must be written.

It must be written because of all the telephone calls and letters I have received since a Federal judge decreed forced busing for Boston school children come September.

Yes, it must be written if only to respond to the pleas of those whom I meet daily at the bus stop, on the train, at church, at the Stop & Shop, at the library, at "Rocky's," and yep at the liquor store, too. It must be written to answer their queries:

"What are we going to do?"

I think most of us with great reluctance and greater regret—will comply. Give it a try.

Afterall we are law 'n order persons, now aren't we? And it is the law, now isn't it?

A rotten law.

A law which discriminates, which punishes harshly and will call Boston "home." A law which we will spend every day, every night, every moment fighting to repeal.

There are those whom I know and those who read this column who I am sure may not comply.

Some may keep their children at home or send them to so-called "freedom schools" in much the same manner as once did our black bretheren.

Still others may send their youngsters to their neighborhood school; to the school that Joe or Jim, Joan or Mary should have gone to come September if any semblence of sanity still lingered in Massachusetts, the one and only.

And what will happen if these children report to the neighborhood schools?

I dare not, cannot, speculate.

And still others may take stronger action.

—o—

And so after fighting for nine years a horrendous, evil and unnecessary law we are eyeball-to-eyeball with a Federal court ruling that says your child and mine must be bused against our wishes.

And this on the eve of a long, long battle that finally saw the Legislature about to repeal the hateful Racial Imbalance Law.

But let's talk a moment about busing.

It must be wonderful to be as superior as our friends in Suburbia and the Cardinal are when they talk about busing. They tell us that busing is "a nothing" thst they "bus every day" and that "children are bused all over the countryside to Catholic schools."

Of course they are.

No parent I know is opposed to busing per se.

Busing is not a new experience to many of us who abhor the Racial Imbalance Law and can't understand why a Federal judge wants to put 20,000 Boston youngsters on buses for "balance."

—o—

Eight years ago—one year after enactment of the stupid and senseless Racial Imbalance Law—none of my youngsters were taking a bus to school.

Last year three of my four sons were bused. Next year three will again take buses to school.

But they do so with my knowledge, my permission. And I didn't doubt for a moment in 1973 that at the end of those bus rides they would be safe—even though two of them attended school in Roxbury. Today I do not have that conviction, so two will go to private schools.

None of us who oppose forced busing have any fetish about buses, be they white, green, black or yellow.

What we do oppose in this state of Massachusetts and now in the government of these United States—which we all love and respect and fought for and shed blood for—is telling us we have no choice on where our kids will go to school.

We deserve better than this.

The ones whom this federal judge seeks to punish are the backbone of this country, this city. We are the ones who enlisted in the Army and the Navy and the Marines on December 8th, 1941. We're the poor sunavabees who pay our taxes and sweat tuitions, sweat mortgages and car payments and the cost of groceries and fuel, get no hand outs, give our blood, take our turn in line, volunteer for charities, and work two jobs, sometimes three.

And then we're told—we have no rights. Tough buddy, but you have no rights because the government says so. Because you chose to live in Boston.

A government we were brought up to respect tells us this. A government we serve without question which now turns its back on us. A government, unaware, a government that seems not to care.

—o—

My God!—and they wonder why the young have lost faith in this country.

They wonder without even realizing that we, the muddled middle-aged, befuddled middle class are also losing faith.

And we don't want to.

We love this country, but we wonder if it still loves us, still wants us, needs us, even knows we exist.

Out two United States senators march to a different drummer and we have a State Board of Education that is so far out they look like a band of astronauts.

And we have a federal judge who apparently thinks your kid and mine are just some more digits in the game of numbers the state has taunted us with for nine years.

Now I must sadly report that I know many people who plan to leave Boston in the next 12 months. They are being forced to evacuate because our government thinks they have no rights, our government has treated them with contempt—utter contempt.

They will go to Dedham and Milton and Newton, and Braintree and Weymouth and Dover and Wellesley and to points North and South.

And they will not return. Ever.

Their sons will become the football stars at Dedham and Milton High and their daughters will be inducted into the National Honor Society at Needham and Newton.

And Boston will weep.

Weep because its so unfair. And that is the only word necessary for me to describe what this government, which we love and try to understand is doing to us. Treating us so unfairly. Treating us with contempt, utter contempt. Your child, it appears, is a scack of sement, a bag of beans, to be shipped here and there to satisfy the whims of the social experimenters–none of whom live here, incidentally–and you, you are a cipher.

Forget them.

But you know there are some bruised, battered and burdened Bostonians who will not leave this city, who cannot, who refuse to.

This is the city in which we were born, bred, labored in.

This is the city we love–and we will not surrender it to those of you who tell us how to live but will not live with us.

We will stay.

Oh sure, we'll comply with the law.

But as I said it is a rotten law. And it punishes the very poeple this government can least afford to punish. Least afford to lose.

The proponents of forced busing have won a victory, a major victory.

And I'm not going to give you that old saw about "winning the battle and losing the war."

Right now they are winning both.

But we are not defeated.

Because we are right.

Because there is a God who we believe in.

Tax increase delayed until after election

If this were not an election year, we would be paying higher state taxes, probably a heavier sales tax on many of the things we buy.

But it is an election year. Governor Francis W. Sargent and most members of the Legislature want to be renominated in September and reelected in November.

They figure that one way to accomplish that objective is to avoid irritating the voters by levying any additional taxes upon them at a time close enough to election so that they will still be angry about it when they go to their polling places.

So, by a sort of unspoken mutual agreement the need for additional taxes to finance the operation of the state government is swept under the rug and the problem pigeonholed until after election.

Our more erudite colleagues tell us that this is deficit-spending, that we're juggling money from one pocket to another, borrowing funds from Peter to pay the more demanding Paul, that it's a sloppy way to run a Commonwealth and that we should be indignant about it.

We realize that eventaully we will be obliged to dig down for the money to pay the bills now being stored in a dark place in the closet and that in the end it probably will cost us more in one way or another.

But we are having a difficult time working up much indignation over the fact that we must wait until next year to pay higher taxes. We can control our desires in that direction. In truth, we can wait cheerfully.

We'd like the little boy who wished every day was Christmas. We wish every year was an election year so that the Legislature and Governor never would raise taxes. That's how long we would be willing to wait without ever getting indignant or irritated about the delay in paying higher taxes.

However, it appears virtually certain that the privilege of paying more state taxes will be ours no later than next year.

One candidate for Governor has declared flatly that he will not boost taxes next year even if it means he must eliminate state programs.

That is brave campaign talk, but a study of the state's financial picture leads to the conclusion that it would be necessary to eliminate essential public services if state taxes are not increased next year.

Polls and surveys have disclosed that a substantial majority of the people would prefer to pay the additional taxes in pennies rather than dollars.

When they are asked to choose between an increase in the state income tax or a boost in the sales tax, they pick the higher sales tax as less painful.

A jump from three to five cents in the sales tax probably would not provide all the additional money needed by the state, but it would produce most of the necessary funds.

A three per cent sales tax is now being collected, and an increase to five per cent would not cause any great upheaval.

This is likely enough to happen early in 1975 so that if y u are planning to guy a new automobile or make some comprable purchase, you would be well advised to do it either this year or in the first month or two of 1975.

A strong feeling exists that any increase in the state income tax, which produced an additional $200 Million or more, would hit the little people and hit them hard. That probably is an accurate appraisal of the situation, and it appears the State needs about an additional $200 Million a year.

Meanwhile, it seems elections do have some encouraging features. The law-makers are reluctant to put the tax bite on us during a year in which an election occurs.

Sarge orders staff Democrats join GOP

Governor Francis W. Sargent is insisting that all registered Democrats on his State House staff change their party enrollment so they can vote for him in his fight for renomination with former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan in the Sept. 10 Republican primary.

Mr. Sargent is encuntering some resistance to that effort, and that certainly does not speak well for the loyalty of some of his aides and assistants.

An observer would naturally assume that any person, who owes his job to Governor Sargent, who is drawing a week's pay because of Sarge, would be involved in a race and a rush to qualify himself to be eligible to vote for Mr. Sargent Sept. 10. That does not seem to be exactly the case, and one must surmise that there will be some new faces around Sarge by Primary Day.

The Governor's action would also indicate that he considers he has a harder primary fight with Carroll Sheehan than most political pundits believe he has.

If Sheehan should accomplish a sensational upset and defeat Sargent in the primary—which seems highly unlikely to this observer—it probably would mean that the ball game was over for the Republican party in Massachusetts at least for this year and possibly for a long time to come.

Repudiation and rejection of a sitting Governor by his own party usually foretells defeat and disaster for that party in the subsequent election.

That has happened three times to Governors during our period as a political reporter. All three Governors were Democrats. Such an event within the GOP would be even more disastrous. Republicans traditionally nurse their grudges and grievances and continue their feuds longer than do Democrats who have a tendency to regroup after beating each other over the head.

The three sitting Governors who were defeated in Democratic primaries were Charles F. Hurley in 1938, Foster Furcolo in 1960 and Endicott Peabody in 1964. Furcolo was seeking the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate. Hurley and Peabody were standing for renomination.

Hurley was toppled by James M. Curley who then was defeated by Leverett Saltonstall. Furcolo was upset by former Springfield mayor Thoms O'Connor who then also lost to Salty.

Peabody was defeated in 1964 when a group of Democratic leaders ganged up on him and backed Francis X. Bellotti, who subsequently lost to John A. Volpe afte a close race.

Each time a Governor was felled in a primary, the Democratic party was torn asunder by dissension. That would be inevitable in the Republian party if Governor Sargent should be toppled Sept. 10.

A number of persons have written in to ask how they can qualify themselves to vote in the Republian or Democratic primary.

A person who is an unenrolled voter and is not registered as either a Democrat or a Republican may vote in either primary. When he requests a primary ballot, he is automatically enrolled in the party in whose primary he votes, but he can drop that enrollment the next day if he chooses.

A Democrat who wishes to vote in the Republican primary or a Republiian who desires to vote in the Democratic primary, should go to the election department if he lives in a a city or the town clerk if he resides in a town and have his enrollment eithe cancelled r changed.

That should be done by August 9. The law specifies that a change in party enrollment must be made at least 30 days before a rpimary. However, the primary is Sept. 10. Aug. 10 is a Saturday, and Augu. 11 is a Sunday.

Crystal Lake Policies

To the Editor:

My family has reached the same conclusions about Crystal Lake policies as has Kermit A. Cole in his July 11 letter.

We have watched this situation grow, as our boys have gotten older—and, by the way, more and more capable of handling themselves in the water. What is appalling is the prevailing attitude of sneering superiority which seems to occur in every lifeguard chair as well as in the "ground force" who rule with an imaginary sceptre.

To avoid a continuation of bad experiences, a la Kermit A. Cole and his brothers, we have stopped taking our boys to the lake. When I ask for a family refund, it will not be without a detailed explanation to the Recreation Department.

School busing

To the Editor:

The Metropolitan Planning Project in light of the Supreme Court's decision on the Detroit school busing case reaffirms its commitment to work toward the voluntary reduction of minority group student isolation in the Boston metropolitan area.

The decision seems to indicate that the court will refuse to sanction forced desegregation on a metropolitan scale. However, it appears to us that this in no way prevents a city or state from going forward with voluntary, collaborative efforts to integrate school systems on a metropolitan basis.

Our goal is to provide an equitable and quality education for all students.

'Disappointed'

To the Editor:

I was disappointed to see that, in your announcement of the appointment of Dr. Marianne Shey to the staff of New England Medical Center Hospital (July 25), you referred to her several times as "Ms. Shey."

I'm sure you are aware that it is the custom in this country to refer to a medical doctor as "doctor." If Dr. Shey were male, would you have used "Mr. iShey"?

I don't think so.

Reassurance

To the Editor:

I am writing on behalf of the American Cancer Society. Cancer is a frightening thought to almost everyone and it need not be.

Miraculous strides have been made and the end for even greater things to come has not even been dreamed of yet.

I was stricken with the disease 10 years ago and although I am almost 42 years old, I never felt better in my life. I can swim, ride, dance and do all the things I ever did and do them better.

reorganization plan put the sealer of weights and measures into the department of zoning and inspection. The sealer, who is responsible for checking all measuring and weighing devices and checking weights of meats sold at local markets, should operate from the Health Department, some aldermen felt.

The overlap between the new Zoning and Inspections Department and the Health Department, in the area of inspections, was discussed but no conclusion was reached.

Most aldermen left the meeting feeling as if reorganization might actually happen, though none would predict what fights may come up in committee and on the floor of the Board, nor would they guess how long the legal work will take.

Boston Ballet to perform Aug. 7-18 at Hatch Shell

A highlight of the Boston Ballet's 10 free Esplanade concerts at the Hatch Shell from Aug. 7 to 18 at 8:30 p.m. will be Ron Cunningham's "The Gershwin Years," which captures the dance styles of the 20's and 30's through George Gershwin melodies.

A choreographer with the Boston Ballet Company, Cunningham uses the dance techniques of ballet and modern dance to simulate the popular styles of the Gershwin era.

Using Gershwin's own arrangement of excerpts from nine of his compositions which he set for a songbook in 1932, Cunningham incorporates in his ballet such songs as "Swanee," "Nobody But You," "Fascinating Rhythm," "Oh, Lady Be Good," "Somebody Loves Me," "The Man I Love," and "Clap Yo' Hands."

"I am trying to show the full scope of Gershwin's music in my ballet, explained Cunningham. Thus his work is a visual history of Gershwin's compositions. The ballet opens with "Rialto Ripples," a Ragtime piano solo which Gershwin composed in 1916 at the age of 17 and then moves to "Promenade" which was one of the last scores he created in 1936. From there the music follows Gershwin's songs chronologically.

"Gershwin's rhythm is so fascinating," said Cunningham. "Because he wrote for musicals, his music is so danceable."

"Promenade," for example, was written for the "Walking the Dog" sequence in the film "Shall We Dance" which starred Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. This film was one of the last he did before his death.

Because of his serious music training in Europe, explained Cunningham, Gershwin was able to synthesize jazz into the classical form and made jazz appealing to a broader audience giving it "respectability."

"The Gershwin Years" is Cunningham's second work for the Boston Ballet. He received plaudits for his most recent children's ballet, "The Adventures of Raggedy Ann 'n Andy," which made its world premiere last April in the Music Hall.

The "Ballet on the Esplanade" concerts open Aug. 7 to 11 with nightly performances of "The Gershwin Years," "Concerto Barocco," "Grand Pas de Deux," "The Duel," and "Allegro Billante." Highlighting the second week of performances from Aug. 14 to 18, also nightly at 8:30 p.m., will be "Concerto Barocco," "Tarantella," "Fun! By the Sea - 1902," "The Dolly Suite," "Grand Pad de Deux," and "Bach with Jacques."

These 10 performances are offered free through the sponsorship of several leading Boston Corporations including The Boston Globe, Cabot, Cabot, and Forbes, Commercial Union Assurance Co., Old Colony Trust Division of the First National Bank of Boston, National Shawmut Bank, Pastene Wine Co., and the Polaroid Corp., and in cooperation with the MDC.

Subscription ticket information can be obtained by writing the Boston Ballet, 551 Tremont St., Boston, 02116, or by calling the ticket office at 542-3945 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Here's a picture to practice on—from our children's menu.

Bring the children to lunch at The Ritz. We have a special menu for them—in fact, it even doubles as a coloring book. And our selections include all their favorites (yes, we have sandwiches and hot dog plates and hamburger platters if that's what they like best).
We couldn't be more convenient. After all, the Public Garden blooms right at our front door. So, before or after your ride on the swan boat, set sail for our upstairs dining room.

Golov tells of looking for a place for a theater group for two years when "it was right in front of my face," since he belongs to Temple Emanuel.

The Ward Street Players presently includes about 25 people, ranging in age from the sophomore year of high school to the junior year of college. Although all the people were at one time affiliated with Newton South, Golov said that this is not a requirement for membership; "it just happened like that."

Golov remarked that "Most of the kids in the acting company are capable of becoming professional actors." Three or four of the people attend drama schools.

Golov said that members of his group have a "good attitude toward working together." He noted that "politics have been cut out. People don't have time to bicker; everyone has a job to do."

Golov gave several reasons for why "Come Blow Your Horn" was chosen as his group's first production. The main reason appears to be that it was written by Neil Simon.

"I feel I handle Simon very well," Golov commented. "The characters are clearer to me than those in a lot of other plays." Golov directed "The Odd Couple" and the third act of "Plaza Suite" at Newton South.

Golov said that the trouble with some amateur groups is that they try to do obscure plays. "The only way you can get people to come is to do a play people want to see," he remarked.

"Comedy is more appealing, especially in the summer," Golov added. "People don't want to sit in a hot room and have their mind picked apart."

Golov said that "Come Blow Your Horn" is an "in depth study of a Jewish family in society today." He explained that the mother in the play says any word a Jewish mother has ever said to a son or daughter. "She says things every mother is going to see in herself," Golov commented.

Golov said that the play is "very, very funny." An indication of its possibilities is that the father is in the wax fruit business.

Golov said that the group's "eventual plan in maybe the next four years" is for the Ward Street Players to evolve into a resident repertory company in Newton. Under this plan, people will live together, actors receiving room and board and spending money.

Golov said that people in the group can both produce and act. He explained that the entire company, except for three or four people, auditioned for the play. "People who didn't get parts took jobs on production."

Golov commented that the Ward Street Players are not in competition with the Newton Country Players. "There's plenty of room for everybody," he said. "This is a classy, intellectual enough city for people to want to go to theatre all the time."

Golov noted that the Country Players is a group of adults while his groups consists of younger people.

Golov said that he would like to see another production before Thanksgiving. He remarked that he is thinking of a drama for the next show, and then possibly an improvisational piece, and a musical.

Golov said that is is hoped that people who see "Come Blow Your Horn" will be interested in joining the Ward Street Players. He pointed out that "Come Blow Your Horn" is "relatively inexpensive," and that the group would like to "get enough money so we don't have to go scraping around."

Tickets for the show may be obtained by calling 332-1393. The box office is open 3-6 p.m. daily. Tickets cost $2. Starting time for the four performances will be 8 p.m.

Public hearing held on Day school move

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Neighbors of the old F.A. Day Junior High School, now being renovated for use as school administration headquarters, expressed concerns at a public hearing last week ranging from worry about the loss of recreation space to fears of traffic problems and an oversupply of parking space.

Some members of the aldermanic Public Buildings committee, which conducted the hearing, expressed dismay that the $500,000 limit on cost of the remodeling for school headquarters use is being applied only to the interior of the building, and development of the site (parking areas and landscaping) will need another appropriation.

A plan from the Planning Department outlining 175-195 parking spaces on the three-acre site brought questions from area residents about how such a large volume of traffic can be controlled.

Others strongly protested the paving of land that is now used by the neighborhood for recreation, and one man thought some of the land planned for parking may belong to the Recreation Department.

The renovation of the disused school was approved by the Board of Aldermen in the spring of 1973. The architect has just recently begun the working drawings, so work will probably not be completed until well into 1975.

The new administration building will house School Department personnel and activities currently occupying the old Stearns and Peirce School, and will provide room for the School Department's computer operation as well.

The Division of Instruction at 88 Chestnut St. (formerly the Peirce School) has 102 parking spaces, the Stearns School headquarters about 30, and the computer center 14.

William Robart, 249 Crafts St., asked how long the "temporary" buildings next to the main building will be there, and by what authority the School Department carpentry and equipment-repair shops have been moved to these buildings.

Ald. Terry Morris called the buildings "imcompatible with the main building, and suggested that they be razed so that the site can be restored to its former design.

One of the buildings is about 100 feet long by 25 feet wide; the other is slightly smaller.

The public hearing on the site plan was held under provisions of a recent amendment to the Design Review ordinance. Previously, no formal approval of vehicular access, parking, or landscaping was required by the Design Review Committee or the Board of Aldermen.

Now the approved site plan becomes part of the final plans for any new or altered public building.

Another hearing will be required for the school headquarters site plan, since the committee judged the plan submitted last week by the Planning Department incomplete. By a 6-0 vote the committee withheld approval pending submission of a completed site plan and a study of on-street parking impact on the neighborhood, and the conduct of another public hearing.

Police report

Summer brings burglary increase

Twelve Breaking and enterings were reported to Newton Police between Friday and Monday.

This recent rash of breaks supports Police planning and research division statistics which say that July was the peak month for burglaries in 1973. More than 200 of the 788 burglaries reported last year occurred in either July or August.

A break at the Franklin School, 125 Derby St., West Newton, was reported by a custodian at 7:41 a.m. on Friday. A window was broken and reported missing were two two televisions, a video tape recorder, and a phonograph.

A break at Motion Mart, 67 Union St., Newton Center was reported at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Entrance was reportedly gained by breaking a window, and $35 in cash and 12 bicycle carriers valued at $60 were reported missing.

A stereo unit was reported missing after an alleged break at 82 Hyde St., Newton Highlands. Entrance was reportedly gained by forcing a front door lock. The break was reported at 4:21 p.m. on Saturday.

Assorted plants were reportedly missing from a flower shop at 283 Auburn St., Auburndale, after an alleged break which was reported on Sunday. A police officer discovered the break.

A break at McDonald's, 197 California St., Newton was reported by a cleaner on Monday. A lock on a skylight was reportedly snapped, and a safe tampered with. The safe was not entered.

A total box was reportedly missing after a break at Capello Bros. Inc., 36 Border St., West Newton. The break was reported at 6 a.m. on Monday. An outside door was reportedly jimmied and an inside door broken down.

Two Waltham men were arrested by Newton Police on Sunday after reportedly being stopped by security at the Marriott Hotel.

Charles J. Goulding, 20, 745 South St., and Richard Perilli, 28, 7c Hansen Rd., were charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime, entering a motor vehicle with intent to commit larceny, and malicious damage to property over $15, according to Newton Police.

The two men were arraigned in Newton District Court on Monday, and their cases were continued until July 29.

Newton Junior College to participate in study

Newton Junior College's class of 1964 has been selected for an in-depth study evaluating the experiences of two-year college students who attended N.J.C. from September 1962 through June 1964.

An extensive questionnaire, covering academic, economic, career and value considerations, was mailed to members of the 1964 class. An immediate return of the questionnaire by the alumni will enable Newton Junior College to complete its work on this study.

Newton Junior College is one of four local academic institutions chosen to participate in this study of post-secondary education; Harvard University, Radcliffe College, and Boston State College are also sharing in this effort to determine the positive contributions of higher education, as well as its limitations. A digested summery of the results will be sent to N.J.C. students responding to the questionnaire.

Dean Whitla, director of instructional research and evaluation, Harvard University, is regional director of the research project; Charles Merrill, academic dean, and Robert M. Savidge, director of counseling services, Newton Junior College, are coordinating the survey at Newton Junior College.

Eventually, the results of this study will be made available to officials in state and private institutions of higher learning for the purpose of improving the relevance and effectiveness of education beyond high school.

Previews for fall

At the recent American Designer's Fall Fashion Press Week in New York, the message rang out loud and clear: It's going to be a "no color" season.

Women will find it difficult to find bright colors. The eye will adjust to a new fashion strategy . . . subtlety, romance and dignity will keynote fall '74.

Predominantly, there is a soft tonalty of grays and taupe (brownish-gray) and a fluidity—fuller silhouettes which mold the bodice and flare out at the hip. Women have known for some time that tightly tailored classics have been replaced with easier-to-wear unconstructed shapes. There is now a counterplay of fullness and at the same time body consciousness.

Most important is the one color look from head to toe. This calls for careful matching of colors on a monochromatic scale. Colors range from a creamy ivory to wheat, into the dove greys—interesting rust and red-brown tones and greens that are misty. Each group has its own color coordinated shirts, blouses and sweaters in solids, tweeds, plaids and novelties.

Capes are back, but not the old capes. Today's capes are long . . . many are unlined and all are flattering. Nearly all capes have openings which enable a woman to carry her bulky handbag or parcels.

Hats are definitely "in" and they are mostly in beret shapings. There is also the soft crown with the skinny brim, the turban or the crocheted cloche. Softness is important because these hats are either squished down on the head or softly bloused on the side. In fact, most fall hats can be rolled up in a ball and jammed into a coat pocket until needed.

Fabrics include cashmere, camel hair, tweeds, gentle plaids, velvets and flannels. Melton is a fabric seen quite often at the showings in delightful colors of sand, camel, green, red, brown, navy and black. (Coats in this fabric promise more than one season of good wearing.)

"The typical look of fall," said Eleanor Lambert, director of the American Designer's Press Week, "is the study of textures. A fullness that skims the body . . . the full skirt...sexy dresses, the top cut on a bias which touches the bosom and hipline—has bulk and fullness. There's an aura of mystery in every '74 collection.

"Sweaters, sweaters, sweaters! Again," Miss Lambert continued, "an expected banner year for sweaters both as separates as well as in twin stylings. Soft pearl gray, almost a platinum with luminous shadings rather than a solid color, is the perfect foil for pearls or other costume jewelry.

"Look for the bulky look in fashions—the long muffler, the look of many textures which harmonize. Some designers offer different textured tweed hat, tweed skirt, jacket and even a partly toned stocking. One must study and understand the designers' method of playing the texture game.

"Clingy long sweaters with belts that are sliver-thin to mark the waistline. You'll be seeing glove-leather; leather that is both real and simulated. Black leather fashions done in a sexy manner, not the motor cycle look. Lots of knits, leather and fur used with silky-textured knits."

When questioned about the colors for this fall, one designer said, "Let's call them stone colors . . . earth colors . . . silver bark colors . . . stag horn colors . . . or colors of nature. Women will find that gunmetal is a marvelous complexion tone for blondes and brunettes with a return of silver chains to complement the stone colors for fall.

Also shown, colorwise, are the eggplant, aubergine, burgundy wine tones combined with soft pink. Fur is used to cuff daytime as well as evening fashions, in a return to luxury, elegance and quality.

Many pants were shown and there's no tug of war between pants and skirts. Generally, designers seem to feel that most women would like to get into skirts and shirts again and so there are two and three piece pantsuits as well as the same colors and patterns shown in the tailored suit.

Short coats will be worn with skirts and pants. These coats have the bulky look with lots of fullness below the waist. The steamer coat has found its way into most collections and those done in soft fleece look great over a slim jersey dress or pants.

After five fashions re-echo the call for luxurious shapes and fabrics and the pyjama party continues to be today's answer to the evening that is formal or informal.

Matte jersey is the strongest evening fabric. Violet is a new color for evening, such as the violet matte jersey gown with over-sized matching shawl edged in long silk fringe. There's also the wine colored silk crepe gown with matching jacket with sleeves edged in sinfully rich sable.

Subtle "night blacks" that flatter the figure, gossamer metallics which glimmer and gleam, jacquards created in precious metal colors of gold and silver . . . all evening fabrics are very rich, most appealing.

To sum up fall fashions '74 . . . earth tones, marvelous fluid silhouettes at prices about ten per cent higher than last year.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Picture, if you will, acres and acres of shoulder high bushes heavy with blueberries. Big, juicy, luscious silvery-blues just waiting to be picked. And the price, only 40 cents per pound!

This blueberry fairyland is John Alexander's commercially grown berry fields in Middleboro, Massachusetts, best reached by taking Rt. 25 to Rt. 24 to Rt. 28 (the old road to the Cape). The exact address is 1224 Wareham Street.

Jack Alexander, the owner's grandson, and his pretty wife Nancy, assist the 80 year old botanical master in running his world famous nursery which also includes prize lilacs, dahlias, lilies, raspberries and other plants and bulbs. 22,000 high-bush cultivated blueberry bushes, each with a different flavor—berries approximately twice the size of wild, native blues but possessing the same desireable flavor. If you have just ordinary backyard soil you too can grow blueberries and you can buy two-year old seedlings at Alexander's stand. We bought ours last August and yesterday I counted 22 big berries on one little bush!

Young Jack Alexander has prepared yellow boards that are used for fruit fly control. It is an arrangement similar to fly paper that attracts the fly and catches it so it cannot lay eggs in the berries. The "boards" do not come in contact with the fruit as pesticides would, so the berries can be picked and eaten without washing, with no fear of poisoning.

Jack's wife Nancy, of the unusual topaz eyes and hair, recommends that when you freeze the berries you pick them over and sort them into two categories; the small berries which aren't entirely ripe for pies and the large sweet ones for nibbling, in fresh fruit cups or as a topping for dry cereal.

Picking began the last week in July and continues three weeks into August with the best picking time from 10 a.m. till 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday are ideal picking days; weekends are apt to be crowded . . . but if that's the only time the family can get together to go berrying, plan on going anyhow! Don't miss this once-a-year treat! Oh yes, what is your preference—sweet blues or the slightly tart? Ask Nancy or Jack for the position of your favorites in the field, and, please bring along your own containers.

Following are some of Nancy's favorite recipes:

FERNA S. ALEXANDER'S
FAVORITE BLUEBERRY PIE

1 quart (4 cups) blueberries
1 cup sugar and
⅛ teaspoon salt sifted with
2 tablespoons flour and a ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
Pastry for a double crust

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Combine sugar, flour, salt and cinnamon and fill pie shell alternately with a layer of berries and some of the sugar mixture. Dot top layer with butter if desired. Cover with top crust which has slits for escape of steam. Turn under edge of top crust, press down and flute with a fork. Bake in a hot oven at 450 degrees for 15 minutes; then reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake for 40 minutes or until juice bubbles through slits in top crust. (Cook a bit longer when using frozen fruit.)

OLD FASHIONED BAKED BLUEBERRY PUDDING

2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup light molasses
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 tablespoons warm water
3 cups blueberries
1 tablespoon butter

Sift flour and salt; add molasses and stir in baking soda which has been dissolved in warm water. Fold in berries and dot with butter. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream. Hard sauce makes a pleasant change—add a dash of nutmeg to it.

BLUEBERRY JAM

4½ cups blueberries (crushed)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
7 cups sugar
1 bottle Certo

Crush blueberries. Add lemon juice and sugar; mix well. Place over high heat and bring to a full rolling boil; boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 min. to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into hot sterilized glasses and paraffin at once. Makes about 12 6-oz. glasses.

BLUEBERRY PUFF

1 cup sifted flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup milk
1 egg, unbeaten
4 cups blueberries
8 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 teaspoons butter

Sift flour once; measure into sifter with baking powder, salt and ½ cup sugar. Have shortening at room temperature and mix or stir just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Add milk and egg and mix until all flour is dampened. Beat for 2 minutes, and divide berries into 8 greased custard cups, filling ¾ full. Sprinkle with sugar, lemon juice, and dot with butter. Fill cups with batter. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees for 35-40 minutes. Serve warm, plain or with cream. Serves 8

I would like to share a lovely memory with you. Recently, while attending the American Designer's New York Press Preview of Fall Fashions, I was a guest for the first time at the famed Plaza Hotel in New York City. Being an early riser, I prowled around the lobby at 7 a.m., visiting the interesting Palm Court as it was coming to life.

Later, I couldn't resist peeking into the hotel's brand new Plaza Restaurant, and it was like stepping back in time to the year 1907 when the Plaza first opened. Recently redecorated in the style of that era, the handsome room hummed with activity as waiters set tables, putting exquisite bouquets of flowers on snow-white tablecloths.

Tall, French born Michel Porte, the restaurant's manager, came forward and graciously persuaded me to have breakfast with him in front of a window looking out on a rainswept Central Park. Fresh orange juice, piping hot delicious brioche, croissants, tiny sweet rolls, hot coffee and best of all a marvelous conversation resulted in Monsieur Porte promising to send me some of The Plaza's famous recipes.

Today's mail brought the following recipes from the hotel's Executive Chef Joseph Trombetti (also a restaurant-size recipe for cheesecake which we will publish at a later date).

Our thanks to The Plaza and Michel Porte for a memorable experience and the following recipes:

THE PLAZA'S LONG ISLAND DUCKLING
FLAMBE AU GRANDE MARNIER

INGREDIENTS — roasting:
4½ pound duckling, ready to cook
1 carrot
1 medium onion, roughly cut
Salt
Pepper
1 pinch rosemary
1 bay leaf

Sauce:
3 teaspoons granulated sugar
½ cup red wine
¼ cup Grande Marnier
2 teaspoons vinegar
1 teaspoon arrowroot
2 oranges
½ lemon
3 cups roast meat stock

Procedure — roasting: Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Dry the duck well. Put the salt, pepper and rosemary into the opening of the duck. Place duck in roasting pan on its back and roast for approximately 30 minutes. Remove fat. Add carrot and onion. Roast duck on one side for 25 minutes, turn over and roast for 25 minutes. Roasting time: Between one hour and 15 minutes to one hour and 20 minutes. Basting is not necessary. Remove the duck from the oven and pour off fat. Add to the remains on the bottom of the pan, the bay leaf, red wine and roast meat stock. Bring to a boil until mixture is reduced to one-half. Skim the fat off and set aside. SAUCE: Heat sugar with one teaspoon of water until caramelized to a dark blonde color. Add vinegar, the juice of one orange, ½ lemon and reduced stock. Bring to a boil. Dissolve arrowroot in a little cold water. Add to the boiling mixture to thicken, stirring thoroughly. Correct the seasoning. The color of the sauce should be a rich, deep brown. Strain the sauce into a sauce boat. Section the 2nd orange. Place duck on oval platter. Garnish with sections of the second orange. Pour the Grande Marnier over the duck. Set on fire and baste with large spoon in big motions until the flames die away. Add sauce and choose garnishing. Carve the duck and serve. Yield: 2 to 3 servings.

THE PLAZA'S CRABMEAT REMICK

½ teaspoon English dry mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
Pinch of celery salt
Dash of Tabasco Sauce
Dash of Worcestershire Sauce
2 cups mayonnaise
½ cup chili sauce
Dash of tarragon vinegar
3 cups cooked, flaked crabmeat (about 1 pound)
6 slices bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces

In a bowl, blend together mustard, paprika, celery salt, and tarragon vinegar. Divide flaked crabmeat among 30 to 36 small scrubbed clam shells. Heat filled shells in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 10 minutes. Spoon sauce over crabmeat and top each with a piece of bacon. Place shells under broiler until sauce browns and bacon crisps. Fresh crabmeat would be ideal, but if obtaining it creates an inconvenience, canned crabmeat or Frozen Alaska Crab may be used. Yield: 6 servings.

Another sharing — a letter and recipes from Mrs. J. Valente, Walpole. (Our thanks!)

Mrs. Valente writes: "Thank you so much for the recipe for Mama Leone's Rum Cake. I truly appreciated it and my husband will be forever grateful. He said, 'Make sure you don't lose it again.' To insure that, I copied it twice. The only thing I do differently to the recipe is I use vanilla pudding and pie filling and add cocoa to one-half that mixture. Saturday night I had my uncle from California, my brother from New York and a few others to celebrate Angelo's birthday and I don't have to tell you how they raved about the cake. I frosted it with Dream Whip and it really looked heavenly. To show my appreciation, I'm sending along two good recipes. One, the Swedish Meat Balls I use as an hors d'oeuvre when I have guests. Once again, thank you."

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

3 slices white bread (crusts removed)
¾ cup milk
1 pound hamburg
1 small onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon ground allspice
1 egg
Fine bread crumbs

Soak bread slices in milk. Grind hamburg with onion. Add bread slices, salt, pepper, sugar, allspice and mix well. Blend in egg. Form into walnut size balls and roll in fine bread crumbs. Arranged in greased baking pan and bake for 20 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

FLORENTINE BOWKNOT COOKIES
(Delicious — Easy to Make)

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Oil for deep fat frying
1 cup confectioners' sugar

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar into a bowl. Cut in margarine until well blended. Stir in eggs and mix thoroughly. Knead on floured board until dough is elastic. Let dough rest one hour. Divide into 4 parts. Roll each to an 8-inch by 10-inch rectangle. Cut into strips 8-inches long and ¾-inch wide. Tie each strip in loose knot. Fry in hot (375 degrees) oil, 3 or 4 at a time, until golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon and drop on paper towel. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Yield: 4 dozen.

Weddings

THE WEDDING OF DEBRA H. SINOFSKY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Sinofsky of West Newton; and Howard M. Tarlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tarlow of Newtonville, took place June 30 in the garden of the Vale in Waltham. The bride is a graduate of Garland Junior College and is attending Northeastern University. Her husband graduated from the University of Massachusetts and will attend graduate school in the field of public administration. The couple lives in Brookline.

Elizabeth Hamid bride of William Bailey Roberts

In the Roman Catholic Church of the Epiphany, Longport, N.J., Elizabeth Patricia Hamid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamid Jr. of Margate and Princeton, N.J. became the bride of William Bailey Roberts, son of Mrs. Raymond B. Roberts of Waban, and the late Mr. Roberts.

The service July 27 was performed by Msgr. Joseph Stoerline of Vineland, N.J. and Rev. Edward Nelson of Goffstown, N.H.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire gown of solid Brussel lace fashioned with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. The yoke of net was embroidered with tiny pearls. The shoulder veil of matching lace was mounted mantilla style. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, bells of Ireland, stephanotis, and ivy leaves.

Miss Heidi Anne Muench of Palmyra, N.Y., was maid of honor. Miss Carol Ann Stokinger of Quincy, and Miss Althea Megargee of Ocean City, N.J., were bridesmaids. Miss Christine Hamid, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore long dresses of nile dotted swiss, trimmed with white guipure and the flower girl wore a dress of white organza over a taffeta green slip. The attendants wore large braid hats draped with matching nile tulle. They carried bouquets of pink African daisies and baby's breath.

Clayton P. Gillette of Ann Arbor, Mich. was best man. Ushers were George Hamid III and Herbert Hamid, brothers of the bride, Raymond Roberts, brother of the groom, and Whitmer H. Jones of Manchester, N.H.

Mrs. Roberts graduated from Princeton Day School and received her B.A. magna cum laude from Mt. Holyoke College in June. Her father is the owner of the Hamid-Morton Circus and the New Jersey State Fair and president of the Steel Pier in Atlantic City.

Mr. Roberts was graduated from Rivers Country Day School and cum laude from Amherst College in 1972. He is presently a third year student at the Boston College Law School. His father was a senior partner at the Boston law firm of Hale and Dorr.

ORT meets in Newton

Community leaders from throughout the New England area convened in Newton this week for the historic first board meeting of the newly-formed New England District of Women's American ORT.

The occasion, which was marked by special Open House ceremonies at the district's headquarters at Gateway Center, also served as the formal inauguration of an entirely new level of organization for Women's American ORT in the six-state area.

Mrs. Herbert Brown, of Sharon, first president of the district, noted that its purpose is to provide more comprehensive and coordinated administration of all ORT activities in New England, including membership, expansion, and community service.

Presently, the district encompasses more than 54 chapters, organized geographically into five regions and three chapters-at-large, and comprising well over 6,000 ORT members.

New unit at hospital used for first time

The first patient to use the new acute dialysis unit at Newton - Wellesley Hospital was put on the hemodialysis machine at 8 a.m. Friday, July 19.

Hospitalized for a ruptured abdominal aortic aneurysm, the patient experienced renal (kidney) failure and underwent hemodialysis for the first time Friday. Hemodialysis cleanses the blood when the kidneys fail to rid the body of toxins.

According to Dr. Henry M. Yager, Newton - Wellesley's chief of nephrology, the average acute renal failure lasts from one week to one month. Hemodialysis usually is performed three times a week until kidney function improves. The hemodialysis process takes four to five hours each time.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann (center) accepts a check in the amount of $300 from Dominic Messina (left) and Joseph Capalbo (right) of the Sons of Italy, Umberto Primo Lodge of Newton. O'Dea honored by Heart Assn.

Dr. Arthur O'Dea of Newton recently received a certificate of appreciation for outstanding service to the American Heart Association, Greater Boston Chapter.

Affiliated with Newton-Wellesley Hospital, O'Dea is the chief of pathology, director of medical laboratories and director of the School of Medical Technology.

The Greater Boston Heart Association wanted to demonstrate the feasibility of identifying young people who might be "at risk" of cardiovascular disease in middle life though screening of blood pressure and blood serum cholesterol. O'Dea and Newton-Wellesley Hospital made possible the development of the pilot Risk Factor Screening and education program in the seventh grades of Newton schools.

Mann appointed Bicentennial officer

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has been named vice-chairman of the Mayor's Committee on the Bicentennial as part of the nationwide program designed to celebrate the country's 200th birthday in 1976.

The appointment was announced by Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco, president of the U. S. Conference of Mayors, which is working with the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in helping to plan the anniversary for the nation.

In accepting this responsibility, Mayor Mann remarked, "I am particularly pleased that I have been appointed a vice-chairman of the Mayors' Committee on the Bicentennial. It is my belief that by stimulating interest and encouraging participation in our nation's Bicentennial celebration, we can rekindle America's sense of pride in her history and accomplishments."

"The City of Newton is planning exciting Bicentennial events scheduled to begin in April. These include a "Discovery Network," which is a walking-bicycle-car tour of historic sites, a Country Fair on the Green, a Regatta at Crystal Lake, a People's Fair at City Hall and many other events pinpointing Newton's role in the founding of our nation."

As vice-chairman of the Mayrs' Committee, Mann will help direct and encourage Bicentennial projects in his city. He will also meet with other mayors in nearby areas to stimulate interest among cities which have not yet begun Bicentennial activities.

"It is important and fitting that the chief elected officers of cities across the country direct and lead Bicentennial events in their cities," Mayor Alioto said in appointing Mayor Mann.

"It is in the nation's cities that the real celebration of the nation's 200th birthday will take place. Not only will these celebrations help honor the nation's heritage, they can also denote the unique and individual history of cities across the country."

A unique and successful partnership of a community, a university and nature is continuing this summer at the Hale Reservation in Westwood. There, amid trees, trails and beaches, a day camp is being conducted where children and teachers are enjoying the summer while learning about themselves and each other.

Sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., the camp operates on a five-day basis for eight weeks each summer and involves approximately 230 children from Newton and surrounding communities.

It is directed by Michael Gardner, senior supervisor of the centers, with the assistance of John S. Dacey, chairman of the educational psychology department of the Boston College School of Education.

By day the children, who range from 7-12 years old, learn and enjoy swimming, boating, arts and crafts, rope work, and many songs and games.

For the camp's staff members, however, this is only part of their experience. Fifteen of the 40 counselors are students of Dacey at Boston College. Dacey, who acts as both a counselor and consultant to the camp, and Gardner conduct seminars each evening for these students.

In these meetings, the day's activities are discussed and related to what they have learned about children and education in the classroom during the school year.

Three courses, fully accredited by Boston College, have developed from this blend of school and community, now in its fourth year. The evening seminars fall under the headings of educational psychology and child development. The daily interaction with the young campers is also considered a "field" course, known as practicum in educational psychology.

Dacey is enthusiastic about all aspects of the camp program, ranging from the child-staff ratio of about six to one, to the learning experience offered to both children and counselors.

"The activities are designed to give the children increased self-confidence as well as an awareness of each other. The camp provides each child with an opportunity to interact with many types of children."

As for the student-counselors' benefits, Dacey describes the courses offered as dealing with "human development and interaction . . . we work with the kids all day and talk about their activities at night. In this way we learn from first-hand experience instead of just from a textbook."

The Hale Reservation camp runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and is open to children from all communities in the Newton area. The camp is divided into two-week sessions which run until the end of August. There are still some places open for the later weeks.

Interested parents may find out more about the program by calling the Newton Community Service Centers at 969-5906.

GUIDELINES ON ALCOHOL PROBLEMS
DO YOU ONLY GET DRUNK AT PARTIES?
Many normally moderate drinkers have this problem unintentionally. It's partly due to the rapid-fire drinking pace generated by the excitement of new surroundings, new people, new stories. It's partly because the drinks are apt to be stronger, or sneakier, than your customary ones.
High drinking speed, and high content quickly build up the alcohol level in the blood (and brain) to intoxicating levels. (It takes the body two hours to burn off 1½ ounces of hard liquor.)
So take it easier . . . and you can take it longer. Avoid the "party drunk" label . . . and also, all kinds of trouble.

Athletes assemble for district "Good Sports Competition"

By TOM GRAVES

A 26-year-old school teacher from Winthrop ran a spectacular 100-yard dash en route to a first place finish in the men's section of the Newton district "Good Sports Competition."

Forty-five men and 20 women competed at Newton North High School. They had qualified for the district meet by being among the top five finishers in 10 local meets on July 13.

Three males and three females qualified for the final of the competition, to be held Saturday, Aug. 3, at Boston College Stadium.

The "Good Sports Competition," sponsored by Westinghouse Broadcasting Company and the Massachusetts Jaycees, was designed to find the best male and female athletes in Massachusetts. The top male and female point scorers at the final will receive $1,000 worth of travel anywhere in the world. There are additional prizes for runners-up.

Rip Dyer of Winthrop was the male standout at the Newton district meet with 75 points. Second in the men's division was Alex Zedros of Melrose, 51 points, and Ed Farrell of Stoneham was third with 43.5 points.

Nick Pasquarosa of Newton barely missed qualifying for the final, finishing in fourth place with 42 points.

Mimi Clarke of North Haven, Conn., was first in the women's division with 88.5 points. Ms. Clarke was adopted by many Newton fans after gaining first place honors in the local meet held at Newton North on July 13.

Second to Ms. Clarke, as she was in the local meet, was Diane Fidurko of Needham, 69.5 points. Carolyn Graf was third with 61.6 points.

The competition was divided into nine events. Dyer, a former captain of the University of Massachusetts track team, had three first place finishes, and scored high also in three other events.

Dyer ran the 100 in 10.4 seconds, which fellow competitor Fred Yaitanes said is equivalent to a 9.9 or 10.0 on a hard track with starting blocks and track shoes. Yaitanes, the top male in Newton's local meet, finished tenth in the district competition.

Dyer was also first in the shot put and ties for first in street hockey shooting. Dyer edged Norman Kaplan by one quarter of an inch in the shot put with a throw of 44 feet. He was tied with three other males in street hockey shooting, making 17 of 20 attempts.

Dyer was also second in the long jump, third in the obstacle course, and fourth in the football kick. He failed to get points in the baseball throwing, free throw shooting, and 880.

Ms. Clarke finished first in four of the nine women's events. She won the obstacle course in 20.2 seconds, the 880 in 2:47, and the 100 in 12.6 seconds. A jump of 13'11¾" gave her first place in the long jump.

The 18-year old Ms. Clarke also tied for second in the free throw shooting, and collected points in three other events as well.

The day's most exciting event was the 880. In an early men's heat, Barry Harsip of Newton lowered his winning time of the local meet by more than five seconds, finishing in 2:10.8.

These times did not hold up either, however, as Mike Scanlon of Dedham ran a 2:05.1 and won the event. This was more than 10 seconds faster than the best 880 run in the Newton local meet two weeks earlier.

Christine Brown of Waltham gave a startling performance in the free throw shooting, making 19 of 20 attempts. McGillivray was the top male with 18 baskets.

In the baseball throwing, John Hennessey of Arlington made eight of 20 attempts, the target being the inside of a tire 60 feet away. In the women's competition, Diane Clement of Lynn made eight throws from 45 feet away.

Zedros had the best time in he obstacle course, 16.6 seconds. Farrell won the football kick with a punt of 156'2". Geraldine Brown of Waltham had the best women's soccer kick, 122'1".

Geraldine Brown also won the women's shot put with a throw of 27'4½". Carol O'Neil of Boston was first in the women's street hockey shooting, making 16 shots.

Pasquarosa, who finished third in the Newton local competition, was the top point getter of the Newton athletes involved in the district meet.

Pasquarosa tied for second in the baseball throwing, tied for third in the 100, and scored points in four other events also.

Ms. Fidurko had perhaps the most well-balanced performance of any competitor. Shee scored points in all nine events, placing second in two events, fourth in two others, and tieing for fourth in a fifth event.

James Blackburn of Newton finished seventh in the men's division with 34.5 points. A guidance counselor in Marblehead and a track coach at Newton South, Blackburn was fifth in the Newton local meet. In the district competition, he was second in the 100 and tied for second in the baseball throwing. The 36-year old Blackburn scored points in two other events also.

Yaitanes, a physical education teacher at Newton North, finished tenth with 28.5 points. Yaitanes' best finishes were a second place run in the obstacle course and a third place in the shot put.

Harsip, a former standout soccer player at Newton High and Brandeis, finished in 12th place with 25 points. Harsip was tied for second in the free throw shooting and finsished fourth in the 880. He also scored points in two other events.

Two other Newton competitors, John Bonistalli and Jennenne Pasquarosa, were forced to drop out of competition because of injuries suffered at the district meet. Bonistalli was second in the men's division in the Newton local meet.

Jane Cedrone picked up points in the street hockey shooting at the district meet.

Bob Alkon, president of the Newton Jaycees and one of the organizers of the local and district meets in Newton, expressed appreciation this week for the assistance the Red Cross, Recreation Director Russell Halloran and the Newton Recreation Department, and the Newton Police Department gave in running the competition. He also thanked the district Jaycee chapters.

Gambling draws the biggest pro crowds

Sports Spice

Commentary by Eddie Andelman

Although it's a sad commentary on the condition of professional sports in this country, there is overwhelming evidence for the conclusion that unless the average paying spectator is able to gamble on his or her sport through bookmakers or illegal football cards, the chances of drawing large crowds are almost nil.

No offense is meant to the "purists" out there who are sincere in their love of sports, but I, for one am not the ostrich type with my head buried in the sand, totally unwilling to talk about the tabu subject of gambling in sports. Not only may an accurate correlation between the game of sporting events and the volume of gambling be drawn, but there is a definite similar allied pattern developing between television audiences and betting, which the Monday Night ABC pro-football game has conclusively demonstrated.

It would be totally foolhardy to say that as many people view Wide World of Sports seeing cliff diving for pennies from Acapulco as watch ABC at 9 on Monday nights, for whoever heard of a bookie taking action on events which are pre-taped?

Take the case of soccer in this country. The underworld does not take bets on soccer matches say in the leagues which the Boston Minutemen or Astros play in, so we have as a consequence a few purists outnumbered 10 to 1 by empty seats, and as a consequence of public apathy, radio and television contracts are eight non-existent or highly non-lucrative.

The new World Tennis and Football leagues are two more examples of professional team sports on which the public cannot easily bet, and therefore are not interested in closely following via the media or watching in person.

On the other hand, though, if the World Football League can survive the first year and keep a national television contract in force, the bookies will take action after watching the form, for their customers will demand the right to bet, as nothing can be more frustrating to most gamblers, than having to watch a game without some sort of betting action.

Anyone over the age of thirty clearly remembers the gambling section in Fenway Park's right field grandstand, who attended every home game year in and year out, and looking back upon it now, perhaps they were a harbinger of things to come.

Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell's claim that most fans he talks with are against doubleheaders seems to be absurd since those fans who are against it have the option of leaving after one game. As far as I know, customers are not locked in the park against their will. Personally, I have never met a person yet who is not delighted by a bargain.

I wish that they would move the America's Cup Yacht races and trials to either the Okefenokee swamps, the Straits of Magellan or at least the Baltic Sea, because the proximity to Newport leads to so much coverage, it's driving me back to drinking Moxie.

I'd like to see a golfer win the Abraham Lincoln Celebrity Golf Tournament with a total of four score and seven strokes.

\+ + +

Wouldn't water polo be even a wilder game if it were played in a pool filled with draft beer? For that matter, polo would be more exciting if the players rode atop wild zebras But on the other hand, how would we recognize the black and white shirted referees? Besides, Prince Phillip doesn't own any zebras anyway, and the royal budget is already overdrawn, what with a brand new solid gold pumpkin shaped coronation coach.

\+ + +

I wouldn't mind going on Safari with Barbara Borin, Don Meredith, Ken Hodge, Randy Vataha or Ned Martin, but please set up separate tents if Oscar Robinson, Robert Schmertz or any member of the Dallas Cowboys shows up to ruin my time.

\+ + +

Swimming must provide excellent conditioning for athletes because I have never heard of a duck who required corrected knee surgery.

\+ + +

Lately, there is such a proliferation on the sports pages of legal and medical reports, ads for balding men and swedish massages, race results, and standings, that there is nothing left to read. Now would you consider that the good or the bad news?

\+ + +

My personal prejudice is speaking right now, since I am a partial owner and creator of the WEEI Sports Wrap-up, but I am addicted to the show which shortly will be emulated in two other larger markets.

The 2 hour all sports news format featuring scores, direct reports, race results, commentaries and interviews is the radio sports show of the future, replacing the nightly call-in sports shows which are boring except when big trades or championship games occur.

\+ + +

I have instructed my personal attorney to have me committed if I show even the slightest interest at any time in the Bob Hope, Andy Williams, Dinah Shore or Rutherford B. Hayes (or is it Gabby Hayes) Celebrity tournaments.

\+ + +

The Blue-Grey; East-West; North-South Coaches All-American and the Fiesta Bowl games usually bore me, but last year they didn't because I forgot to watch them and will make it a point to extend the streak this year.

\+ + +

To do anything this year, Tommy Harper must have a sensational second half, similar to last season, and Rick Wise must also come through. Darryl Johnson is obviously a good manger, but he must have the guns to utilize.

Right now, it's off to Pawtucket for me, in order to see the next Red Sox superstar, Jim Rice, for myself. After all, can one rely on an outside opinion after the disappointments ofNorm Zauchin, Dick Gernet, Gene Stephenson and Dwight Evans?

John Lugas, manager of the new Almys department store in the Walpole Mall promises exceptional savings during the store's grand opening next week. The company's buyers have sepnt days in the market, working with their New York buying office, and contacting all their resources to come up with special buys.

John Lugas is a 15-year employee of Gorin Stores Inc., the parent company of Almys and resides with his wife and two children in South Boston. Lugas was formerly manager of Almys Methuen, Burlington and Danvers.

Manufacturers who have been Almys prime suppliers for years have furnished merchandise to sell at cost or below cost. . . just for this event.

Tax relief for elders

"Is there property tax relief for elderly people in Massachusetts if needed?" asked a caller to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. The caller was told that there was held if certain conditions were met.

If you are 70 years of age and have lived in Massachusetts for at least 10 years and owned property for any 5 of those years, you may be eligible.

If you are single and have gross receipts of less than $6,000 a year and a total worth of $40,000 (assessed valuation of house plus bank account) or if you are married with combined receipts less than $7,000 and a total worth of $45,000; you may file for an exemption with your local Board of Assessors before December 15 of each year.

Two laws have been passed in this legislative session which refer to property tax aid for the elderly. Chapter 347 of 1974 now allows deduction of the minimum social security payment (about $1080-year) from income to be considered eligible.

For those over 65, Chapter 287 of 1974 allows for deferral of all or part of the property tax if the above criterial are met, and if gross income does not exceed $20,000.

If you think you are eligible for tax relief under either of these laws check with your local assessors office.

This question is one of the many that are received by the League of Women Voters Voter information Phone. After August 5th, individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 and 2 p.m.

The number in the Boston are is 357-5800; outside the Boston metropolitan area callers should call the toll free number: 1-800-882-1649.

Sheriff Eisenstadt call for death penalty

Suffolk County Sheriff Thomas S. Eisenstadt has pledged his support of legislation calling for a mandatory life sentence for armed entry into an occupied private home. Eisenstadt's remarks were made at a recent news conference announcing his candidacy for re-election.

"Let the armed intruder be forewarnde," Eisenstadt said, "that when re-elected I shall strive for the enactment of legislation calling for the mandatory penalty of life imprisonment for anyone who vilates the sanctity of another's home, when occupied, by invading it while armed with a weapon."

In his statement, Sheriff Eisenstadt also reiterated his support of the reinstatement of the death penalty in Massachusetts.

Eisenstadt cited this as the only alternative toward halting the soaring rate of capital crime in the state.

New star in "Bird's World" now at Franklin Park Zoo

The newly opened flight cage at "A Bird's World" at the Franklin Park Zoo already has an established star. He is a White-crested Hornbill from Africa. He's very friendly and usually stakes out s spot at the entrance to greet visitors as they enter. He has a snow white crest of feathers on his head—hence the name white-crested—and white tips on his wings. The rest of his body is black. One of the two birds in the world with eyelashes (the other is the ostrich), this hornbill has a light blue area around each eye that makes his look as if he just applied too much eye shadow.

The hornbill is just one of the hundreds of colorful birds that can be visited in "A Bird's World," which is alive with Maribou storks, Sarus cranes, toucans, pelicans, geese, ducks, swans, seagulls and many more.

You enter the flight cage through a set of double doors (they help keep the birds on the inside) and walk through the cage on an elevated walkway. Along the way you can pause to explore the meadow, marsh and shore environments in the cage. From a bathing pool at the top of the hillside, clear water cascades down a gentle waterfall, and wanders through the environments on a rocky stream bed.

Outside the flight cage is the three-level waterfowl pond with delicate pink flamingos quietly wading in their pool, and ducks, geese and other water birds gliding about the large pond.

A lovely way to spend an afternoon is to explore "A Bird's World" at the Franklin Park Zoo. A Bird's World is located just down the greeting from the Children's Zoo.

Driving hazards during road construction

Commissioner of Public Safety, John F. Kehoe, Jr. warned the motoring public relative to the operation of motor vehicles on highways under construction throughout the Commonwealth.

This warning was prompted by a recent tragic accident on Interstate Route 93, in the town of Wilmington. A twenty-one year old male operator, travelling inside of a barreled off construction area, was burned to death after his vehicle collided with a parked Gradal construction vehicle, parked well inside and barreled off area.

Motorists, when traffic is heavy, will often pull their vehicles inside the barreled off area to make time and to advance on the congested traffic. Commissioner Kehoe stated that this is a very dangerous practice as was so graphically demonstrated by this recent fatal accident.

Commissioner Kehoe, further stated that, the Massachusetts State Police patrols will be especially watchful for the violator who uses these barreled off areas and thereby attempt to revent this type of accident.

Shaw's "Misalliance" now playing at Loeb Theatre

George Bernard Shaw's comedy, "Misalliance" opened Wednesday (July 31) at 8 p.m. at the Loeb Drama Center as the third production of the season for the Harvard Summer Repertory Theatre.

Directed by Tunc Yalman, the cast features Bramwell Fletcher, a lading authority on Shaw. The well known actor has presented his acclaimed one-man show as the Irish playwright in Dublin, and New York, as well as on an extended tour of the United States. Also featured in the cast are Virginia Payne, Louis Turenne, Jessica Richman, David Aston-Reese, Patrick Young, Jonathan Frakes, Alison Stanley and Patrick Clear.

Shaw takes the side of women's emancipation again in this witty and scintilating comedy of ideas and characters!

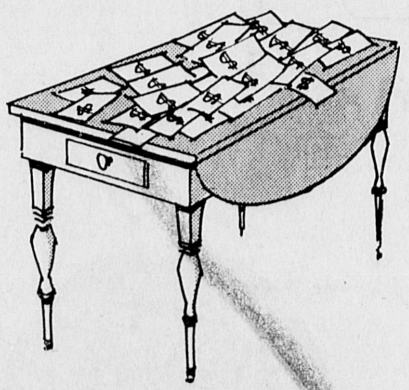
NEW ROLE FOR TOMA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tony Musante, whose television series "Toma" was canceled this season, will appear in a guest role with Richard Jaeckel in an episode of "Police Story."

Make the kitchen table test . . .



Take 20 ten dollar bills, and spread them on your kitchen table.

Look at them carefully and you'll see a lot of shoes for the kids, — food for the table, a lot of bills that can be paid, or even a lot of good times. Two hundred dollars will buy a lot of necessities and a lot of pleasures.

Generally, this is the amount of money that people have saved when they purchased their cars from us after shopping other dealers.

So . . . if you're thinking of a new Ford or used car, remember the kid's shoes, — the meat and potatoes on the table — all the little things that two hundred dollars will buy — then see us.

There's a rainbow of reasons to visit Boston's Museum of Science this summer. A bright green quetzal; the shimmering hues of the aurora borealis; brilliant blue, green, and gold copper ores; and the blinding white of a sunwashed beach are all brought under the Museum's roof in a variety of colorful temporary exhibits and programs there.

The quetzal, an exotic green bird considered sacred by the Indians of Guatamala's rainforests, is now in danger of extinction. A mount of this extraordinarily beautiful bird is a current feature of a changing second floor display that draws on the Museum's extensive and varied natural history collections.

Sharing this exhibit area for the summer is an assortment of native, primary, and secondary copper. One of the few minerals found uncombined with others, pure, or native copper, has the dull gold color usually associated with copper.

Some primary copper, formed when molten rock forces its way up into the earth's crust and deposits steam and gases on the surrounding older rock, has traditionally been called "fool's gold" because of its glittering appearance. Other forms of primary copper are blue and purple. Secondary copper (primary copper that has decomposed) often takes the form of green malachite and blue azurite, both of which have been used extensively in jewelry.

In the Charles Hayden Planetarium at the Museum, the colors are those of the aurora borealis, rainbows, sunrises, and thunderstorms, as these and other dazzling displays of summer skies are recreated in the 316-seat theatre. "Technicolor Sky," given daily and on Friday nights through September 1, calls on the versatility of the Zeiss projector to pack all these natural phenomena into an impressive 40-minute program. Admission to the Planetarium is 50c above Museum admission.

The colors of the ocean's edge, a forest glade, and a blossom-dotted field take on a clarity of shape in the Museum's summer exhibition of photographs by nature photographer Eliot Porter. The Washburn Gallery display of 70 prints represents the work of 20 years, produced during travels across the country and around the world.

Color movies also highlight summer at the Science Museum, with a schedule of daily science films through early September. "Yellowstone Park" will be shown through August 1, and August 11 through 19, alternating with "Wonderful World of Bikes" August 2 through 10. "Hoof and Horn" and "Predators to Pachyderms," two Museum of Science films, will be given August 20 through September 2, and "To Catch a Rhino," a presentation of the South African Tourist Authority, will close the film series the week of September 3 through 12.

A current major exhibition in the Museum's Design Gallery, "Color Around Us," explores the ever-present significance of color in our daily lives. Models, many pushbutton components, and audio-visual programs underscore the role of color in nature, industry, symbolism, and communications.

There is no charge above seum admission for any of se presentations except netarium programs. The seum is open every day il 5 p.m. and until 10 p.m. ..days. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for ages 5-16 and over 65, and half price on Friday nights.

Take MBTA Green Line, Lechmere car, to Science Park. Those who drive may park in the garage for a reasonable fee.

Astrology

Compulsive Gambling

Q. I enjoy reading your column very much and I am truly a believer in astrology. Would you please tell me my prospects? I was born on August 16, 1948 at 1:23 A.M. in Boston, Mass. Also could you please tell me what kind of gamblers Leos are?

George

A. Not all folks born with the Sun in Leo are gamblers. Those that are, range from those who only occasionally play games of chance or take a risk to gain some advantage, to those who are compulsive gamblers finding it difficult to resist the impulse to do so. The difference is indicated astrologically by the aspects from other planets to the Sun in Leo, the Fifth House of the chart, aspects to the ruler of the Fifth House, Etc.

In addition to the Sun being in Leo at the moment of your birth the planets Pluto, Mercury and Saturn were all in Leo also, close to your Sun position and all in aspect to the planet Mars which was in "conjunction" aspect with Neptune in your Fifth House.

You could if you are not very careful develop into a first class gambler with extreme confidence in your capabilities. There are apt to be periods in your life when you may even do very well but "lady luck," your hunches, or personal system will not always stand up.

It is not only for financial or material gain that you may be tempted to gamble but you could experience a certain personal pleasure in doing so.

You are attracted to that which is mysterious, the occult and that which involves intuitive powers and is beyond ordinary reasoning. You know what you want and are not likely to let anyone or anything stand in your way of getting it.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth and time of day if known and question to ASK OSCAR, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

FEEDING YOUR DOG: FACT VS. FANCY
By RICHARD W. BRYANT, Director of Education Animal Rescue League of Boston

The variety of foods available to dog owners are almost as numerous as the different theories on what constitutes a good dog diet. Here is a little quiz to test your knowledge of feeding fact and fallacy. Are the following statements true or false?

1. Meat is a dog's natural food.
2. Dogs do not need bones.
3. Table scraps can be a good dietary supplement.
4. A dog should chew his food.
5. Sugar and sweets cause worms.
6. Raw eggs make a dog's coat shiny.

1. False. Dogs require a balanced diet. Even the house dog's wild ancestor which killed for food ate not only flesh but also grain and vegetable mtter in the slain animal's digestive tract.

2. True. As long as a dog gets calcium from his regular food, there is nothing in a bone that his system needs. An occasional bone (only large ones such as beef knuckle or shank) can help prevent tartar forming on the teeth, but biscuits perform the same function. Small sharp bones such as poultry or chops can be very harmful to the mouth and if swallowed can puncture the intestinal tract.

3. True. Meat, eggs, vegetables, or other leftovers (except rich foods or pastries) can be a tasty addition to the menu, provided your dog's basic diet is a complete, balanced dog food. Be sure though that the table scraps never make up more than 15 percent o the diet or you risk destroying the balance of nutrients provided in the commercial dog food.

4. False. Almost all digestion takes place in the dog's stomach. Since his teeth are designed for tearing rather than chewing, it is natural for a dog to "woli" his food down without chewing.

5. False. Worms are not "caused" by sugar or any other foods. All digestible carbohydrates are converted to simple sugars in the digestive tract. These dietary sugars provided energy.

6. False. Dogs should never be fed uncooked eggs. Raw egg white interferes with the absorption of biotin, a vitamin needed for proper digestion. A well-balanced diet and regular brushing and grooming are the keys to a shiny coat.

Genuine commitment essential Christian Science youth told

Genuine spiritual commitment is essential to individual purpose and accomplishment, more than 7,000 young Christian Scientists were told at an International Youth Meeting in Boston this week (July 29-31).

Some 500 young people from Massachusetts attended the sessions held at the newly-completed Christian Science Center.

Together with young members from other lands, they explored the theme of the conference, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" a Bible verse from the book of Acts.

In this state, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, has 78 branch churches and societies not including 22 Christian Science college organizations, according to J. Buroughs Stokes, the committee on publication for Massachusetts.

Questions of special interest to young people, such as "What's my purpose? What shall I do? Where am I headed? How can I find the right answers? How can I fulfill my promise in life?" were discussed in depth at the meeting.

The chairman of the Christian Science board of directors, DeWitt John, said: "The answers come when our career goal is to know God and love Him, to demonstrate His nature, and to help and heal others."

Arthur P. Wuth, Otto Bertschi, Mrs. Lenore D. Hanks, and David E. Sleeper, also participated in the meeting. The five directors make up the composite executive board for Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world.

Individual commitment to genuine spiritual activity was underscored by speakers from Africa, Asia, Australia, and South America, as well as Europe and North America.

Among the local participants were the treasurer of The Mother Church, Marc Engeler of Boston; Bunny McBride and Deborah Huebsch of Boston; Regina Wilson of Cambridge; Jon Harder of Lexington; and John M. Roy of Holbrook.

Voting information available from League of Women Voters

Several important races will be decided in the Sept. 10 primary election, and in order to vote, a person must be registered by Aug. 13.

The League of Women Voters of Newton urges all Newton residents who will be at least 18 years old on election day to register at the Election Commission at City Hall on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Alan Licarie, Executive Secretary of the Election Commission, has announced special registration hours for people unable to get to City Hall on weekdays. The Election Commission will be open on Saturday, Aug. 10, from noon until 10 p.m.

Registered voters who will be out of town on the day of the primary, Sept. 10, or on the day of the general election, Nov. 5, can apply now for absentee ballot. Licarie urges voters to apply early.

Application for absentee ballots must be made in writing to the Election Commission, stating the applicant's name, address in Newton, and the address outside of Newton where the ballot is to be sent.

For the primary, registered Democrats will receive the Democratic ballot and registered Republicans will receive the Republican ballot. Those not registered in either party must specify in their application which ballot they wish to receive.

Completed absentee ballots must be received by the Election Commission by 8 p.m. on Election Day. If there is no address to which the ballot can be sent or time is too short for mailing, a voter may apply for an absentee ballot and vote at City Hall, prior to departure.

Licarie has announced two changes in polling places in the coming election. Voters in Ward 4, precinct 1, will no longer vote at Burr School, but will go to the Branch Library in Auburndale. Voters in Ward 4, precinct 3, will no longer vote at the Branch Library; they will go to Winslow Hall at Lasell Junior College.

Available, free of charge, at the Newton Free Library are two pamphlets published by the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts and the Secretary of State. Stand Up and Be Counted contains general voting and registration information. Vote Absentee describes procedures for voting absentee in national, state, local and primary elections.

For further information on registration and voting, call the Election Commission at 244-4700 or the League of Women Voters of Newton at 332-0590.

Fink announces appointments

Three appointments to the staff of the Newton Public Schools were announced last week by Superintendent Aaron Fink.

Robert T. Bruzzese has been named the new supervisor of attendance; William H. Smith has been appointed assistant principal of the Weeks Junior High School; and Shirley Goldwyn has been named publications consultant.

Bruzzese will fill the position being vacated on Sept. 30 by Jerry R. Angino, who is retiring after 40 years with the Newton schools.

As supervisor of attendance, Bruzzese will be responsible for the attendance of all children who are resident of the city. He will also serve as a consultant to principals, housemasters, counselors and parents regarding daily adjustment problems of children. Other responsibilities will include the preparation of case histories required by official agencies, preparing families for a referral toa special school and agencies, and placement of all children.

Bruzzese received a B.S. degree in U.S. history and community recreation from the Boston University School of Education, and an M.S.S.S. from the Boston University School of Social Work. Since 1972 he has been the director of a group home facility in Cambridge for eight emotionally disturbed youngsters. He has also served since 1971 as a community coordinator of the Walker School for Children in Needham, and as a partner in a private counseling firm, The Family Workshop in Wellesley.

Other previous professional experience has included positions as child life supervisor at the Walker Home for Children in Needham, recreation therapist at McLean Hospital in Belmont, and group worker at Butler Hospital in Providence. Bruzzese is a member of the National Association of Social Workers and the New England Association of Child Care Workers.

Smith holds B.A., M.Ed. and Ed.D. degrees in education administration from the University of Massachusetts. For the past year he has been director of the Interdistrict Transfer Program, a federally funded joint effort by six suburban school districts in Greater Boston and the Metropolitan Council for Equal Educational Opportunity to reduce minority student isolation through the transfer of minority students from Boston to the suburban districts.

From 1970-1973 he served as headmaster of the SASSI Preparatory School Street Academy System of Springfield, Inc. SASSI Preparatory School was an urban model school specifically designed to serve casualties of the conventional school system dropouts and long term suspendees. For a year prior to that, he was administrative assistant to the headmaster, Harlem Preparatory School.

Newton residents in summer institute

Thirty-one men and women from the Boston area are participating in Boston College's summer institute in remedial reading and learning disabilities.

The six-week seminar and practicum is being offered for the second year on a graduate and post-graduate level to reading and learning disabilities teachers, supervisors, classroom and resource teachers, consultants and other specialists in the fields.

"Historically there has not been very much communication at all between the two," explained Lillian Buckley, director of the Institute at Boston College. "One of the main purposes then is to open up this communication — the learning disabilities specialists working with reading problems and vice versa. No longer can there be this division — one person saying that if the child is taught to read his learning difficulties will resolve, and the other saying that if concentration is put on the child's learning disabilities that the reading will improve. The joining together of these specialties is necessary to provide the best possible learning situation for the special needs child."

During the six weeks besides seminars, classroom work and special speakers, the institute students from Boston College work with children at the Memorial School in South Natick, whose Title I summer school program has helped many special needs children each summer.

As Ms. Buckley explained, while all the children there have reading problems, some also have vision, hearing or mobility problems, or suffer from hypertension. The Boston College clinicians study techniques for diagnosing and treating both reading and learning difficulties.

Along with the Title I summer school some Boston College students work in a special clinic designed for those children suffering from severe learning disabilities and reading problems.

The following Newton residents have participated in the summer institute: Beth Davis (assistant), 47 Chatham Rd., Newton Highlands; and Lois Parker, 86 Deborah Rd., Newton.

Media institute held at B.C.

Seven Newton residents and-or educators attended the Boston College summer Media Institute June 25-July 5.

The institute was designed for the classroom teacher and school administrator with emphasis on the use of media as a learning device in the regular classroom. Particular attention was given to media and the individual needs of children with learning disabilities.

Fred John Pula, director of the institute and director of University Audio-Visual Services at Boston College, describes the special needs child as someone who has "intellectually the same learning capacity as other children. The difference lies in the manner in which sensory impulses are transmitted to the brain. This can become apparent in the form of hearing, vision, or mobility problems, dyslexia, hyperactivity, etc."

As of the this fall these children, under Massachusetts Education Act 766, will be integrated (for part of the day) into the regular classroom situation. An effort will be made to assist them in their learning within a normal classroom procedure and with normal children.

Under a format of large group presentations, small group seminars, workshops and field trips, one of the main goals of the Media Institute was to help prepare the classroom teacher for this new responsibility.

The following residents and-or teachers from Newton participated in the institute: Audrey M. Briggs, 470 Chestnut St., Waban, Brook Water School, Framingham; Shirley I. Cibley, 251 Grant Ave., Newton Centre, Angier School, Waban; Maureen Delaney, 45 Irving St., Waltham, Ward School, Newton; Ruth E. Elkins, Needham, Newton School Department.

Also, Doris E. Hopengarten, 68 Avalon Rd., Waban, Pollard Junior High School, Needham; Harriet V. McClendon, Framingham, Newton school system; Harriet N. Wienfield, 114 Harwich Rd., Chestnut Hill, Beaver Country Day School.

Albemarle victorious in softball jamboree

Marianne Fay of Albemarle scored the winning run on Joanna Bonazoli's last inning hit to top Stearns Playground 5 to 4 in Recreation Department softball jamboree.

Winning pitcher Chris Ciocca had a triple and a home run in previously played games to give Albemarle the right to play Stearns for the championship. Upper Falls played West Newton for third place honors.

The play of the game was made by Stearns second baseman Patty Gillwith, a run-saving catch to end the inning.

The Albemarle team included: Joanna Bonazoli, Joanna Fay, Marianne Fay, Susan Higgins, Maria Sergo, Pam Kenney, Andrea Muccini, Chris Ciocca, Jennifer Jones, Physis Russell, Patty Hunt and coach Sandy Geller.

Third place went to West Newton Commons: Joanne Caruso, Beatrice Tonti, Darlene Vona, Karen Gallello, Rita Tonti, Dianne Lewis, Debby LeBlanc, Lynne Davis, Marilyn Hayes, Andy Brown, and Coach Kim Vigoda.

Hondo may coach at Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — John Havlicek, the former Ohio State University great and now a veteran with the Boston Celtics, says he might consider a part-time coaching job at his Alma Mater after retirement from the National Basketball Association.

Havlicek will be 36 when he completes the final two seasons of his current Boston contract.

From his off-season home in suburban Upper Arlington, Ohio, Havlicek said he would like to help younger players and remain connected with basketball in some way after retiring as an active player.

"I wouldn't mind having a capacity such as Jack Graf had," Havlicek said. "I think I would enjoy that."

Studies now indicate 10-15 per cent of students have a learning disability

Dr. Harris C. Faigel, director of Adolescent Medicine at Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children, Brighton, presented an invited paper, "Learning Disabilities in Adolescence," before the joint meeting of the Society for Adolescent Medicine and the Medical Officers of Schools Association, July 30 in Coventry, England.

From England, Dr. Faigel will travel to Helsinki, Finland, where he will present a second paper, "Perceptual Disabilities in Delinquent Adolescent Boys," before the First International Symposium for Adolescent Medicine on Aug. 5.

According to Faigel's presentations, some 10 to 15 per cent of all school children have a learning disability. After infectious disease, such disabilities are the most common group of problems in the school age population. Like color blindness, perceptual disabilities are silent and invisible until the demands of schooling bring them to the surface. Children who have normal range or even superior intelligence are unable to learn because their brains are unable to process, differentiate and associate the information being received by their eyes and ears.

Some children with one type of visual association problem, for example, may read words and letters backwards or upside down, so that "saw" becomes "sam". A child with one type of auditory problem might confuse similar sounds, so that "the cross I bear" is mistaken for "the cross-eyed bear."

Faigel illustrated the two general causes of learning disabilities by comparing the brain to an electronic system.

"The brain is like an electronic maze, full of switches and circuits or systems and cross connections between those systems. Not all of these circuits or connections are present at birth, some will appear later.

"If a system or its interconnections are needed before they are ready, the total electronic maze will grind to a halt, unable to progress any further.

"Some children inherit basic biorhythms which, while still within the normal range, are slower than those of the general population. Such children take longer to attain developmental skills like walking, talking and balancing.

"Unfortunately, our schools are rarely able to meet the time schedule of these 'late bloomers.' School age is required by law, and the child's brain circuits are overloaded with sensory information they are not ready to process.

Faigel further illustrated that, "In addition, the maze of the brain is very sensitive to outside damage. There are no fuses.

"Short circuits, lightening strikes and the like can permanently disrupt the delicate balance of one or more systems or the connections between, forever depriving the total organism of those damaged functions."

These "short circuits," or brain damage, are often found in children with a medical history of prematurity, prenatal problems, difficult delivery, or head injury or infection after birth," he said.

For reasons not understood fully, learning disabilities are four to six times more common in boys. Perhaps this is because child rearing practices for girls are more likely to discourage aggressive acting-out behavior which could bring the problem to someone's attention.

Whatever the specific cause or type of perceptual disability the common result is an inability to learn and achieve in school by the usual teaching methods.

Unhappily, Dr. Faigel noted, most schools do not identify these children until they have been in school for a while, failed for a while, and developed emotional reactions for a while.

"If a child not learning daydreams, fidgets, fools around and becomes the black sheep of the class in an early grade, his chances of being noticed and receiving help are better! Others who are more gentle or bright enough to hide the disability can often go undetected.

"These are the children whose problems are magnified in adolescence. At age 12 or 14, they can no longer handle the burden of the learning disability on top of the physical and emotional changes of adolescence.

"Filled with horror of continued failure they dislike school intensely. They can obtain no satisfaction from their school work, and often have a diminished sense of their own worth. They may become truant, rebellious and resentful and, sometimes delinquent."

Faigel's study of 12 teenaged boys referred to Kennedy Memorial by the Suffolk County District Court juvenile clinic points out the link between perceptual disabilities and antisocial behavior. Only two of the boys tested had no evidence of perceptual handicaps. Both came from unstable homes and had long histories of behavioral problems beginning in early childhood. The other 10 boys had not been troublesome as pre-schoolers. However, once they entered school their academic achievement was poor. After four or five years of this failure, they became so discouraged, disheartened and angry that their behaviour deteriorated. Eventually, they came to the attention of the court.

All 10 of the boys showed evidence of multiple perceptual disabilities interfering with normal scholastic achievement. All of the boys had developed a concept of themselves as damaged and incompetent, and all were angry at their parents' inability to understand them and the school's inability to recognize the problem and to help.

Faigel suggested that helping an adolescent with a learning disability demands a coordinated, cooperative effort of support and rehabilitation by the patient, physician, therapists, family, teachers, peers, counselors and social contacts. For the young person before the court, it means understanding by the judges, court officers and probation officer as well.

Academic help can come too late for some teenagers, who should be encouraged to enter vocational training programs to take advantage of the abilities they have. The best possible remedy, however, will come when learning disabilities are found and treated in early childhood.

"Otherwise, the result may be socially deviant delinquent behavior," Faigel said.

Campers will go farther but it will cost more

NEW YORK (UPI) — Campers will be able to venture farther this summer than they had expected to do but they will have to pay more for the gasoline that is available.

There were fears last winter as the energy crisis worsened that long camping trips were a thing of the past and that families would be forced to stay within 100 miles of home.

Lifting of the Arab oil embargo removed some geographical limitations but did not solve all of the problems.

Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill has predicted "spot gasoline shortages" around the nation this summer. But he said motorists should not encounter serious problems in buying enough gasoline to meet added summertime driving needs.

Gas Costs Soar

In June the states were allocated at least 90 per cent of their 1972 consumption. Sawhill has said the allocation program for gasoline will remain in effect at least until "this fall" when the government will decide whether to scrap the program.

Gasoline costs have soared and families planning long trips must make allowances in their budgets for this added expense.

The best way to cut down on the gasoline bill is to plan in advance to camp in an area that offers a multitude of attractions —such as a beach, a lake or a tourist enterprise like Disney World —which will justify a long stay.

This reporter found on a family trip from New York to Myrtle Beach, S.C., that gasoline was plentiful in most areas of the eastern and southern coastal states. Only a few stations were out of gas during the Memorial Day weekend and those which remained open put no limits on their pumps. At some stations, however, gasoline was as high as 70 cents per gallon.

No Vacancy

If the Memorial Day weekend turnout is an indicator, campground operators will be as busy as ever this summer.

All of the huge campgrounds at Myrtle Beach were filled during the holiday. Most of the families camping along this beautiful stretch of Atlantic Ocean beaches were from South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia but some came from as far away as Missouri and Minnesota.

"This place was filled up at Easter, too," a camper at Lake Arrowhead at Myrtle Beach said. "The water temperature was 65 degrees, too cold for us, but there were a lot of campers here from New York state and they said it was the same as up there in the summer time and they went swimming every day."

Campgrounds also were filled at Williamsburg, Va., during the Memorial Day holiday.

Williamsburg is an ideal place to spend a few days and save on gasoline. The main attraction is Colonial Williamsburg, the restored capital of Virginia during pre-Revolutionary War days.

The information center has a special parking lot for recreational vehicles, giving itinerant campers an opportunity to visit the attractions and decide whether they want to make a prolonged stay at one of the nearby campgrounds.

It takes at least three days to see all of Colonial Williamsburg but visitors can enjoy the highlights in one day.

On certain days there is a muster around 5 p.m. and visitors are treated to a full dress parade by a fife and drum corps and a company of Revolutionary War militiamen, climaxed by the firing of musketry and cannon.

Healthy campers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Campers generally are a healthy lot and they stay that way by being prepared for emergencies.

Most camping families carry first aid kits for use in treating minor mishaps such as cuts and bruises. Those who venture into wooded areas in hot climates should take along snakebite kits.

The odds are very good that careful families can camp year after year without encountering a serious situation, but there is always a possibility that a camper may be stricken when medical help is far away.

In such emergencies, a doctor generally is reached by telephone and in some cases he may be able to give life-saving instructions if the symptoms are recognizable.

Quite often, though, the doctor may have to work at a disadvantage after he arrives at the scene, especially if the patient is unable to communicate.

Campers who have hidden allergies should carry on their person full details of their condition to warn the attending physicians against administering certain drugs.

The American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Academy of Allergists and the National Sheriffs' Association are among 21 national organizations which have endorsed Medic Alert, an emergency information system.

Administered by the Medic Alert Foundation, a nonprofit organization based in Turlock, Calif., the system provides a metal emblem and medical information wallet card that contain the immediate medical problems of the wearer. Additional medical information and other material is kept in Medic Alert's Central Answering File. The telephone number of the Central Answering File is also engraved on the emblem and collect calls can be made at any hour of the day or night.

In a matter of minutes, all of the pertinent information can be made available to a physician unfamiliar with the stricken person's medical history.

Lifetime membership fee is $7 and it includes a bracelet or necklace in stainless steel and one medical problem engraving.

cost more than $5 per student per year under the present state transportation reimbursement formula.

"We can do for public school students what we are compelled to do for private school students," Regal commented.

Regal's motion was defeated 7-1.

Fink said at a July 17 meeting that busing of private school students could cost $122,000 next year, the price of 11 additional buses. This, however, is seen as a maximum figure, and the number actually required will be determined by the number or requests for transportation received.

This past year, Newton used 29 buses, four of which reportedly did double duty, also transporting Newton Catholic students. Plans prior to this week's change in policy called for 21 buses to be used next year.

The state transportation requirement is that the city is required to provide transportation for students in excess of two miles from their school. This past year, transportation has been available for secondary students one-and-one-quarter miles away from their schools.

The School Committee's obligation to bus private school students appears also to be dependent on these schools being certified by the Newton School Department. Fink and members of the School Committee appeared uncertain as to what Newton private schools have been certified or approved in the past.

satisfaction of the Building and Fire Departments. The Building Department approved the job last week.

The store was gutted by fire in April of this year, and efforts to have the company assume the responsibility and cost for securing the building had thus far been unsuccessful.

Ald. Richard McGrath brought the matter to public attention about two weeks ago.

Frank Ciccone, the prospective purchaser, confirmed this week that has an agreement with Cumberland Farms to buy the property, subject to his being able to obtain a variance that would allow use of the building as a one-family house.

Ciccone said he would rehabilitate the building and convert it to a dwelling, which is compatible with the surrounding zoning.

Young musicians study at Tanglewood

There are several Newton residents among those attending the Young Artists Instrumental Program at the Boston University Tanglewood Institute in Lenox this summer.

The Young Artists are comprised of high school instrumentalists from all over the country who participate in study and performance at Tanglewood, the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

They receive private lessons with instrumentalists on the Boston University faculty and first chair players in the BSO. They also perform in chamber groups and with the Young Artists Orchestra.

At the institute are: Neal Kravitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Kravitz of 128 Gordon Rd., Waban; Sato Knudsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Knudsen of 43 Halcyon Rd. and Adam Grossman, son of Mrs. Meryl Cohen of 91 Pine Ridge Rd., Waban.

A typical week for the participants includes nine to 12 hours of orchestra rehearsal, six hours of chamber music study, one hour of private study, many hours of private practice, and at least one public performance. Students receive four credits toward a bachelor of music degree upon successful completion of the program.

Kravitz, who plays the trombone, has been a member of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra for four years. He studies with Ronald Barron of the Boston Symphony.

Knudsen, who will attend the New England Conservatory of Music in the fall, has performed solo cello with the Newton Symphony, the Greater Boston Youth Symphony and the BSO.

He also plays chamber music concerts with Steven Geben of the Cleveland Symphony and with Robert Barnes and Ronald Knudsen, his father, both of the Boston Symphony.

A student at Newton South High School, Grossman is currently studying violin with Kenneth Sarch and Roman Totenberg of Boston University. Grossman's appearances included conducting show orchestras for "Pajama Game" and "No, No, Nanette."

Five Newton residents are also attending the Young Vocalists Program at Tanglewood. They are: Dory Codington, Ellen Kazis, David Levy, Eve Minkoff, and Judith Wyman.

The Young Vocalists are high school singers who participate in a similar study and performance program as the Young Artists. Each student belongs to the Boston University Tanglewood Institute Chorus and a small chamber ensemble.

They study sight-reading, movement, eurhythmics, solfege, performance technique and conducting and receive two credits toward a bachelor of music degree upon successful completion on the program.

Ms. Codington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Codington of 1725 Commonwealth Ave., West Newton, studies voice with Barbara Stevenson of Boston University's School for the Arts and Stephanie Freeman of the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Ms. Kazis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Kazis of 20 Levbert Rd., studies voice with Jan Curtis of Steinurt Hall and violin with Marylou Speaker of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Levy of 61 Central St., has sung in all-city organizations and played woodwinds in the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra.

He studies bassoon with Judy Bedford of the New England Conservatory.

Ms. Minkoff, daughter of Mrs. Joan Minkoff of 65 Gray Cliff Rd., Newton Centre, has sung in the New England District Chorus.

Ms. Wyman, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Wyman of 493 Auburn St., also participated in the Choral Institute at Tanglewood in 1973.

This is the ninth year that young students have been given the opportunity to learn with professionals at the institute.

Of the 248 people enrolled this season, 90 are instrumentalists between the ages of 14 and 18, 58 in the same age bracket are in the Young Vocalists and the remaining 100, mostly college students, are enrolled in the piano, theater, applied music or harp studies programs.

Sato Knudsen (far right) of Newton is among the many local musicians currently at the Tanglewood Institute sponsored by Boston University.

Oil paintings on display at library

Judy Stevens of Newton has a one-woman show of oil paintings at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, now through the end of August.

Ms. Stevens, a graduate of Boston University and Goddard College, has exhibited throughout the New England Area and has had one-woman shows in Vermont and at the Orson Welles Gallery in Cambridge.

Her paintings have been shown in the "Women Exhibiting in Boston" show, at the Cambridge Art Association and in the Boston, Brockton and Cohasset Arts Festivals.

Ms. Stevens' exhibit includes abstracts in greens, blues and reds, as well as some portraits. "Woman Reading" is an attractive and personal treatment of its subject.

"Textural Span," an abstract in green and yellow-green, is a pleasing experiment using oil colors and sand textures in a design that looks like bubbles on the surface of water.

The Main Library is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., closed Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 2.

Exhibiting

$14 to $20 tax increase almost certain

Hazy August days are made for thinking. (Lupo photo)

In spite of a revised cherry sheet from the state showing a net gain to Newton, the city administration is sticking with its previous estimate of a $14 to $20 increase in the real estate tax rate, currently $134.60 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

The cherry sheet is sent annually by the state to the cities and towns, advising them of the amount of money to be expected from the state and the amount of money the community must pay to the state.

The tax rate is usually set by this time every year. Three major factors have delayed it this year — the revision to the cherry sheet, the still unsettled collective bargaining situation, and the unknown financial impact of adopting a new trash-disposal method to supplant the use of the incinerator.

The changes in the cherry sheet, received late last month, mean that instead of owing the state $646,578, Newton will be ahead by just under a1 million, a total gain of $1.5 million.

Usually that amount would be calculated to mean about $4 on the tax rate (the rule of thumb has been that for every $375,000 received by the city, $1 might be subtracted from the tax rate).

The cost of collective bargaining, while not known exactly because some of the city unions are still negotiating, could be estimated roughly at 8 to 10 per cent over total salaries for last year, but Chief Administrative Officer James Salter declined to name a figure while negotiations are being carried out.

The largest single bargaining group, the Street Department's Local 800, settled at the end of June for a two-phase increase, starting with 8 per cent. Traditionally, the other unions (e.g., Fire and Police Departments, nurses, City Hall Associates, crossing guards) follow suit.

This year, however, there has been some resistance to this practice, if not expressed at the bargaining table, at least expressed privately.

Some highly placed city officials feel that the time soon may come to stop applying a percentage increase across the board, and instead devise a scheme of salary categories

Condominium bill needs governor's signature

A State bill, the first of its kind in Massachusetts, would give the city of Newton control of the conversion of multifamily dwellings of three or more units to condominiums.

Such control would apply to only those apartments for which permissive use (special permission) had been granted by the Board of Aldermen.

The bill, which grew out of a resolution proposed by Ald. David cohen and passed overwhelmingly by Newton's Board of Aldermen, is awaiting signature into law by Gov. Francis Sargent.

If signed by the governor, the law would only give Newton the right to exercise condominium control, and would leave the construction of the ordinance and its enforcement up to the Board of Aldermen.

The resolution upon which an ordinance would be based requires that the owner of a building who wishes to convert it to condominiums must obtain the approval of two-thirds of the Board of Aldermen, following which a public hearing must be held.

According to the resolution, one or more of the following conditions must be satisfied: Leases must be extended for 18 months, the owner must make a "diligent effort" to relocate tenants who do not wish to buy an apartment, and apartments must continue to be rented to persons physically or financially unable to move.

Further, if the city, through an agency designated by the mayor, determines that more than 50 per cent of the tenants will suffer a hardship, the Board may impose conditions to alleviate the hardship.

Cohen's resolution was accepted by the Board of Aldermen subject to state legislation, which was filed subsequently by Sen. Irving Fishman of Newton as a home-rule petition. Rep. David Mofenson won House approval of the bill.

The bill, S.1791, had its ups and downs, and nearly died in the last days of the legislature's session after having been once before on the governor's desk.

Resuscitated and back before the Senate, the bill had a governor's amendment attached requiring the city to review the measure before enacting it into an ordinance. The amendment also requires that the ordinance be passed by the end of this calendar year.

Cohen's resolution came up at the Board of Aldermen in May, when Cohen lemarned thi residents of 2, 10, and 20 Hammond Por Pkwy. had been told that if their leases expire before Aug. 31, they could have an extension of the lease; otherwise, they would have to buy a condominium or leave.

The buildings had been recently sold.

Cohen said that many residents had told him that the total monthly cost of a condominium would be more than they could afford.

Voter registration

The Election Commission office at City Hall will be open Saturday (Aug. 10) from noon until 10 p.m. for voter registration and change of party affiliation, Elèction Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie has announced.

Licarie also reminds would-be voters that Aug. 13 is the last day to register for the Sept. 10 primary election. On Aug. 13 the Election Commission will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 10 p.m. for registration.

Voters in the primary may vote only in the party in which they are registered, except that "unenrolled" voters, designated "V" in the voting list, may choose the ballot of either party.

A Republican, for examply, may not vote in the Democratic primary unless he chooses to change his party affiliation on or before Aug. 13.

Any unenrolled voter voting in the primary automatically becomes enrolled in the party of the ballot he selected. Postcards will be available at the polls which the voter may use to restore his registration to "unenrolled" if so chooses.

State officials tour Staniford Street site

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
staff correspondent

The wheels were set in motion for a battle over one of the last pieces of undeveloped land on the north side of Newton when the state Housing Appeals Committee met July 31 with members of the Conservation Commission, Assistant City Solicitor Jason Rosenberg and City Engineer Ulderico M. Schiavone for a site inspection of the Staniford St. property in Auburndale which is the subject of an appeal.

Barred from attending the walk were members of the Planning Department John Simmons and Juris Alksnitis. They were prevented from going on the property by Attorney Lawrence Shubow representing developers John and Joseph McIsaac who wish to build on the site. Presumably, the developers were angered by a Planning Department report suggesting the city take the land by eminent domain reserving a portion for low income housing and utilizing the rest for conservation and recreation purposes. City Planning Director Charles Thomas commented that "it is a little difficult to understand what the logic was of such exclusion."

The McIsaacs are appealing a recent Zoning Board of Appeals decision to denying them a variance which they need to build 32 townhouses and 108 garden apartments on the site. They further proposed utilizing 45 units for low-moderate income housing and had tied the financing of this project onto Chapter 774, the so-called "anti-snob" legislation.

The appeal is based on the fact that Newton is not in compliance with this law which establishes certain criteria for low-moderate income housing construction. This is the McIsaac's fifth attempt to rezone the site and obtain permission from the Board of Aldermen to develope the property.

One reason the ZBA issued a denial was that the parcel is located in a flood plain area with proposed basement elevations of six inches above the flood plain boundary which could present a serious flood risk to potential residents.

Commissioner Helen Heyn, secretary to the Conservation Commission pointed out on the site tour that this was the driest time of year to walk the property. She also made note of such flowers as swamp azaleas which only grow near water. Mrs. Heyn questioned the developers proposal to put a play area in a section below the flood plain elevations. The developers backed down saying this plan "is up in the air and it is not even necessary for a play area to go there."

The Zoning Board also considered that the plans show only one access to the site, a condition which a representative of the fire department described as "dangerous" adding that unless a second access could be built, the fire department could not go along with the proposal.

Another problem is that substantial fill is needed in the flood plain for parking, roads and construction and no one knows how this would affect flood storage capacity.

The Conservation Commission asked the mayor in February to take the land by eminent domain and issued a proposal similar to the Planning Department's report. Action has begun on this and one appraisal on the land has already been received according to Charles Thomas. Thomas also stated it is "doubtful" the taking would be underway before the scheduled appeal hearings begin on Sept. 5.

Some neighbors who live across from the site also attended a part of the walk and said they would oppose construction. Two of the neighbors were Hal Mahon, one of the directors of the Newton Conservators and H. Garrison Wilkes, former president of the Conservators.

Newton's future mayor campaigns for children

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic staff

Holding forth at the microphones, the future mayor of Newton tugged nervously at her white knee socks.

This was no mayoral campaign Jennifer English was conducting — yet. She was speaking at the Children's Campaign hearings last week, and her constituents are all children.

The Children's Campaign seemed made to order for Jennifer. Here was a forum in which children could present their platform for the upcoming state election.

Testimony taken at hearings will be presented for comment to candidates for public office, and presumably the children will support candidates on the acceptability of their replies to the platform draft.

Jennifer first got into "politics" last winter at the age of 10, when she and a friend, Sarah Avery, were playing and "deciding on something fun to do."

The result was that after going from one city department to another, she and Sarah got all the necessary permissions to run the Children's Fair that was part of Springthing at City Hall this year.

That's how Jenny found out how things work at City Hall. And she didn't like some of it.

"They ought to call the Youth Commission 'the Adult Commission,'" she says, because there are no kids as members. She tried to get appointed, but was told that nobody below junior-high age could be a member.

"Grownup, grownup, grownup, grownup, adult, adult, adult," she said once, in an aldermanic committee room, pointing to the old photographs of former aldermen lining the walls.

Jennifer would like to have a sort of sub-Board of Aldermen made up of children, that would meet a few times a year with the regular Board, but with hours ending about 9:30 or 10 at night.

Jennifer has a lot more definite ideas, too. She'd like a local TV station just for Newton, she'd like to see law requiring the posting of the names of unsafe toys in all toy stores, and

Candidates

IRVING FISHMAN

State Senator Irving Fishman has been praised by Consumer's Council Chairman William Willier for "an unsurpassed record of achievement on behalf of Massachusetts consumers."

Fishman is a Democratic candidate for reelection in the newly created State Senate district that includes Newton and Brookline.

He successfully sponsored into law bills to extend unit pricing laws to local officials and to require career schools and home-study programs to provide pro rata refunds to students who want to drop out.

Truth-in-mortgaging legislation and bills to give consumers direct access to information in their credit files and to require insurance companies to report dangerous products to the Consumer's Council for publication were the other Fishman consumer bills.

JACK BACKMAN

Legislation establishing pre-trial diversion for first time youthful offenders in district courts toward education, job training and intensive counseling has been sent to the governor for his signature.

The bill was originally filed in the State Senate by State Senator Jack Backman, Democratic candidate for reelection in the newly created Brookline-Newton State Senate district.

"The broad support this legislation received from liberals and conservatives showed that the Legislature was determined to provide our youth with a second chance in life," Backman observed.

DAVID J. MOFENSON

State Rep. David J. Mofenson, Democratic candidate for reelection in the 18th Middlesex district, recently participated in a legislative seminar on judicial administration and reform.

The seminar was moderated by Jonathan Posner of Newton, senior research assistant to House Speaker David M. Bartley. The discussion covered judicial selection and removal, the role of the Supreme Judicial Court in administration of courts, the problem of crowded dockets, the phase-out of special justices, bail reform, jury reform, state assumption of court costs and the role of small claims courts.

Mofenson said the seminar was intended to offer participants differing viewpoints on various aspects of court reform.

LOIS PINES

Legislation permitting a tax deduction for child care and dependent care expenses for mentally or physically disabled dependents awaits the governor's signature after final approval of both houses of the State Legislature.

State Rep. Lois G. Pines, Democratic candidate for reelection in the 19th Middlesex district, sponsored the bill.

Rep. Pines also reported that the governor has signed her bill prohibiting insurance companies from denying insurance coverage on the grounds of a person's sex. Newton State Rep. Peter F. Harrington was the co-sponsor of this legislation.

PAUL GUZZI

"The Campaign Disclosure Law passed by the Legislature in 1973 is a far reaching piece of legislation for Massachusetts. It gets to the root of some of the major problems involved in our system of elections," Paul Guzzi said this week.

In his capacity as a Newton state representative, he chaired the special subcommittee which drafted the Campaign Disclosure Law. It requires full disclosure of all campaign contributions in both election and non-election years.

The candidate, however, went on to say that he believes in public financing of campaigns "as a much needed alternative to our present system." He co-sponsored in the Legislature the Model Public Finance Bill this session which failed by a vote of 115-109.

WILLIAM I. COWIN

William I. Cowin of Newton, a Republican candidate for attorney general, announced this week that Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann has endorsed his bid for election.

In a letter to the candidate, Mann said: "At this time, I call upon the Republican voters in the City of Newton to join with me in nominating you on Primary day, Sept. 10."

"Your election will ensure the return of the office of the attorney general to the high standards set by Elliot Richardson and Edward Brooke," the mayor wrote.

CHARLES CABOT

Dr. John Knowles, president of the Rockerfeller Foundation and former director of Massachusetts General Hospital, has endorsed Charles Cabot for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Knowles said: "I've known Charlie Cabot for many years. He would be the kind of vigorous attorney general the Commonwealth sorely needs. He is totally honest and would never let political ambitions effect his conduct of the office."

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI

Democratic candidate for attorney general Francis X. Bellotti this week called upon the Department of Corrections to "solve those problems caused by the chaotic furlough program currently in force in this state."

Former Lt. Gov. Bellotti commented: "Since it appears the Legislature does not intend to tighten up existing laws which allow dangerous criminals to remain at large with the aid of officials, I call upon the Dept. of Corrections to exercise the necessary controls."

He called for the notification of local police departments prior to release of convicts and a more extensive screening process of furlough candidates.

"Failing these controls," Bellotti said, "I would call for an immediate halt to the furlough program."

GEORGE L. SACCO

"The Massachusetts consumer is over a barrel when it comes to the misuse of metal drums as traffic barriers on state highways," Democratic candidate for attorney general George Sacco said this week.

"Barrels are turning the state's highways into disaster areas at a cost of over $1 million annually and they are posing a serious safety hazard to the motoring public."

Contractors rent the cement-weighted barrels to the state at a cost between 27 and 50 cents per day. Average daily maintenance cost per barrel is estimated to be 11 cents. The average replacement life for each barrel is estimated to be 11 cents. The average replacement life for each barrel is 100 per cent. It costs approximately $40 to outfit each one with reflective paint, tape and a flashing light mechanism.

JOHN P. LYNCH

Springfield Register of Deeds John Pierce Lynch, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, said this week he favors the death penalty.

"I am in favor of the death penalty for all degrees of murder," he said. "The governor should make the ultimate decision on whether a man goes to the chair. As lieutenant governor, I would fight to restore capital punishment in Massachusetts."

MICHAEL DUKAKIS

Democratic candidate for governor Michael Dukakis last week proposed three measures for state budget control.

At a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Taymor, 44 Fairfax Ave., Newton, Dukakis urged restriction on new spending programs until Beacon Hill's revenue base is increased, implementation of a budgetary reform package recently passed by the Legislature, and the appointment of an aggressive secretary of administration and finance.

"Massachusetts," the candidate observed, "is a recognized leader in all kinds of public services; but, as we spend further and further into the red, we're driving so many jobs out of the state that our social conditions are worsening."

"We are going to have to bring our budget under control and improve our economic base," Dukakis said, "before we'll have the money to pay for an expanded set of social programs."

CHARLES CLOUGH

"It has long been characteristic of county elections that voters were left uninformed of the policies and qualifications of both incumbents and challengers," Clough said in a letter to his opponent. "Now that Middlesex County commissioners are called upon to administer $35 million annually of the taxpayers' funds, I believe that it is only reasonable that we come forward in a public session to debate."

JON ROTENBERG

Brookline Democrat Jon Rotenberg, independent candidate for Congress in the fourth district, announced the passage of his bill to create an Industrial Development Authority in the State Legislature.

State Rep. Rotenberg described his bill as "The beginning of an aggressive state economic policy and the first step toward creating jobs and returning Massachusetts to its position as a major industrial state."

The Authority is empowered to make money available to local industrial development agencies in areas in high unemployment.

Nixon's defense crumbles as GOP senators defect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's last line of defense against removal from office is crumbling in the Senate as his staunchest Republican supporters call publicly and privately for his resignation.

Senate GOP leaders, conceding that a strong majority of Republican senetors want Nixon to step down immediately, were seeking ways to get that message to the President.

Senate Republicans met behind closed doors Tuesday to discuss Nixon's resignation and talked about sending a delegation of Republicans to the White House to urge that he resign.

GOP Leader Hugh Scott called a meeting of the party leadership today to continue discussing whether such a delegation should be sent and whom should it include.

"I think it's essential that the President know the views of the senators of his own party as soon as that can be arranged," Scott said.

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater and John Tower —two of Nixon's staunchest conservative supporters in the Senate —said at Tuesday's meeting that they favored Nixon's resignation, according to three Senate sources, two of whom attended.

Goldwater denied the report and Tower could not be reached for comment.

Tower, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said his assessment of the meeting —open to all 43 Senate Republicans —was that "the majority sentiment of Republican senators is that he should retire from office.

"The mood is of great concern that the President does not comprehend the hazard he faces in coming to trial in the Senate," the Texan said. "It's pretty obvious there is growing sentiment for resignation among Republicans."

Tower said two ideas were discussed. One was for all GOP senators favoring Nixon's resignation to seek a meeting with him and ask that he step down. The other was to send a delegation of GOP leaders.

Families Extended increases service

Families Extended, operating under the auspices of Family Counseling Service, is a system of alternative housing for Newton, Wellesley and Weston adolescents who for any reason are unable to stay with their own families. In most cases there is a parent-adolescent lack of communication which makes living at home a painful and impossible experience.

The duration of an adolescent's placement in an alternative home is from a few days up to six months.

Families Extended's staff helps the family to learn methods of communication which will enable the parents and the young person to better understand each other and to begin to work together toward an improved relationship.

Grants from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts have allowed for staff expansion and therefore more extensive counseling services. These services facilitate moving the young person back into his home as soon as possible.

This summer three new staff members have joined the Families Extended team. Peg Dickerman, the new clinical social worker, will be working with alternative parents, adolescents and natural families. Armand Quintal specialized in family-life education and will assist in family and group work. Nancy Speare Sheiman, a work-study Brandeis University student, works as an administrative assistant.

Joan Kunitz, who founded Families Extended, continues to be its program coordinator.

Alternative community homes are necessary for Families Extended's existence. Any warm, accepting families interested in sharing their home on a temporary basis with an adolescent in need are asked to call Families Extended at 965-6200.

Alc Fred P. Pegnato, Jr. of 504 Watertown St., Newtonville and West Yarmouth has completed two weeks of Annual Field Training with the 102nd Fighter Interceptor Group, Massachusetts Air National Guard, at Otis Air Force Base.

Newton to gain from job program

Newton and nine other communities west of Boston will be the recipients of more than $1 million for a federally funded manpower program.

Mayor Theodore Mann has been designated as the governor's surrogate to oversee the 10-community area. Mann has appointed his former aide, Charles F. Miller, as interim director.

The program, called the Comprehensive Emplyment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA), was designed to replace some existing programs and augment others in the field of manpower training and job procurement.

The Newton subgrantee area plan submitted for approval and funding emphasizes on-the-job training, public-service employment, classroom training, and a work-experience program for youth.

The area has a population of 338,000.

According to Miller, for the area there will be roughly 140 on-the-job training jobs, 130 work -experience jobs (part-time for young people aged 14 to 22), 30 classroom training positions and 40 public-service employment opportunities.

On-the-job training will be partially funded by CETA with the understanding that the jobs lead to permanent positions with the participating businesses.

The work-experience program will provide in-school, out-of-school, and summer employment, all accompanied by job counseling services.

Classroom training will be given by local schools and colleges, paid for by CETA, to eligible persons judged likely to benefit from specific job training or in special need of instruction in English and basic remedial education.

Public service employment will be given to unemployed persons residing in areas that have a 6.5 per cent or higher unemployment rate to allow some movement into municipal employment. These jobs must include some jobs other than unskilled or semi-skilled labor.

The administration of the Newton area will be aided by a 24-member advisory board composed of representatives of the other area communities, business, labor, minorities and other pertinent fields.

The advisory board for the Newton area has not been completed, but has been meeting over the past few months to help draft the application for funding. The final draft has been submitted to the state CETA organization in the Office of Manpower Affairs.

The intent of CETA is "to provide job training and employment opportunities for economically disadvantaged unemployed, and underemployed persons." The criteria for training and employment very stringently reflect the intent.

Funding for the CETA program is expected to come in two parts, according to Charles Miller. The portion implementing the public-service employment will probably be available by the end of August, while the remainder should come in by the middle of September.

The advisory board will continue to meet regularly, withhthe next meeting tentatively scheduled for Aug. 22, at 2 p.m., at Newton City Hall.

Police report

Boston youths arrested, charged in bike thefts

A call from a Newtonville resident reportedly led to the arrests of four Boston juveniles on Monday.

The juveniles were arrested in connection with alleged bicycle thefts. Three of the juveniles were charged with larceny under $100 while a fourth was charged with larceny over $100.

Two possible flim flams were also reported to Newton police on Monday. Two Newton residents told of having been called on the phone by someone claiming to be a bank employee. The residents were reported told that they were needed at the bank, and that acar would come to pick them up.

Both residents reportedly then called the banks named, and discovered that no one by the names mentioned by the phone was employed by the bank.

A breaking and entering at 108 Ward St., Chestnut Hill was reported on Monday. Entrance was reportedly gained between 8:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Monday. Reported missing was jewelry.

A break at 619 Boylston St., Newton Centre, was reported at 5:59 p.m. on Monday. A rear door was reportedly forced. Jewelry and $127 in cash was reportedly missing.

A break and larceny at 263 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill, over the weekend reportedly netted a silver service set valued at $2,000, a silver coffee set valued at $300, a watch valued at $150, and a $100 bill.

The National Cash Register Co., 180 Wells Ave., Newton Highlands was also reportedly broken into over the weekend.

Intruders reportedly started up an electric fork lift truck and smashed three locked wire doors. Several new machines were reportedly knocked over. It was not known if anything was taken or damaged.

Radio system gets grant

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has announced the receipt of a grant totaling $302,268 from the Massachusetts Committee on Criminal Justice, to be allocated to 26 communities in the Greater Boston area and to the state police for establishment of a Greater Boston Police Council radio system.

Mayor Mann is the approving agent for the City of Newton, which will be acting as the contracting agency. Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department, chairman ff the Greater Boston Police Council radio project, will coordinate the project and will allocate these funds to participating communities.

Under the proposed radio system, UHF high-frequency radio bands will be added to the police radio system. Under normal circumstances, these UHF frequencies will be used for police communications only within a city.

Under unusual circumstances or emergency situations, UHF frequencies may be utilized for communications between police in neighboring communities. A parade, a football game, or any other activity held in Newton might well affect traffic conditions in surrounding communities, and radio communications between police departments will facilitate the handling of traffic and other problems.

In acknowledging receipt of the grant, Mann remarked: "Cooperation between police departments will result in better service and protection for the citizens of Newton, with no additional cost. The Greater Boston police radio system will serve to maintain independent departments while strengthening them through mutual assistance. I am especially pleased that this system, which will result in more efficient police protection, is being implemented in Newton and the Boston area."

Volunteers sought to work with mentally retarded

The Newton Citizen Advocacy Project announced this week that it has a few volunteer positions to fill and will be accepting applications immediately.

The advocacy project arranges for mentally retarded citizens to work with volunteers on a one-to-one basis. Sandra Gaber, the new coordinator of the program, said that through these relationships "we hope to insure that mentally retarded persons will be able to enjoy the full range of rights, privileges, and pleasures due all human beings."

Volunteers do not have to have a special back ground but they must have a caring attitude and take a responsible approach.

The volunteers will be helping people to adjust to the daily routines of living in an independent manner away from their homes and, in some cases, state institutions.

Relationships are matched according to the needs and desires of both the volunteers (advocates) and their retarded "proteges."

The Newton Advocacy Project is under the auspices of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded citizens, the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens, and the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded, Inc.

The project's work is closely linked with Juniper House, the residence for eight retarded adults located at 14 Newtonville Ave., Newton Corner, which was opened in February, 1974, through the efforts of the committee.

President of the Committee Lucille Chansky said that they are working hard toward an agreement with the Department of Mental Health to have the DMH assume full funding responsibility for the house. Meanwhile Mrs. Chansky and the committee are seeking funds from private sources. JuniperHouse has been successful in its program, and the committee hopes to be able to establish other houses to serve a wider population.

Director Marvin Rosenberg has organized the house program to include training in self-care skills, transportation, cooking, recreational activities, and participation in a sheltered workshop for vocational training through the Charles River Association for Retarded Citizens.

Inquiries regarding the Citizen Advocacy Project, the committee, or Juniper House should be directed to Sandra Gaber at 484-4160.

City youth programs get increased funds

Three youth programs under the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Area Mental Health Board have received a total of $34,300 for fiscal year 1974-75, a 54 per cent increase over last year's allocations.

The funds, allocated by the Division of Drug Rehabilitation of the Department of Mental Health, go to the following programs: Network (a task force on alternative housing), $20,800; Newton-Wellesley--Weston Multi-Service Center, $9,500; and Beginnings (Newton Youth Foundation), $4,000.

The alternative-housing proposal encompasses Freeport, Inc., Families Extended, Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., and the Multi-Service Center, and covers all the alternative housing needs that a youth might have, from short-term emergency housing and intermediate foster family placement to long-term residential housing.

The Area Mental Health Office has recently been informed that $47,000 of federal money has been allocated to state mental health Regign V for innovative programs, with special empvasis on unserved populations. The deadline for submission of a grant is Aug. 26, 1974. More information can be obtained by contacting Jeffrey Schwann, Department of Mental Health Area Drug and Youth Program Coordinator for Newton-Wellesley--Weston, at 969-3360.

Get out now

"I'm no crook . . ."

Those were the surprising words at the time they were spoken—not long ago—from an angry, defensive President of the United States.

Richard Nixon used that trio of clear-cut words on his own behalf. And because of their stark, to-the-point simplicity they were more easily remembered and more often repeated than many of his other higher sounding quotations.

Many believed even in recent times. Many did not.

In the past weeks we heard defenders of the President get their equal time in the televised House Judiciary Committee hearings as the panel debated impeachment. And some spoke out furiously on Nixon's behalf. They were believers then.

Today they are gone. Probably never before in history have so many backers of a President reversed themselves and fled from defense of their man in such a brief time.

Nixon finally opened the flood gates himself Monday when he confessed that he withheld damaging information pertaining to the Watergate coverup from Congress. Right then and there the slimmest hope of his staunchest supporters was snapped. It was shocking news, a stunning admission to the men who believed in Nixon.

By his own confession—a confession that some believe was forced by Boston attorney James St. Clair—Nixon cut off any pretense of righteousness that has so long been his defense.

The tapes the President released Monday night spelled it out in complete contrast to his own protests. The tapes said it all as no one before or since has said it: Nixon is a crook. He stole away with the only thing he had left...the trust of those who remained his friends and defenders.

It is all right there in his own voice. It was only six days after Watergate and there was Nixon discussing with his aides the implications of using the CIA to cut off an FBI investigation of the Watergate break-in. The reels roll on and the evidence becomes more firm. Haldeman telling Nixon traceable money was to finance the burglars . . . and more.

This is the man who said "I'm no crook." This was the President who said he knew nothing of a cover-up until last year.

We are witnesses to the greatest scandal in the political history of this country. And we have heard this same Nixon say he will not resign because he believes "the Constitution is the overriding factor."

Those words sound so hollow, so meaningless because of the man who flings them in the face of reason and fact.

Nixon should resign now. Get out.

No matter what the consequences of the trial he has harmed this country and many of us so personally and to such a degree that nothing can heal those wounds.

He was a great believer of putting things behind us, moving on. And we will as soon as he surrenders to the judgement of history.

He has earned no place in our tomorrows.

Big John Connally, a long way from Floresville

Analysis by Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Big John Connally indicted for obstruction of justice, illegal payoffs and perjury says he is convinced he will prove his innocence when his case comes to trial. The puzzle is that a man of Connally's wealth should have been diddling around, as the indictment charges, with $10,000 in a milk fund payoff.

Connally is a prize example of the poor boy-to-millionaire syndrome that flourishes in the most exotic form in Texas. His father was the second butcher in the butcher shop in Floresville, his birthplace.

That syndrome in even more luxuriant form was evident in the career of Lyndon Johnson. As his friend and political mentor, Johnson brought Connally to Washington to be his assistant in 1937 when the late President was a young congressman.

The young aide who was to hold a succession of high offices, including three terms as governor of Texas, got his schooling from a tough master who knew every angle of the politics of influence and pull.

Now and then during the House Judiciary Committee's debate on the articles of impeachment potshots were taken at Johnson. Didn't he deserve impeachment as much as President Nixon? Why wasn't his presidency investigated?

This has been part of a half-submerged Republican defense line: You Democrats in the majority are out to impeach a Republican President when you know the same kind of thing has gone on in Democratic administrations.

This fosters the corrosive cynicism that all politicians are corrupt and it happens that some get caught and others don't.

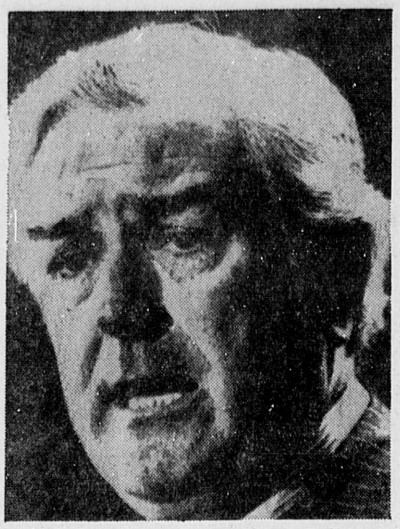
In the poor boy-to-millionaire sweepstakes, Lyndon Johnson was no slouch. He was on a public payroll all his life until he left the presidency. While in the five years in the White House, his salary was $200,000 annually with an additional $50,000. Both amounts were taxable.

Yet after his death in 1973, his estate was estimated at $35 to $40 million. This included the several millions he had previously given to his two daughters Lynda Bird Robb and Luci Nugent.

The bulk of the estate was in valuable television and radio properties and in large landholdings, some of which had been disposed of shortly before his death. One television property had been sold not long before for $9 million.

To this reporter's knowledge only one newspaper, the Wall Street Journal, did an in-depth investigation of how the President and Mrs. Johnson acquired the TV stations.

Influence and pressure marked the trail that made it impossible for "outsiders" to compete in the Johnson domain in Texas. I was at the ranch as the Journal articles



Connally . . . trial will prove my innocence

Power and money were the two poles of attraction for Connally and his mentor. Power meant money. It was as simple as that since, as has so often been demonstrated, wealth does not necessarily mean political power.

Sniffing the political winds Connally decided to back Nixon. Connally got his reward when Nixon named him secretary of the treasury. With the Republicans riding high, this set in motion the boom for Connally as the party's nominee in 1976.

Secretary Connally presided over the meeting of the finance ministers of the Group of Ten that reached an agreement on the realignment of exchange rates. The President called it "the most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world," the most significant event in world financial history. The agreement lasted hardly more than a year.

Yet the President was enarmored of the big, tough talking Texan who, in 1972, headed Democrats for Nixon. He had all the bold assurance that Nixon, so insecure in his background, lacked.

What has been forgotten is that the President after Spiro Agnew's downfall first offered the vice presidency to Connally who declined because he felt that Democrats in Congress could block his confirmation. Even if he got through, it would be after a bruising fight that would seriously impair his chances for the presidential nomination.

Now this all goes glimmering for the boy from Floresville who moved into the bracket of private planes and $400 suits. It is one more trial in the long tragic procession haunting this grisly year of our disillusion.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Quinn, Dukakis Agreed Not To Hit Each Other

A "gentleman's agreement" exists between Attorney General Robert H. Quinn and former State Representative Michael S. Dukakis that they will not publicly criticize each other in their campaigns for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

This was disclosed recently by Dukakis, and it explains why their contest is unexciting, colorless, dull and devoid of any real issues other than those posed by political writers.

Dukakis indicated that the speak-no-evil pact may have been made as long ago as December, 1972, but Quinn subsequently said that Dukakis approached him on the matter about 10 months ago.

Dukakis expressed the hope that "the two of us could avoid personality conflicts and concentrate on our own records," according to Quinn. Dukakis said he and Quinn had talked several times about what might happen if they ran against each other.

Their agreement to hurl political brickbats only at Governor Sargent and not at each other apparently has caused Quinn and Dukakis to abstain from engaging in a debate and from citing the specific issues on which they have taken opposing stands.

Neither has challenged the other to a debate, evidently because of the realization that the one challenged would find it embarrassing to decline. The pact that they will not blast each other apparently is the real reason Quinn and Dukakis will not engage in a debate.

On the basis of the statements made by Quinn and Dukakis it would appear that the idea for an agreement that each would refrain from criticizing the other originated with Dukakis.

"There is a gentleman's understanding, if you will, though we haven't signed any documents, that our approach to this campaign will not cut at each other or point out our disagreements," Dukakis declared.

"If you spend your months before the primary telling people what's wrong with your opponent, you'll have a hard time putting the pieces back together in the general election campaign," asserted Dukakis, citing that only eight weeks elapse between the primary and the final election.

What Mr. Dukakis says is true—up to a point. If the Democratic adversaries in a gubernatorial primary beat up each other to the point of making personal attacks upon the other, they weaken the other and themselves for the subsequent election showdown.

A danger, of course, exists that they will inflict wounds which cannot be healed between the primary and election and will arouse resentment and bitter feeling on the part of supporters of the primary loser which will cause them to vote for the candidate of the opposing aarty.

That is what a gentleman's agreement between two primary opponents usually is intended to avoid. But it should not prevent an understanding by the voters of the differences between Quinn and Dukakis and the issues on which they disagree.

This seems to be happening in the present Democratic gubernatorial campaign which up to now has been virtually a popularity contest and a test of which candidate had put together the better political orgainzation.

Most voters couldn't list five issues on which Dukakis and Quinn disagree. Some of them know that back in 1965 Dukakis was one of the leaders in the fight for the adoption of the Racial Imbalance Law and that Quinn opposed the enactment of that law.

But that is about as far as they go in their knowledge of the two candidates except for the public offices they have held.

That is unfortunate because Quinn and Dukakis are not cast from the same political mold.

Dukakis is a left-wing liberal. Quinn is more a moderate, middle-of-the-road Democrat.

When they served together in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Dukakis was a maverick while Quinn rose up through the ranks to become Speaker of the House.

Quinn was serving as Speaker when Elliot Richardson went to Washington to serve as Assistant Secretary of State, the first of several positions he held in the Nixon Administration. Quinn was chosen by the Legislature to succeed Richardson as Attorney General.

Dukakis is generally regarded as the father of the No-Fault Automobile Insurance System now in effect in Massachusetts.

To a great many Democratic voters Dukakis is an enigma. They know he's a liberal. They are told he's a left-winger, but most of them don't know what that means.

They are confused about Dukakis' action in filing several disgusting and revolting bills for abortion-advocate William Baird.

Dukakis, in effect, says it was his duty and responsibility to file the bills when requested to do so by Baird.

That explanation actually doesn't stand up. Almost all law-makers would refuse to file such bills. They would not talk with Baird, would walk away from Baird when he approached them.

Dukakis, seeking election as Governor, the highest office within the gift of the people of Massachusetts, should tell the voters about those bills he filed and how he voted on them.

Ordinarily that would be a point of discussion in the campaign. But Quinn apparently believes the agreement prevents him from bringing up the matter.

That is unfair to the people of Massachusetts who are not getting a full discussion of the issues in a see-no-evil, hear-no-evil, speak-no-evil campaign. Democrats never have been considered so thin-skinned they couldn't recover from a discussion of the basic issues in a primary campaign.

Sheehan Can't Win—But No Political Pushover

This bystander does not consider it within the realm of realistic political possibility that Francis W. Sargent, an incumbent Republican Governor, can be defeated in next September's GOP primary.

Yet, the more we listen to former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan, Sarge's primary opponent, the more we realize that Sheehan is no political pushover.

Sheehan is articulate. He projects well on television. He makes a good impression upon his listeners. He hits out in two-fisted fashion at Governor Sargent. He makes effective points against Sarge.

While he readily concedes he is running his campaign on a shoestring and is at a disadvantage in his fight with the well-heeled Sargent—"When I go out to campaign, I drive my own car, buy my own gasoline and pay my own parking fees"—Sheehan professes to believe that he will be a winner in both the Sept. 10 primary and the final Nov. 5 election.

He does not agree that a victory for him in the primary would wreck the Republican party in Massachusetts. "If I beat an incumbent Governor, it would be a very powerful move for me," says Sheehan, arguing that such a feat would give him great impetus for the November election.

In response to a question, Sheehan said he doesn't know whether Sarge is worried or not. "But I think he should be," he added.

A lifeguard makes Crystal Lake reply

To the Editor:

I am a lifeguard at Crystal Lake. I have reached different opinions than the ones that have been previously expressed in the newspaper.

Many people do not understand the position of the LIFEGUARDS in many situations and are ignorant of a lifeguards' responsibilities.

Each guard's first responsibility is to the swimmer; to keep an attentive eye on the water; to assure everyone's safety. In addition, the guards are to make certain (those who are not adults) that children swim in the water depth equal or sufficient to their swimming capabilities.

The "deep end test" seems to be a very controversial topic at Crystal Lake this year and it concerns many who wrote to this paper. Let me explain the test from my point of view:

When a child takes the test for the "deep end," I look for good style, by that I mean, a good, strong, flutter kick and rotary breathing coordinated with a strong rythmic arm stroke.

A very essential part of the "test" is the endurance of the full 25 yards. If a child swims well the first half of the test, then slows down considerably on the second half or after completing the "test" the child is breathing heavily (assumin here that the child didn't race across) and appears quite fatigued, that is what is often termed as the child "not being strong enough."

To explain this point further: if the child has only the strength to swim the distance of the "test" and if the child swims in the "deep end" and has very little strength left, then allowing the child to swim in the deep end would be contrary to the child's safety. When a child fails the "test" (we don't fail the child, the child fails himself). I always tell the child WHY and I try to show the youth the proper way because I don't know how the child can correct errors if the correct way isn't shown.

Very often when a child is taking the "test" a parent accompanies the yough. If the parent is with the child, I always explain what mistakes the child is making to the parent while the child is making them so the parent will understand if the child fails the "test." At this point, let me also make it clear that a youth can make some small mistakes and still pass the "test."

Many people are dissatisfied with the judgment of the lifeguards. Each lifeguard judges the "test" differently because each guard is different. The "test" is judged very strictly on a very crowded day. On an uncrowded, cool day the "test" is a bit easier to let those who don't very often get a chance to swim the deep end do so because the guard is now able to watch them because fewer people are swimming.

The "test" being such a disputed issue, I took this opportunity to further explain the "test" from the point of view of the lifeguards. The explanation of the "test" is my own personal viewpoint. I am speaking for myself, not for the staff at Crystal Lake, although some of the staff may be in agreement with my views.

In conclusion, I would like to emphasize that the staff is there for the safety of the public and those who have grievences should appeal to the manager of the lake not the editor of this newspaper.

The last note I would like to make to those who are disappointed would be: if you were present when one of the staff rescues a swimmer . . . then maybe you would be grateful that we are strict and concerned.

Waltham says thanks to Newton firefighters

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr. with a copy forwarded to the Newton Graphic):

Dear Chief Perkins:

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to you and the members of your department for the aid extended to us at our three-alarm fire on Moody Street on July 30.

Please convey my thanks to the men who responded. Their help enabled us to confine the fire to the building or origin.

Gratitude expressed to Crystal Lake staff

To the editor:

Midsummer, I would like to exppress my gratitude and thanks to the staff at Crystal Lake for making this summer such a pleasant, fun and exciting one for so many of us.

Our family has spent a lot of time at the lake. Our two children, ages 6 and 4, have both taken swimming lessons. They had a wonderful time.

I am impressed with the quality of instruction and the enthusiasm of the teaching staff. How every special it is for a child to begin to learn to swim; but, more importantly, to feel that your teacher cares about you.

Many thanks to all.

Drinan rapped

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my extreme disgust and disappointment with the almost nonexistant prticipation of my congressman, Robert Drinan, in the Nixon impeachment proceedings.

Drinan, who from the outset was so vehemently opposed to Nixon and was very vocal to the nation, seemed to have gone into a state of semi-hibernation.

Drinan has not said anything that is great national importance. He appears to be the only member of the Judiciary Committee who has not contributed anything substantial to the proceedings.

It seems queer to me that when the time is right, as it is now, to prove arguments against the President, Drinan, who was outspoken before, remains silent.

Carnival to aid battle on dystrophy

A neighborhood carnival against Muscular Dystrophy will be held Friday, August 9 at the home of David S. George, 5120 Washington St., West Roxbury.

David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard George, is organizing the carnival to raise funds for the research and patient care programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

The carnival, beginning at 1 p.m., will have Lauren George and Debby and Joey Najjar as assistant ringmasters. Featured will be such games as a milk bottle drop, treasure hunt, scary tunnel, penny sale, fortune teller, a side show and refreshments. All money raised will go to the MDAA.

They got the idea for the carnival from Rex Trailer, who is promoting these events on WBZ-TV, Channel 4.

Last year, more than 2,000 carnivals were held in southeastern New England, and over $76,000 was raised to benefit MDAA.

City's trees need relief from drought

The city trees are suffering from drought right now. Boston Parks and Recreation "Plantree" Program asks everyone to help the city trees by watering them now.

Drooping leaves, browned leaf edges, and premature fall coloring are signs of water stress. It is caused by inadequate rain reaching the roots, combined with reflected intense heat from buildings and pavement.

New trees especially need water, ten gallons once a week during the summer drought. Larger trees need more, but less often.

Suave sleuth stalks stardom

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Ian Charmichael finally found out he was going to play the role of Lord Peter Wimsey, the ever so-sophisticated British sleuth of the 1920's, he was ecstatic.

He had been pounding the pavements of London to get the part for nearly a decade.

"Peter was a baby of mine," said Charmichael in a telephone interview drom London. "I wanted to do the gentleman since 1964-65. I knew Peter. I was Peter."

Lord Peter is the super-sleuth created by Dorothy L. Sayers as a diversion from her task of translating Dante's "Divine Comedy" into English.

Lord Peter, who made his first alpearance in 1923 in book form, returned to U.S. television via the PBS network last Sunday in "Clouds of Witness." The other four parts of the Masterpiece Theater mini-series will be shown on the succeeding weeks.

The British-born Charmichael, who was starred in such films as "I'm All Right Jack" and "School for Scandal," said he banged on countless doors in London trying to get someone to produce Lord Peter. But no one wanted the flapper-era detective.

"They had no confidence in him," he said. "But then the BBC decided to give it a try. But they still didn't have any confidence, even after we did the first one. They were still very cagy about it. No one would stand up an say, 'Bingo —let's go.'

"But now we've done it. He's a success."

Charmichael said the enormous appeal Lord Peter has had stems from Miss Sayers' craft as a writer and storyteller.

"She was a very erudite lady," he said. "She wanted to raise detective fiction to a standard where it had never been."

He also believes today's interest in Lord Peter comes from a desire to escape to a more pleasant era, both in he United States and in England.

"I think rightly or wrongly, nostalgia has a lot to do with it," he said. "And it's not just for middle-aged people. The kids gravitate toward him, too."

Charmichael said he consciously imitated the style of Fred Astaire for this role.

"When I was a schoolboy I wanted to be Fred Astaire," he said. "If I have any encyclopedic knowledge, it's of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers musicals."

Although Charmichael has enjoyed performing as Lord Peter, he would prefer to have done him in a movie instead of for television.

"I prefer films," he said. "I don't like working under all this pressure. There's less in films. But in this country there isn't too much of that left."

BOSTON (UPI) — Police said a store owned by the family of a youth being sought for a shooting was set afire Tuesday night by a group which first told the occupants to leave.

A police spokesman said there were no injuries. He said the store on Dudley Street in the Roxbury section belonged to the family of Rudolph Garr, 19, a black, who is wanted for wounding Carlos Matos, 14, of Puerto Rican descent. He said the store sustained heavy damage.

Police later escorted the Garr family from the area, he said, to insure their protection. The spokesman said there were reports of "sporadic" fighting in the area between Puerto Rican youths and blacks, but there "didn't seem to be any gangs involved."

Newton's future mayor

All sportsm arejennifer's meat — tennis, sailing, softball — and she's going to try out for Little League. She's now in the Girls' Athletic League.

Jennifer has become a familiar face at City Hall since her first successful effort this spring. She sells the Newton Graphic to a regular clientele there every Thursday, and drops in along the way to see "old friends," such as the switchboard operator and the mayor. And of course her father, Edward English, who is clerk of the Board of Aldermen.

She and the mayor discuss the city, he has said, and perhaps half-jokingly says if Jennifer were a little older, he's appoint her to the Recreation Commission, where there is a vacancy in Jennifer's ward.

For some reason she's very much aware of her home town. Her mother says that sometimes Jennifer will comment that she just loves Newton, as if she hadn't always lived here. "You'd think we had just brought her from some terrible slum," Judy English said.

Now about to enter the sixth grade at Mason-Rice School, Jennifer may not quite be your average little girl, but she's certainly not a precocious smart aleck.

Like a lot of kids, she likes any kind of competition, thinks her father "is fun," regards her 5-year-old sister, Suzy, as "a thing running after you all the time sounding like a broken record," and likes to go shopping with her grandmother.

She has also just added a regular Newton Graphic route in her neighborhood to her list of activities.

She likes television game shows "that ask questions." She enjoys school, especially social studies, and rates her fifth-grade teacher, Mrs. Johnson, as being "very good."

She likes "funny books," but is not the bookworm type.

"I might like to go to law school," she said, and thinks being an alderman or mayor would be fun. For Jennifer it probably would be.

In 1981 Jennifer will be 18. Then she'll be able to run for office.

To an 11-year-old, seven years is more than half a lifetime away. The knee socks will become a thing of the past. Will Jennifer's ambitions survive?

Condominium Bill

Cohen said this week that the bill would affect nearly all apartment buildings and garden apartments in the city, since most of them required permissive use by the Board of Aldermen in order to be built.

Exactly how the bill, if signed into law, would affect the Hammond Pond Parkway apartments is not clear. In the opinion of some, since some sales have been made these buildings may be exempt, but Cohen disagrees, since no deeds have been filed with the Registry of Deeds.

Boston, Brookline and Cambridge have been in the throes of dealing with condominium-related housing problems. Boston and Brookline, both of which have rent control, allow the bona fide purchaser of a condominium in a converted building to institute eviction proceedings against the tenant-occupant. Brookline specifically prohibits landlords from obtaining evictions.

Cambridge, also with rent control, has more or less sidestepped the whole issue.

Tax Increase

in which, for example, a $16,000-per-year salary would get a lower percentage increase than a $9,000 salary.

The decision to close down the incinerator at the end of this year has forced the city to turn to another method of rubbish disposal after that date.

Bids for another method (the construction of several small, nearly pollution-free, modular incinerators and the conversion of the incinerator to a transfer station from which a contractor would haul the rubbish out of the city are about the only two alternatives) were to have been opened this week.

The decision on which bid to accept, however, will involve the Newton-Waltham Regional Waste Disposal District, which has been studying the feasibility of the two cities joining together to solve their disposal problem.

According to reports from two consultant firms, Arthur D. Little and Camp Dresser & McKee, alteration of the incinerator to meet present and future antipollution standards would be throwing good money after bad.

Another factor indirectly affecting the tax rate has been the failure of the Towers condominium development to get off the ground. Had it been completed, it might have generated more than $2 million taxes, conceivably reducing the tax rate by $6.

This fiscal year will be the last in which real estate assessments are at less than fair market value. Next year's tax rate will be based on full market value as of Jan. 1, 1975.

According to state figures, Newton is assessed in total a 51 per cent of true value, although many homes are valued at more like 30 per cent or even less.

Tropical fish collecting a big business

Fish fanciers in America spent nearly $700 million on tropical fish, fish food and aquarium supplies last year.

The United States annually imports some 600 million tropical fish to meet the demands of an estimated 50 million people who buy, collect and display the fragile, finny creatures.

The economic importance and widespread appeal of tropical fish collecting were underscored recently when importers, retailers and fish distributors from throughout the nation and Mexico gathered at the University of Georgia for a conference on tropical fish diseases. Among those attending was Stephen P. Cohen, 19 Chestnut Terr., Newton Centre, of Debby's Pet Land of Brockton.

Sponsored by the university's College of Veterinary Medicine and the Pet Industry Joint Advisory Council, the conference focused on such topics as the causes , prevention and treatment of fish diseases and environmental control of fish.

Dr. John B. Gratzek, professor and head of the medical microbiology department in the veterinary college, helped organize and stage the meeting. Gratzek said that despite all the interest in tropical fish as a hobby, "Many people are not aware of some of the practices required for optimum health of fish."

To maintain healthy fish, the professor advised, hobbyists should first be certain they buy healthy fish. "Buy from reputable dealers, check to see that the fish are eating well, have no white spots and that their fins are complete, and ask if the fish have been treated for external parasites," he said.

Gratzek stressed the importance of good water filtration in aquariums. "Owners should remember that the waste products of the fish are toxic to the fish and can only be broken down by bacterial action in the filter," he said. "It takes about 25 days after an aquarium is first set up for the bacteria to get established. Therefore, only a very few fish should be put in aquariums for the first 20 to 25 days."

Gratzek recommends that filters be cleaned by lightly rinsing them in tap water, rather than in soap or hot water, so as not to kill bacteria growing on the surface.

Aquarium owners should secure one of the many books sold in most pet stores and written specifically on fish diseases, Gratzek said. But he cautioned that people should seek expert help when their fish become sick rather than experiment with home treatments which may or may not be effective.

"Fish can get sick from many causes," Gratzek said. "Fish diseases are as complex as the diseases of other animals, maybe more so, because fish are completely dependent upon their environment.

"Poor environmental conditions for particular species of fish could include pH (acidity or alkalinity) extremes and ammonia nitrate and nitrate levels," he continued. "Bacteria tend to accumulate as nitrate levels increase, and consequently, about 10 to 20 per cent of aquarium water should be changed weekly or at least biweekly. The frequent water change will also tend to reduce growth of algae."

Three common tropical fish diseases are fin and tail rot, "ich" and worms. "Fin and tail rot is a complex disease caused by poor water quality, excessive waste products, parasites and bacteria," Gratzek said.

"Ich," or ichthyophthirius, produces white spots and mucus on the gills, causing fish to suffocate. There are several cures, but Gratzek recommends the medications and remidies available through aquarium stores.

Flat worms and round worms invade fish in a variety of ways, and can predispose them to bacterial infections, he said.

Sometimes, a disease can be imported with the fish. The United States annually imports about 600 million fish, Gratzek said. Approximately 80 per cent come from the Far East, 15 per cent from South America and the rest from Africa. Fully 90 per cent of all aquarium fish in this country are imported. Gratzek said the industry realizes the danger of hazardous organisms coming into the country along with fish, and tries to police itself rather then being forced to by government regulations.

"We're living in an era of ecological consciousness and the pet industry is interested in finding out if anything is being brought into this country that might be a threat to our public health and animals, including fish," he said.

One safeguard is continuous research, such as is performed by Gratzek and other professors in the University of Georgia College of Veterinary Medicine. Last year the Pet Industry Joint Advisory Council gave the college $25,000—and this year a $30,000 grant—to test water and fish samples provided by importers. So far, the studies have shown that contamination by organisms potentially dangerous to human and animal health is no more common in the foreign water and fish than in this country.

Vet college professors have been teaching and researching fish diseases for six years. Most of the research has been on catfish disease because catfish production is an important new industry in Georgia. More recently, however, pet industry grants have allowed the research to be extended to aquarium fish "to make sure importation of fish is not a threat to American fish, including channel catfish and trout," Gratzek said.

The college also offers diagnostic services for fish disease problems through the North Georgia Diagnostic Assistance Laboratory.

The tropical fish disease conference was an outgrowth of a catfish disease meeting held two years ago by the vet college. Both conferences are part of the college's service program, which offers the expertise of college faculty members to professional, producer and consumer groups in the state and around the country.

Goldberg named new CJP chairman

Continuing the early mobilization of the 1975 Campaign of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, Edward R. Goldberg of Newton has been named chairman of special prospects.

The appointment was announced recently by Sherman H. Starr, CJP's general campaign chairman.

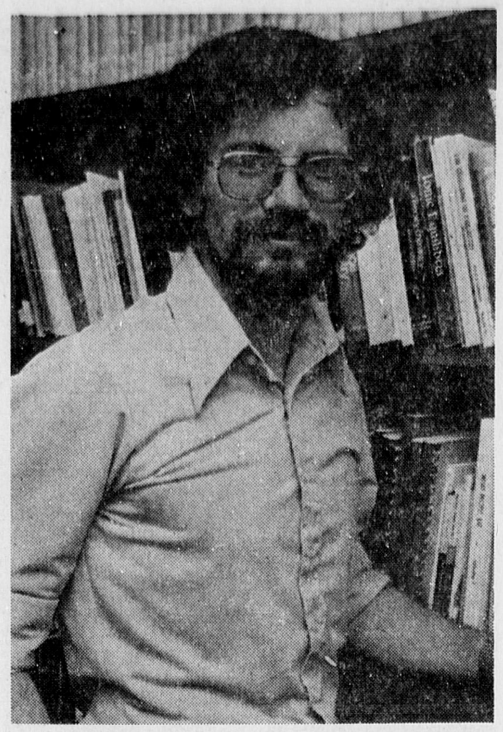
Starr explained that the new campaign category is concerned with "raising people" as well as raising funds. "It will combine continuing education with campaign activity for a select group of persons, in order to braoden their understanding of the needs both here at home and in Israel."

Commenting on his new campaign appointment, Goldberg stated: "I often examine my motives for being involved with Jewish life, and I keep returning to the same rationale: Within my generation we have seen Jewish life at its lowest ebb during the terrible years of the Holocaust, and at one of its brightest moments with the creation of the State of Israel.

"It is clearly not enough to identify intellectually with either the past or present without participating actively in the shaping of the future. The challenge which we face deals directly with the security of our people and the quality of Jewish life in the United States abroad. During these critical times, the problems and opportunities confronting us as Jews do not allow the luxury of being spectators."

Goldberg has served in previous CJP campaigns as associate chairman of the trades and professions division and chairman of the financial services team.

He lives in Newton with his wife, Brenda, who is past president of the CJP young women's division.



Researcher Newton North math teacher Stephen L. Snover is working on the development of new mathematics curricula for junior high school students.

Snover working on math curricula

Stephen L. Snover of 14 Russell Rd., Newton, is working on the development of new mathematics curricula for junior high school students under a $286,000 National Science Foundation grant awarded to the physical science group (PSG) at Boston University.

The group is an association of professional scientists and educators who have been active in the research and development of science curricula for junior high school students since the group's establishment a decade ago. The PSG also produces course material for publication and designs laboratory equipment for science education. It is a closely-knit body with which several members have been associated since its inception.

Snover recently joined the group, which has been developing science programs for secondary school students. Formerly located at Newton College, the PSG became affiliated with Boston University last January.

Snover received a B.S. degree in mathematics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1965, an M.A.T. in education from Harvard University in 1966, and a Ph.D. in mathematics from Michigan State University in 1973.

A co-author of an article on binary codes, Snover began his career as a mathematics instructor at Northeastern University. He has also been a graduate assistant at Michigan State, a mathematics instructor at Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C., a scientific assistant at Technical University in The Netherlands, and is currently a mathematics teacher at Newton North High School.

His affiliations include the Massachusetts Teachers Association, the Newton Teachers Association, and the National Teachers Association.

Museum of Science picks corporators

The Museum of Science in Boston has announced the election of its corporation of two Newton residents.

Mitchell J. Marcus of Bigelow Road, West Newton, and Jeremiah Sundell of Dedham Street, Newton Highlands, were among 22 new corporators named.

Marcus is president and treasurer of Production Systems, Inc., Waltham and vice president of Beth Isreal Hospital.

Medical supplies sent to Cyprus

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in Geneva, Switzerland sent 14 Red Cross delegates and five tons of medical supplies and equipment to Cyprus to aid both military and civilian victims of the fighting.

The assistance was sent in response to requests from both parties to the conflict, ICRC officials said. When the fighting began on July 19, the International Committee cabled an offer of assistance to btoh countries and reminded them of their obligations under the Geneva Conventions of 1949 to protect the sick and wounded, prisoners of war, and civilians in combat areas.

The group of 14 International Red Cross delegates included three physicians, ICRC reported from Geneva. They took with them blood derivatives and medical and surgical supplies and equipment sufficient to treat hundreds of wounded. The delegates and supplies were transported in a DC-9 transport plane made available to the International Red Cross Committee by the Swiss Government.

American Red Cross Blood Centers in this country have been authorized to accept blood donations which persons might wish to make for the wounded in the fighting, with the understanding that the blood will be sent if requested by the belligerents in Cyprus. Otherwise, it will be processed and used locally in the U.S. communities in which it is donated. Similarly, American Red Cross chapters will accept voluntary donations of funds for transmittal to the ICRC

To attend conference

Harry Walen, graduate placement advisor, Needham High School, will join a group of 49 New England school administrators selected to participate in a two and one-half day workshop on school evaluation at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., August 14-16.

As a part of the accreditation process, each member institution of the Association is required to undergo evaluation by a visiting committee of educators at least every ten years. Those invited to the workshop will serve as chairmen of these committees.

GUIDELINES ON
ALCOHOL PROBLEMS

BE SENSIBLE ABOUT SERVING ALCOHOL

1. Don't try to be a super-host by overloading the drinks . . . and thus, your guests. There may be a long night ahead.
2. Don't be in panic about refilling drinks within a matter of seconds. Rapid-fire drinking is why certain people usually get loaded rapidly at parties. Pace the service . . . and the party.
3. If someone declines a drink, don't be a PUSHER . . . be a BELIEVER. Your guest probably has a good temporary or permanent reason for declining. He is not being anti-host . . . just anti-alcohol.

Our thanks to a Walpole reader, Mrs. T.I., who writes that when turkey is on sale she cuts it up and prepares it with potatoes in a barbecue sauce. Her family has now asked her to prepare "summer turkey" at Thanksgiving.

OVEN BARBECUED TURKEY

1 turkey (8-10 lb.), cut into pieces
Seasoned flour
¼ cup margarine
¼ cup shortening
Barbecue sauce
Thickly sliced or halved potatoes,

Each half of turkey breast should be cut crosswise into two pieces. The back, if used, should be cut into three pieces. Roll Turkey pieces in seasoned flour and brown in shortening and margarine. Transfer to baking pan and bake at 325 degrees for 45 minutes. Pour barbecue sauce over pieces and bake for 1 hour longer or until meat is tender. Baste every 20 minutes. Peeled and sliced (or halved) potatoes may be added with the turkey pieces for the last hour of baking. Allow at least 1 potato per person.

BARBECUE SAUCE

2 medium onions, minced
1 green pepper, minced
One-third cup olive oil
3 cloves garlic, crushed
One-third cup wine vinegar
1½ cups catsup
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
¼ cup brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
Two-thirds cup water

Question: I am interested in having a recipe for Spinach Lasagne. I at it at a luncheon and I know that it contained cottage cheese and chopped mushrooms. It was delicious. It had no meat. Thank you very much.

Mrs. Warren Abrams, Chestnut Hill

Orange Peach Crumble

Across the Kitchen Counter

Cheeks blushing, the peach accepts the title "Queen of Fruits" and reigns supreme as the juciest most flavorful of fruits.

Fresh peaches add much to summer enjoyment in the guise of pies, shortcakes, puddings or best of all eating out-of-hand. The freestone peach is the type you are most likely to find on the market — when ripe, the flesh of the freestone separates readily from the pit. Good quality peaches should be bright and fresh with a yellow or creamy background color. The amount and shade of color on surface varies according to variety and pre-harvest weather. Blush alone is not an indication of quality.

When buying peaches look for those that are firm but not hard — those that are hard with a green ground color may not ripen. Unless they are for immediate use, avoid soft peaches and those with bruised or discolored flesh because at room temperature decay will develop rapidly and may spread to other peaches. To ripen peaches, keep at room temperature and if you want to slow the ripening process, put peaches in the refrigerator, but don't keep them there too long or they will begin to shrivel after a week's time.

Dieters, did you know that a pound of fresh unpeeled apples supplies 242 calories and a mere 16 milligrams of vitamin C? On the other hand, a pound of peaches peeled, yields only 150 calories and provides 29 milligrams of vitamin C as well as over 2,000 international units of vitamin A.

Peaches are most delicious just as they come from the tree, juicy and ripe, however if you've brought home a basket or two from a country roadside stand, you might want to try some of the following recipes. It's truly a peachy time of the year!

PEACHES IN SHERRY SAUCE

4 large fresh peaches
¾ cup sugar
2 cups water
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup cup confectioners' sugar
One-third cup cream sherry
1 cup heavy or all purpose cream, whipped

Peel, pit and halve peaches. Boil sugar and water; add peaches and simmer for 8 minutes or until peaches are fork tender. Add vanilla and chill until ready to serve. Beat egg yolks with salt until thick and lemon colored; gradually add confectioners' sugar and beat until thick; add cream sherry. In a small bowl, whip heavy cream; fold into egg yolk mixture. Place a peach half in a dessert dish or champagne glass; spoon sauce over peach half and sprinkle lightly with either nutmeg or toasted almonds. Serves 8.

ORANGE PEACH CRUMBLE

4 pounds peaches, sliced (approx. 6 cups)
6 tablespoons (½ 6-oz. can) frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup all purpose flour
½ cup uncooked rolled oats
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
One third cup soft margarine

Put sliced peaches in 2-quart baking dish; sprinkle with undiluted concentrate. Mix brown sugar, flour, rolled oats, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; cut in margarine until crumbly. Sprinkle over peaches in baking dish. Bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes until peaches are tender. Serve with Orange Cream Topping below.

ORANGE CREAM TOPPING

Whip 1 cup heavy cream until stiff; fold in 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted.

PEACH ALMOND UPSIDE-DOWN PIE

Pastry for 2 crust 9-inch pie
2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
Two-thirds cup toasted sliced almonds or pecan halves
One-third cup brown sugar
5 cups sliced peaches (approximately 8)
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons tapioca
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Line 9-inch pie pan with 12-inch square of foil. Let excess foil overhang edge. Spread with 2 tablespoons butter. Press nuts and one-third cup brown sugar into butter. Fit bottom crust into pie pan over nuts and brown sugar. Mix remaining ingredients and pour into pastry shell. Cover with top crust and seal, flute and prick top with fork. Brush lightly with milk. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes. Lower heat to 375 degrees; bake 35 to 40 minutes more. Cool thoroughly. Turn upside down on serving plate and remove foil. Serves 8. Serve as is or with vanilla ice cream.

PEACH MARSHMALLOW PARFAITS

4 cups cliced peeled fresh peaches (6 peaches — about 1½ pounds)
1 cup sour cream
1½ cups miniature marshmallows
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
Fresh peach slices

Lightly mix sliced peaches, sour cream, marshmallows and whipped cream. Chill several hours to blend flavors. Serve in parfait glasses or individual dessert dishes. Garnish with peach slices just before serving. Serves 6.

UNBAKED PEACH CREAM PIE

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons Cointreau or orange juice concentrate ½ cup whipping cream
1 9-inch baked pastry shell, cooled
3 cups sliced peeled peaches
One-third cup orange marmalade

With electric mixer, beat cream cheese, sugar and Cointreau or orange juice concentrate until smooth; gradually add the cream, beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Spoon into pie shell and chill at least 30 minutes. Just before serving, arrange peaches over filling, overlapping slices slightly and heat orange marmalade just until melted; carefully spoon over peaches. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

Kasper for Joan Leslie's fur trimmed big sweater in American wool

Food and fashion

Ruth Lenson

No nonsense clothes for fall

By RUTH LENSON

The fashion industry calls her "The Contemporary Woman." She's long-legged and slim hipped. . . . she has the ability to put together a wardrobe (as well as make do with last season's things) and look smashing whether she's shopping or serving dinner for twelve on an hour's notice.

When seen at a distance this woman looks terrific, due to a life of diet control and constant exercise; she appears to be at least ten years younger than her actual age.

What's her secret? She knows herself. . . . and likes herself. Enough, to care about how she'll look in a slinky sweater or clingy jersey gown to make her turn away from calorie laden desserts and other forbidden sweets. And secretly she's the envy of others. . . . well, if you're to join the ranks of "The Contemporary Woman", shut the refrigerator door, hide the chocolates and buy yourself a scale — this is going to be a good year for slender people.

The sweater was a number one fashion last fall and continues to be everyone's favorite coverup. Sportswear styling is classic and tailored; tweed or heather yarns suit and complement the pleasant haberdashery feeling.

Colors are muted and yarns are carefully mixed for a tonal quality. Most popular are the earth shades. . . beige, brown, green, rust, oatmeal as well as the soft mauves and mulberrys.

If you have a habit of knitting while watching your favorite mystery program, don't fret if you "over-knit" — the longer the better. Many knit cardigans will take the place of the blazer — those little shrunken sweaters that barely reached the waist are long gone.

Kasper for Joan Leslie knits a handsome bulky shaker sweater in raw wool white and tops it off with a huge fluffy badger collar. This sweater has deep ribbed pockets and cuffs that fold over more than ten inches. Big sweaters such as these double as a jacket and look great over the new full skirt.

Designer Dominick believes in no-nonsense clothes for fall. He also feels that women should be true to themselves, practical and individualistic. He has created a line of heavy Melton sportswear components and bulky sweater knits that require nothing more than a cap or scarf.

His colors are strong and bold and his specially designed sweaters are colorful and new in feeling. Included in his recent New York showing are lovely fine gauge Merino wool sweaters in a palette of fashion colors — with many interchangeable parts. Included in his sportswear are wool tweeds in stripes and plaids, coordinated Shetland and lambswool sweaters in stripes and plaids.

Master of the art of catering to the contemporary woman, designer Leo Narducci feels that she is "aware of fashion as opposed to being governed by it," and designs his clothes with versatility, comfort and price in mind.

His new big-top jackets wrap casually around the figure. . . the skirts are always slim around the hips and are cut into inverted pleat fronts or flat pleats that come from the waistband. Shirts are in delicate georgette crepe stressing the softness of gentle cowl and bateau necklines.

Leo combines arnel crepe de chine with sturdy brushed melton. Using a tiny floral print in creams and rusts, he wraps a pleated, stock-tied shirtwaist in a rust melton big-top jacket. The big-top accompanies a dress silhouette too — in a light weight camel flannel with three-quarter sleeves over a full jersey T-shirt and matching fringed scarf. This same soft camel flannel is used in a long skirt teamed with a muted printed sheer chiffon wrap blouse and fringed big stole.

Kasper for Joan Leslie says, "Sportswear today is classic in design, reflecting ease, movement, an international flavor — all encompassing the mood of today's woman.

In his fall '74 collection, he interprets the classics purely and simply with many touches of Saville Row. He maintains that today's woman wants to dress with understated elegance. Most important in his collection:

Flannels with heather looks, the bulky coat sweater, flannels combined with a modified pea coat.

Shetlands — the reversible rain cape with sweater and pants — sweater sets the reversible topper (from poplin to shetland) and the soft hacking jacket.

Leather appliqued on tweed — jackets and skirts or pants and the overblouse with skirt or pants.

Herringbone tweeds — jacket, pants, long skirt, soft wrap and the mohair big topper with colorful hooded jersey.

As one designer noted recently, "If I were to recommend that a woman add just two or three items to her wardrobe this fall, I'd suggest a sweater set consisting of a pullover with a matching mid-hip length cardigan and a full skirt. . . of course a stock or bow tied blouse would really give her many separates. . . and she'd have a good basic wardrobe."

Newton child center opens September 9

Newton area families will have the opportunity this fall to provide an unusually full preschool experience for their three-and four-year-olds, as a result of a new program set up by Newton Community Service Center, Inc., Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director.

The Child Center of West Newton, to be located at the Unitarian Society on Washington St., will offer preschoolers experiences and activities which, according to teacher-director Susan Werbe, will enable each child to start at his or her own level of development "and grow intellectually, Physically and socially-at their own rates."

The Child Center opens Monday, Sept. 9. Parents can choose to send their child from 7:30 p.m. to noon, Monday through Friday. The Center staffers will make use of two large rooms and two smaller ones in creating learning centers for ongoing art activities, dramatic play, science, reading, and physical and learning games.

Teacher-director Werbe, who has a Master's degree in Early Childhood Education from the University of Mass. and who for the past two years has directed a Headstart program for pre-schoolers of low-income families in western Massachusetts, stresses that the Child Center will use an individual approach in determining each child's starting point and in helping each child to develop during the year. But the Child Center will feature as well, she says, the kind of social and learning experience "that can help children become competent, creative and more independent."

"For example, the calssroom will usually function on a family grouping basis, with both age groups together. Children learn not only from their interactions with the envoronment, adults, and their peers, but also from older children. Older children then get a chance to sense their mastery of a skill, by teaching it to another, younger child." This grouping, notes Ms. Werbe, also helps children to understand their responsibility toward others in the group as well as to themselves.

Parents interested in this year's program can call the Newton Community Service Centers (969-5906) for more information.

Boat owners urged to make frequent checks on safety

Stories and movies are filled with the lure of the seas, and young men running off to become sailors under the gritty tutelage of another era's pioneers.

The lure is still there, and about 9 million pleasure boaters will float a most varied assortment of craft on the nation's waterways this summer in search of peace, relaxation and easy adventure.

Today's boaters are not pioneers, however, and before casting themselves onto the waters, the Insurance Information Institute suggests that some careful preparation on land will help ssure a safe season for themselves and their families and friends.

Coast Guard boating accident statistics provide an uncomfortable reminder of what can go wrong once off shore: boats are swamped and their occupants thrown into the water; capsizings and sinkings lead to deaths by drowning; and fires and explosions wreck anticipations of a champion season.

A Proper Craft

Paraphrasing the words of a popular song, there is a boat for every purpose and a purpose for every boat. An obvious but exaggerated example is that no rowboat is designed to be ocean-going.

The Institute notes that no matter how well designed and engineered a boat is, using it in the wrong waters, or trying to exceed the limitations of speed or capacity for which it was built automatically make it unsafe.

Therefore, boat owners and those thinking of purchasing a recreational small craft have two judgment calls to make: how to tell when a boat is in safe, working order; and, under what condition is it safe to use the boat, assuming all systems are go.

Three Critical Systems

There are three systems to check out: fuel, electrical and steering. They must be more than in working order. Connections, fastenings, protective casings and other parts of each system should be expertly checked for conditions that could produce hazards during operation.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, as part of its Courtesy Motorboat Examination, also checks for: the configuration and working order of navigation lights; sound producing devices; anchor and anchor line, and ventilation systems among other.

Various standards have also been suggested for flotation materials in the construction of boats, and some regulations have been issued by the Coast Guard. Flotation insures that a boat will stay afloat and not sink in the event of a swamping or capsizing. This is vital since most boating fatalities are caused by drownings associated with capsizings. Boaters should, in the event that their boat capsizes, remain with the boat, the Institute says.

Boats have Limitations

No matter how well designed and engineered, the safe boat can be made unsafe by poor judgment. Boaters should use their craft only in waters and weather with which it can easily cope.

In addition, each vessel will have a certain load capacity, whether measured in pounds or number of people. Some newer boats will have a plaque attached to indicate that capacity. Other owners might inquire of the manufacturer or retailer, or of their local Coast Guard Auxiliary for this advice.

Many boats have also been tested for maximum speed or power output under optimal conditions, i.e. with a light load and calm waters. When these recommendations are not on a plaque attached to a craft, the Institute recommends owners check out this data, as well.

Sources For Standards

There are several different sources including the Coast Guard Auxiliary, that recommend safety standards for small crafts and in some cases offer certification and inspection programs, according to the Institute:

—Since Oct. 31, 1972, the Coast Guard has required that all recreational craft meet specific safety standards, and that each boat have a plaque attached certifying that those standards in effect at the date of construction have been met.

To obtain details on what those standards are, or to request a free Courtesy Motorboat Examination, contact your nearest Coast Guard Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary also offers free public education classes. A home study program, "The Skipper's Course," is available from the Superintendent of Documents for a nominal $1.50 (ask for Catalog No. TD 5.2: SK 3; Superintendent of Documents, GPO, Washington, D.C. 20402).

—Perhaps the most exhaustive set of standards is offered by the designers and engineers who made up the American Boat and Yacht Council (ABYC), whose major activity is the research and development of safety standards.

They publish a comprehensive manual entitled, "Safety Standards for Small Crafts," which they make available for $35. For those without the technical skill to evaluate these standards as they apply to a craft they plan to purchase, or that they already own, marine surveyors are available (see the telephone directory), for a fee, to make a thorough examination of the craft. The ABYC is located in New York at 15 East 26th Street, Manhattan.

—The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) has developed another source concentrating specifically on fire hazard safety standards for small craft. NFPA is located at 470 Atlantic Avenue, Boston (02210), and the booklet, Fire Protection of Motor Craft, is available for $1.75.

—Boating manufacturers have gotten together to form the industry supported Boating Industry Association (BIA), which has adopted some of the ABYC standards for their certification. Boats constructed to meet those standards, as judged by inspectors sent to various sites of manufacture, carry a plaque indicating their certification.

No matter what approach is chosen, the Institute recommends that boat owners walk that extra mile to insure that their boat is safe for themselves, their family and friends - and their fellow boaters.

Religious educators in 'Parish Alert' parley

Over four thousand religious educators are expected at the Boston Religious Education Congress to be held at the Hynes Veterans' Auditorium, Boston, on Sunday, September 15th. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and for the rest of the date the Congress entitled "Parish Alert!" will be geared to updating religious educators throughout the Archdiocese of Boston in the current thrusts of religious education. The two predominant themes will be: Family and Adult Education.

The vast exhibition area will be taken over by more than 100 exhibitors presenting the latest publications, audio-visuals and books in the field of religious education.

Heading the huge committee needed to present such a one day spectacular are: Honorary Chairman, Humberto Cardinal Medeiros who will celebrate a special liturgy for the vast throng at 11:15 a.m.; Rev. John R. Mulvehill, Director of the Office of Religious Education-CCD; Assistant Directors: Rev. Robert Kelleher, Rev. Thomas Reynolds, Rev. Thomas Conway; Special Education Consultant, Rev. Lawrence J. Cronin; and Diocesan Coordinators: Sister Karen, CSJ; Sister Mary O'Rourke, CSJ; Sister Agnesine, MHSH.

The special liturgy is being arranged by Rev. Richard Butler, Executive Secretary of the Diocesan Liturgical Commission in conjunction with Rev. Francis Strahan, Director of Music at St. John's Seminary who will also open the Congress with the singing of the National Anthem; the reading at the liturgy will be done by Mrs. Joseph McGrath of St. John's Parish, North Cambridge and Brother Bartholomew Varden, CFX; Petitions from the Prayers of the Faithful will be read by Sister Agnesine of the Office of Religious Education.

The speakers for the general sessions are all prominent in the field of religious education. The world-renowned Dr. Christiane Brusselmans of Belgium will be the opening speaker and will be introduced by Sister Karen, CSJ of the Boston Office of Religious Education.

Following the liturgy there will be a break for lunch and visiting the exhibits. The afternoon session will begin with Rev. Robert Kelleher, Assistant Director of Religious Education introducing the well-known author and columnist, Rev. Joseph Champlin, who will talk on "Making the Parish a Christian Community."

An interesting panel will highlight the afternoon session. It will be chaired by Sister Marion O'Connor, RC, who will introduce Rev. Alfred McBride, O.Praem., of Catholic University, Washington, D.C.; Dr. Rebecca Carroll of Baltimore, Maryland and Rev. Regis Duffy, OFM, of Holy Name College and the Washington Theological Coalition of Washington, D.C.

Others serving on the Committee are: Rev. John Boles, Director for Education in the Archdiocese of Boston; Sister M. Francis Regis, CSJ and Rev. Eugene sullivan, both Associate Superintendents of Education; Dr. Charles Regan, President of the Board of Education and Rev. James Hawker, Religious Education Consultant for the Board of Education.

The closing ceremony will take place at 4:30 p.m. with a Prayer Service conducted by Rev. Thomas Reynolds and Sister Mary O'Rourke, both of the Office of Religious Education-CCD.

Pre-registration through the Diocesan Office is recommended to facilitate good order of the Congress. $5.00 per person. Checks payable to: Office of Religious Education-Boston Congress.

Census survey of housing continues

About 1,250 housing units in the greater Boston metropolitan area will be visited this month by Bureau of the Census interviewers, Arthur G. Dukakis, director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Boston, announced.

The survey began in April. Each month about 1,250 different housing units are in the survey, and when it is completed in March, 1975, a total of 15,000 units will have been canvassed.

Boston is one of the 19 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) in this year's survey. The Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) planned the survey jointly. It is being conducted in response to a need for frequent and up-to-date data on housing, considered one of the indicators of the nation's economic condition.

Joint HUD-Census reports will be issued about nine months after completion of the interviews. Data will be shown for the city of Boston, for the remainder of the SMA outside the city, and for the total SMSA.

All information obtained by the Census Bureau is confidential by law and can be used only to compile statistical totals in which no person, household, or housing unit can be identified.

Interviewers are local residents, locally trained for the work. Each carries an official identification card with the bearer's photograph and signature.

Free booklets on arthritis are available

The Massachusetts Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation has made available the following booklets free of charge to the 580,000 arthritics in the state:

"The Truth about Aspirin for Arthritis," "Arthritis . . . The Basic Facts," "Osteoarthritis," "Rheumatoid Arthritis," "Gout," "Diet and Arthritis," "Systemic Lupus erythematosus," "Home Care Programs in Arthritis," "Arthritis in Children," "Arthritis Quackery," and Spanish language translations of the "Facts," "Aspirin," "Quackery," and children's pamphlets.

Since only 20 per cent of those afflicted by arthritis are receiving proper medical care, it is believed that the information contained in these pamphlets will go a long way toward helping this large number of people, while at the same time reducing the almost quarter of a billion dollars lost to the economy each year in Massachusetts because of arthritis.

These booklets may be obtained by writing to: The Arthritis Foundation, P.O. Box 2161, Boston, Ma 0211.

Newton Centre gains two game edge in playoff final

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Newton Centre gained a two game advantage in the playoff final of the Newton Twilight League's National Division this week.

Newton Centre and Boys' Club began a three out of five series Monday night at Albermarle Field. Newton Centre came from behind in the last inning to score three runs off of Boys' Club pitcher Steve DiBenedetto and give Newton Centre pitcher Joe Astone a 6-5 victory.

Newton Centre took an early lead with two runs in the first inning. Leadoff hitter Steve Riley drew a walk from DiBenedetto. Shortstop Bob Cunningham followed with a groundball to third baseman Dan Turner, who made a bad throw allowing Riley to be safe at second. Astone advanced the runners to second and third with an excellent bunt.

After centerfielder John Connolly walked to load the bases, Dennis Cameron lashed a single to score two runs. Connolly was tagged out at third on the play.

Boys' Club came back with one run in the bottom of the first inning. Shortstop Dana Foley hit a home run to right field to cut the Newton Centre lead in half.

Coach Dana Foley Sr. made a pitching change in the second inning as he put Turner into pitch and DiBenedetto moved to third base.

Newton Centre enlarged its lead to 3-1 in the fourth inning. After leftfielder John Carey walked with one out, Riley scored a run with a long triple to leftfield. Newton Centre then tried a suicide squeeze attempt, but it failed as Cunningham missed a bunt attempt with Riley breaking for home.

Boys' Club tied the score in the bottom of the fourth inning. Steve Rittenberg started the rally by getting an infield hit with one out. Astone then tried to pick Rittenberg off first base, but the ball was thrown past first baseman Cameron, allowing Rittenberg to reach second base.

After walking first baseman Don Keaveney, Astone got Turner for the second out of the inning. Rightfielder Henry Taillacq followed with a double down the rightfield line which scored Rittenberg. Keaveney scored the third Boys' Club run when the next batter, Jerry Murphy, beat out an infield hit.

Boys' Club scored two runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to take a 5-3 lead. After catcher Bob Kinsella hit a one out triple to left field, DiBendetto produced a run-scoring sacrifice fly to center. Rittenberg followed with a home run to left field to give Boys' Club a two-run lead.

DiBendetto went back to pitching in the sixth inning, and was the victim of a three-run Newton Centre rally in the seventh.

After pinch hitter Dave Kelly struck out, Astone and Connolly walked in the top of the seventh. Cameron also struck out to leave Boys' Club one out away from a win.

Larry White hit a ground ball to second baseman Murphy, and the bases became loaded when the ball was bobbled. DiBendetto then walked rightfielder Kevin Moore to force in a run.

Catcher Brad Schiff followed with a two-run single to centerfield and Newton Centre had a 6-5 victory.

Newton Centre edged Boys' Club again on Tuesday night, 2-1, for a two game lead. Both Moore of Newton Centre and Bob Kinsella of Boys' Club pitched excellent games.

A. Rittenberg sacrifice fly produced Boys' Club's only run in the top of the first inning. A double steal by Jack Ryan and Foley set up the run.

Ground rule doubles by Connolly and Cameron provided the game-winning run in the bottom of the third.

Boys' Club had the bases loaded with no outs in the fifth, but did not score as a ground out and two pop ups followed.

Tennis program expanded

TENNIS-NOW, a learning and practice Center specializing in tennis instruction, has expanded its August program to include outdoor playing facilities, a student tournament, and free supervised child care.

By arranging for exclusive evening and weekend use of nearby Fessenden School's four all-weather courts, TENNIS-NOW is able to offer not only its own year-around, fully air-conditioned teaching and ball-machine practice facilities at 12 Watertown Street (just across the bridge from Watertown Square), but also outdoor courts as a setting for social, instructional, and tournament play.

A new course starts every week, with a wide choice of early bird (7-9 a.m.), Daytime, Evening, and Weekend times. Private and semi-private instruction is also offered.

Utilizing videotape playback equipment, ball machines, films, and experienced pros, TENNIS-NOW instruction is designed to build each student's tennis skills and confidence, and thus increase his or her enjoyment on the courts. Students are matched by levels of ability (there are nine different courses for adults and eight for juniors, from those who have never played before to tournament players).

"There are several variables," explains Head Pro Arnie Brown, who directs the teaching staff of 11. "What a student accomplishes is a function of coordination, practice time, and motivation. We don't intend to make champions out of those who merely want to have better ball control."

On Saturday, Aug. 24, TENNIS-NOW students will have a chance to test their skills in the first annual TENNIS-NOW Student Tournament, to be held at the Fessenden Courts. Play will be divided into five events, to insure that everyone competes only at his or her own level. Other special events on the schedule are tennis parties and weekend tennis trips.

TENNIS-NOW is open seven days a week. Three practice areas with ball machines (and the courts whe not used for teaching) are available for rental; reservations can be made up to one week in advance.

For the convenience of mothers with young children, supervised child care is available by appointment, at no charge during August, in the TENNIS-NOW nursery. There is no charge, either, for the use of tennis rackets by those who may not have their own equipment. Only sneakers are required.

Soccer record drops to 4-7

Newton Football Club's record dropped to 4-7 after three consecutive losses in Eastern Mass. Twilight Soccer League play.

Newton traveled to Acton Monday night and suffered a 3-1 defeat. The lone Newton goal came on a penalty kick by John Fobia.

Last week, Newton was blanked by Belmont, 3-0, and lost to Needham, 5-1. Player-coach Skip Stearns scored against Needham on a rebound shot. Fobia assisted.

The Newton adult tennis tournament got underway this week. Both men and women were competing in singles matches around the city, with doubles competition to follow later. (Lupo photo)

Top golfers to play in Ouimet Tournament

Amateur champions and past champions head the list of distinguished golfers who will be playing for the benefit of the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund for deserving caddies.

All proceeds of the tournament will be donated to this cause. Birds Eye Frozen Foods will be the sponsor.

Some of the expected participants to be in competition on Aug. 9, 10 and 11 include: Ted Bishop, former National Amateur champ; Robert Caprera, back-to-back New England Amateur champ '73-'74; Brendan Ingham, '74 Bermuda Open champ; Edward T. Barry, former New England Amateur champ; Jerry Courville, Conn. State Amateur champ, and Scott St. Clair, son of President Nixon's defense attorney.

This is only a partial list of the golfers who are expected at the Woodland Golf Club in Auburndale. Spectators are invited. Voluntary contributions will go to the Scholarship Fund.

Women club champions to play at Ferncroft

More than 75 top women golfers representing clubs throughout Massachusetts will tee off in the ninth annual Tournament of Women Golf Champions at Ferncroft Country Club in Danvers on August 19.

The tournament is open to all 1974 club champions in the state. However, if a club has not determined the 1974 champion, the 1973 champion is eligible. The tournament is sponsored by Commonwealth Bank & Trust Co.

The defending champion is Mrs. Hugh Fava of Folly Hill Country Club in Beverly, whose 75 was one stroke better than a round by Mrs. John Havens of Hickory Ridge, who shot a 76.

The tournament consists of 18 holes of stroke play. A trophy will be awarded to the winner, and a permanent replica will go to her club. The winner will also receive a $100 gift certificate, and certificates of $75, $50, and $25 will be awarded to the three low gross runners-up.

A buffet will precede the presentation of prizes by Phil David Fine, Waban, and James R. White, Scituate, board chairman and president, respectively, of Commonwealth Bank & Trust Co.

Earned run average tells true pitcher ?

sports spice

Commentary by Bruce Cornblatt

Some random thoughts on baseball as I wonder what a Gerald Ford football card is worth . . .

When I was younger and wanted to impress my friends with my baseball knowledge, I would always tell them to ignore a pitcher's won-lost percentage and look to his E.R.A. The earned run average is the true indicator of a pitcher's worth, I smugly observed, because it reflects his performance without considering his team's ability to score runs for him. Now that I have entered the twilight of my sports perception (at the mellow age of twenty-four), I have concluded that the earned run average is not the definitive statistic it appeared to be. As in any team sport, the name of the game is winning. If a team happens to score a lot of runs or play great defense for one particular pitcher, that pitcher becomes all the more valuable. I would much rather have a lucky 20-10 pitcher than a snake-bitten 15-15 pitcher. Where an earned run average really becomes misleading is with relief pitchers. Imagine this scenario. (That word sounds ominously familiar). The bases are loaded with two outs and the starting pitcher is lifted. The relief pitcher enters and proceeds to give up three consecutive singles, scoring the three base runners before finally getting the third out. How does that reliable E.R.A. work out? The starting pitcher gets three earned runs added to his total while the relief pitcher's E.R.A. decreases with one-third inning pitched and no earned runs. This seems about as fair as Richard Kleindeinst's sentence for perjury . .

I'll trade you two Gerald Fords for one Ronald Reagan and a Pat O'Brien . . .

Isn't it irritating to hear those National League snobs tell you how weak the American League is by bringing up Gaylord Perry and Nolan Ryan and old Frank Robinson stories? If you need some ammunition, try the performances of Andy Messersmith, Tommy John or Lynn McGlothen. If that is not enough, sprinkle liberally with Reggie Smith and Sonny Siebert.

Whatever happened to Al Pilarcik and Jerry Lumpe?

I think I have heard about enough of Reggie Smith and how bad that trade with St. Louis was. Judging trades has always been a risky proposition, especially because the standards have always been misleading. You cannot judge the merits of a trade by simply comparing the statistics of the respective players. You must also consider how the player was playing before he was traded. Reggie Smith is hitting .327. Fine. Good luck to him. Reggie Smith was never going to hit anymore than .290 for the Red Sox. If the Sox get help in other areas from the Cards (Bernie Carbo and Diego Segui held this team together in April and May), then it was a good trade. Consider the trade of Jimmy Wynn for Claude Osteen. With Wynn's rampage earlier this season, people will say how Houston got taken. The plain truth is that Jim Wynn was in a rut in Houston and would never have hit above .260 there. What Wynn does somewhere else is simply not that important in judging his trade.

Colson, Magruder, Ehrlichman and Krough are going to make a heckuva prison softball team. How would you like to brush one of them back?

I figure I must spend at least two hours a day defending baseball. It is very chic to moan about how boring baseball is. Baseball is only boring if you watch it expecting constant physical action. Going to a ballgame with a good friend on a nice day, buying some peanuts and sitting back to reminisce is one of the last gentle pleasures in sports. As for the game itself, do not tell me the basic set-up of the game promotes boredom. Baseball has an elegance and time frame all its own. It is the only major sport that has no clock and no definitive endpoint. While this can prolong certain situation, it also keeps potentially exciting situations plausible. Additionally, it is the one sport that promotes the most arguments and second-guessing. There is so much time between moves that every amateur coach gets his crack at the helm.

What other sport motivates people to sit around for days, remembering old names and situations? Besides, how many hockey cards did you ever save?

A final riddle to keep you occupied. What is the one characteristic that these great baseball managers have in common: a-Wes Westrum, b-John McNamara, c-Whitey Lockman? Give up? They all have white parents.

Come let us reason together

By DR WILLIAM F. KNOX

Maggie was a beautiful young wife. She was desperately trying to save her marriage. She was telling me her philosophy o marriage and her attitude toward men. "I want to be an adult woman to an adult man" . . . she said. "I don't feel that I want to be taken care of . . . nor do I want mu husband to feel responsible for me. I want to be able to talk with him . . . say what I feel . . . expect him to say what he feels. I want us to plan together . . . work together . . . party together . . . make love together. I don't think I'm asking too much. I keep myself trim and healthy and sexy."

Maggie went on to say that when she was a little girl her mother taught her to put on perfume each evening after her bath before going to bed. One night she said . . . "but mommy, why? There's no one in bed with me." Her mother's answere . . . "I now, dear, but some day there will be." That mother was preparing Maggie to be an adult woman . . . an adult wife.

Yet . . . with all her early life preparation . . . with all that she was doing now to show consideration to her man . . . always ready for fun times . . . to entertain . . . to talk . . . able to make rational adjustments in the relationship . . . she didn't feel loved. When she told Sigmund her husband that she felt unloved, his response was . . . "I'm still here . . . still married to you." Maggie was perplexed . . . should she terminate the marriage? There were three children and 14 years of emotional investment . . . each year she had lved on hopes that it would get better. It didn't. Sig had come on strong as a lover boy in the courtship . . . fast car . . . money from his part time job . . . lots of parties. Within five years after the marriage all Sig wanted to do was to stay at home . . . look at television . . . drink beer . . . prejudiced . . . bullheaded . . . rigid. He had a big belly now . . . (he averaged a dozen cans of beer per night) . . . lay there on the divan in his underwear. He was the very image of his own father. It was to this man that Maggie was pleading . . . "Please love me."

Sig didn't know how. His whole life was at a standstill at age 41 . . . passed over by his company for promotions . . . sour in disposition . . . indolent. Sig didn't know what he wanted in life . . . didn't know how to love himself or anyone else. Maggie did. The marriage was not saved. But it had a happy ending for Maggie . . . because she was very eligible . . . knew how to relate to a strong man . . . met him and remarried within two years.

Nothing will kill marriage love any quicker than bull headedness and dullness . . . and persons who do not love themselves . . . who depreciate themselves . . . and each other. One or both is not growing as a person . . . one or both has a poor image of himself-herself.

You can't love me if you don't love yourself. It's the biggest problem in marriage . . . so all the other problems rear their ugly heads.

Hurricane season arrives: Red Cross urges precautions

The hurricane season has arrived, hard on the heels of some of the most disastrous tornadoes in history. From now until November, the American Red Cross warns, residents of hurricane-prone areas should take precaustions to protect lives and property when such storms threaten.

The Greater Boston Red Cross Chapter has been updating its hurricane emergency relief plan, according to Herbert E. Cook, Disaster Chairman.

"Under the national Red Cross Hurricane Action Plan," Mr. Cook explained, "each of the three hurricane-prone Red Cross areas - Eastern, Southeastern and Midwestern - has designated coastal district offices, which coordinate the relief efforts of chapters within their territories in time of hurricane disasters. Our local Chapter is coordinating its efforts with the New England Division of the American Red Cross which encompasses the shorelines of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine."

Mr. Cook pointed out that the National Hurricane Center serves as a focal point for analyzing and monitoring tropical disturbances as they form and develop. "A direct 'hot-line' between this center and the Red Cross provides an early alert so that ARC staff, volunteers and equipment can be quickly mobilized. Red Cross disaster team volunteers are placed on 24-hour alert whenever a hurricane threatens a coastal area." The chairman added that the Red Cross has increased its mobile equipment for handling communications and emergency feeding.

He recommended that Bay State residents observe these safety tips if a hurricane threatens their area.

1. Listen carefully to weather service advisories and other official information broadcasts on television and radio. Keep a battery-powered radio available for use in case of power failure, and be sure to have extra batteries on hand.

2. If you must leave your home, remember to take important papers, and such things as prescription drugs, eyeglasses and foods for special diets.

3. If you have not been advised to evacuate, stay indoors, preferably in a brick or concrete building.

4. Keep away from windows.

5. Store drinking water in bottles, cooking utensils and clean bathtubs. Keep a supply of food on hand that does not require cooking. Be sure to have candles and flashlights available. Before the storm hits, turn refrigerators to the coldest setting to preserve foods for as long as possible in case of later power failure. Fill the gasoline tank of your car.

6. Secure outdoor objects and store garbage cans, garden furniture and tools, awnings and other objects in safe places, to reduce the hazard of these objects being buffeted by high winds and causing personal injury or property damage.

7. Put storm shutters in place or board-up windows.

8. Don't touch fallen wires. Report the damage to the power company.

Mr. Cook added a special warning to residents of mobile homes, since these dwellings are particularly vulnerable to destructive winds. "Do not stay in a mobile home when a hurricane is approaching," he said. "Seek refuge in a nearby sturdy building or the nearest Red Cross shelter."

Sons of Italy plan charity fashion show

The Sons of Italy is always pictured as an Italian social organization. The truth is that the order is a fraternal organization which carries out many varied and helpful duties. One committee within the Sons of Italy is called, appropriately, the Charity Commission, which has the duty of raising money to aid the needy.

The latest effort of the charity group is a gala fashion show for both men and women. The location is Hotel 138 in Easton. The date is August 20 and time is 8 p.m.

A buffet will be served.

The fashions are being supplied by Mix 'N Match of Wakefield and Kaps Men's store of Lawrence.

The donation is kept low by the fact that so many people have donated their time, products and services. The food, clothes and gifts are considered more than the $5.00 donation.

Chairman of the Charity Commission Mary Champa of Stoneham has appointed Edward Gaeta of Peabody chairman of this affair. For tickets contact the Grand Lodge office, 126 Cambridge Street, Boston. Telephone 227-4838.

Health For All:

Campfire cautions

Everybody knows about the danger of fire and poisoned insect bites. But not many people have ever heard about the damaging effects of beryllium dust. Expose to fumes and dust from a metal called beryllium can cause damage to the lungs. The fumes can come from the mantles of some - not all - gas lanterns used in camping, says Kyle Griggs of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

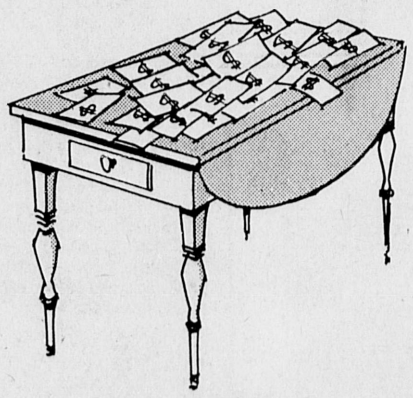
The mantle in gas lanterns is a device, consisting of a sheath of threads, which gives off brilliant light when heated by the gas flame. When a new mantle is used, beryllium fumes can be released in the first few minutes. The mantle is usually lit in a confined space - like a tent - and the camper leans directly over the lamp, breathing the fumes deep into his or her lungs.

Lighting any gas lamp - the first time it's used - in an open area and letting it burn ten or fifteen minutes in the open can reduce the hazard to the lungs. Taking care not to blow on the lantern to clean it, a process that stirs up the beryllium dust, is important.

Many products containing beryllium are not so labeled, and consumers are not aware that precautions are necessary to protect their health. Some brands of gas lanterns contain the metal but do not list it. Workers involved in making these products face the greatest danger. Beryllium is used mainly in the aerospace, nuclear, computer, and ceramics industries.

Inhaling very small amounts of beryllium dust or fumes can cause severe, irreversible lung disease after such a short period as six months. Take care with gas lanterns. Contact the American Lung Association of Boston (your Christmas Seal Association). It's a matter of life and breath.

Make the kitchen table test . . .



Take 20 ten dollar bills, and spread them on your kitchen table.

Look at them carefully and you'll see a lot of shoes for the kids, — food for the table, a lot of bills that can be paid, or even a lot of good times. Two hundred dollars will buy a lot of necessities and a lot of pleasures.

Generally, this is the amount of money that people have saved when they purchased their cars from us after shopping other dealers.

So . . . if you're thinking of a new Ford or used car, remember the kid's shoes, — the meat and potatoes on the table — all the little things that two hundred dollars will buy — then see us.

Nature's Ways:

Ibis and egret nesting in state

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

Perhaps New England is drifting south, or Florida is shifting northward. Anyway, two species of wading birds never before recorded as breeding in Massachusetts were discovered nesting in the commonwealth this summer.

The glossy ibis and the cattle egret were found breeding for the first time on Massachusetts coastal islands. The ibises were breeding on Clark's Island off Duxbury and House Island off Manchester. The cattle egret nest and chicks were discovered on House Island.

In addition to finding the new breeders, birders taking part in the First Massachusetts bird atlas survey reported an unexpected increase among wading birds whose numbers have been down since the postwar hard pesticide abuse. The return of little blue herons and black-crowned night herons was especially noticeable. In addition, the snowy egret has become a rather common breeding bird on some coastal islands. One great blue nest was found on Clark's Island.

The first recorded breeding of the glossy ibis in Massachusetts was established in mid-July by three ornithologists of the Manomet Bird Observatory. Kathleen Anderson, director, and Wayne Petersen and Brian Harrington, biologists, found two nests containing young glossy ibises and noted at least 15 young ibises that had left nests.

Proof that cattle egrets were breeding on House Island was established by Christopher Leady, a guide for Massachusetts Audubon international tours. Leahy also found glossy ibis nests on House Island, but his discovery followed the Manomet confirmation by more than a week. Cattle egrets have visited Massachusetts regularly for at least 20 years but have not been known to breed here.

The search began late last summer when Petersen noted that more than 100 snowy egrets and 30 to 40 glossy ibises were feeding in salt marshes in Marshfield. The unusual number of both egrets and ibises indicated that the birds might be breeding in the area. Each evening the birds left the marshes to fly to an unknown roost. By using the bee-hunter technique of following the line of flight as long as he could see the birds and then picking up the flight again the next evening at the last point of observation, Petersen discovered that the birds were flying to Clark's Island.

Let the Head Rule the Heart

Q. I read your column in our local paper each week and find it extremely interesting. I would like to know more about myself. I was born on April 29, 1958 at 10:59 a.m. in Ayer, Mass.

J. E.

A. Your horoscope indicates you are at your best when you use your good common sense depending on your discriminating and analytical ability. There are times when you are apt to think in vague if beautiful ways, letting your imagaination run wild and your feelings deceive you.

The sooner you realize that your emotions cannot be depended upon the better are the chances that you will avoid being hurt. You know that you are quite sensitive and can be deeply hurt by imagined as well as real slights.

You have the ability to absorb knowledge readily and should make a good student. You are curious, being eager and anxious to find out things and this is fine as long as you confine this curiosity to developing your mind. However, do be careful when it comes to emotional matters, romance and sex. Keep in mind that saying, "curiosity killed the cat."

Be particularly careful about how you may be attracted to that which is mysterious or strange. You have an ability to attract some folks who are unreliable if not queer and who may stimulate your senses but end up by causing you grief.

You crave warm, sumpathetic treatment and if denied you are apt to develop a very complex emotional nature. Be discriminating in your choice of friends, companions and eventually a lover and you can find true happiness. Let your head rule your heart.

'The Trees' appearing at Paulist Center

The Trees will present a Christian Experience in original music on August 13 and 14 at the Paulist Center, 5 Park St., Boston. David Lynch, a member of the group, describes their meditative music: "We use our voices and instruments to create layers and colors of sound texture in composing oratorio, chant, art song, raga, acapella, and instrumental works. These blend together to create a unified meditation which seeks to make a fragment of Christ's love visible."

The Trees group, which takes its name from Psalm 1, is based at the Cathedral of St. John the Devine in New York City where they frequently perform. Audiences of all ages across the country have partaken of this testimony of song and music. The Paulist Center stated:

"The harmony of music and lives exhibited by members of The Trees did not happen overnight. Four years ago they came together in an attic in Manhatten seeking community with each other. They sought to make contact with God's Spirit through silence, Eastern spirituality, and drugs. But after eight months of odd jobs and eating rice and vegetables, the silence was destroyed. Disillusioned, they split to different parts of the country to continue the search. When they returned to New York, they found that a miracle had taken place - each had individually experienced God's forgiveness in the person of Jesus Christ.

"They planned a nation-wide tour of various communities and monastaries to share what was happening to them. Before leaving, they acquired some strange but beautiful instruments, which none of them knew play, then set out in an old white school bus. In spite of the difficulties of living very close to one another in the bus for the next two years, a growing harmony and peace revealed to them that the Lord had given them the gift of composing original music with the help of the Spirit. Their forty different instruments belong to the religious traditions of other cultures, including the sitar and tamboura from India; the chiang and koto from China and Japan; the belangi from West Africa and bells, gongs, drums, zither, flutes, and clarinets from everywhere.

"In the words of an observer: The music is unlike any that I have heard, and undoubtedly springs from the life of Christ in their community. It is a deep expression of the Holy Spirit's indwelling, and is therefore more contemporary than twentieth-century music."

Tickets for the concert August 13 and 14 will be on sale for $2.50 at the Paulist Center which is located at 5 Park Street across from the Boston Common.

Backyard Frontier:

Joining the recyclers

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

I finally talked my neighbor Peggy into joining the local recycling program.

"I didn't really do it to cut down on solid waste pollution," she told me. "I did it to cut down on noise pollution from my neighbor."

"You were a tough one to persuade," I said. "But whatever the reason, welcome aboard!"

"Actually it was the story you told me about the crazy amount of packaging in people's trash."

"Story, nothing!" I said. "Packaging really is between 30 and 40 percent of municipal solid waste, according to the Environmental Protection Agency. Not only that, but packaging accounts for 47 percent of all paper production, 14 percent of aluminum production, 75 percent of glass production, 8 percent of steel production, and 29 percent of plastic production."

"O.K., O.K., you told me last week," Peggy protested. "How can you keep those numbers in your head, anyway?"

"Telling people like you who need persuading to recycle keeps me in practice," I said.

"Recycling hasn't been half bad," Peggy said. "Once I found a spot in the room closet for bottles, a shelf for a box of squashed cans, and a corner in the cellar for overflow and papers, it's simple to take them to the town recycling area every so often."

"You know, Peggy, it really makes me happy you haven't found recycling as much of a nuisance as you thought it might be."

"The amazing thing is the way I can actually see it cutting down on the trash. I used to put out six barrels, and now I'm only putting out four or five. The kids love that. . . it cuts down on their weekly chores."

"That will change when they find they have to help recycle!"

"It's lucky I started recycling, since one of the garbage can bottoms is only hanging on by a sliver of metal. I'd throw it away if I could figure out how to make the trash men take away a trash can."

"That's a problem even I don't have a theory for solving," I said. "I think there must be a union rule that trash men can only carry off new trash cans. But if you take easier problems, like the energy crisis. . . it would save a lot of energy to cut down on total packaging volume. About 5 percent of U.S. industrial energy goes to packaging, the EPA says. And it's not necessary. . . all this overpackaging is something that's just been escalating since World War II. It drains our natural resources, wastes our energy, uses up our land to make dumps, and the one sho pays for it all is the consumer."

"Yes, yes, I know, that's what you've been telling me for the last year. If you don't stop the noise pollution, I'll go back to throwing away all my trash again."

"Anything but that! Tell you what. . . you recycle, and I'll never say the word again."

Retroactive pay increase from M.N.G.

"Several thousand former Massachusetts National Guardpersons have a retroactive pay raise awaiting them but probably don't know it," says Major General Vhan Vartanian, the adjutant general of Massachusetts.

Guardsmen and women who served on any pay status from October 1 through December 31, 1972, but have since been discharged or left the Guard for some other reason are entitled to a retroactive pay raise for that period.

"The adjustment was ordered in the wake of a recent court decision and involves all federal employees," Gen. Vartanian said.

The burden for receiving payment rests with the individual. He or she must contact the nearest National Guard armory for assistance in filing a claim. Those currently in the Mass. National Guard will be processed automatically and need not apply.

Gen. Vartanian said as many as 7,500 former members of the Massachusetts National Guard may be entitled to the retroactive pay raise. In most cases it amounts to only a few dollars.

WFL lies about attendance

Has the World Football League been lying about its attendance figures?

Well, er, ah, yes! And, um, then again, no!

After two teams spilled the beans Tuesday that their announced attendance figures for the year had taken into account all "freebies," WFL President Gary L. Davidson said that the league had adopted that practice to start but would dispense with it by Sept. 11.

The Philadelphia Bell disclosed Monday that 60,000 of the 110,000 fans who saw the Bell's first two regular season home games either paid a discount fee or nothing at all.

The Jacksonville Sharks said 44,000 of the more than 100,000 fans who attended their first two home games paid nothing for their tickets.

Davidson, however, sees nothing wrong with the practice of announcing turnstile count.

"To the best of my knowledge, the attendance figures reflect the number of fans actually in the stadium," Davidson said.

Watch out for Hubie in PGA golf

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — How's Gary swinging? You seen Jack? Has Johnny's baby arrived? Where's Lee? Is Tom's wrist okay?

The clubhouse chatter leaves nobody in doubt that another major golf championship is at hand.

The 56th PGA championship begins Tnursday at the Tanglewood Golf Club and the wonder is that nobody has inquired about Hubie Green.

There was a time early this year when Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and Johnny Miller, the former U.S. Open champion from San Francisco, were making the tour their own private battleground.

Going into the PGA, Miller has five victories behind him and Green, three. Not surprisingly, they stand 1-2 in the money list, with Miller leading at $204,750 and Green at $160,449.

The 27-year-old Green, one of the most talkative players on the tour, doesn't see the PGA as anything more than just another tournament.

"It's you guys (media) who make it something special. Sure, when I win one of the accepted big-four titles, I can say 'I've been there,' but I've already won three times this year and all those victories were sweet."

To illustrate his point, Green said, "Go tell Victor Regalado he won nothing last week." The Mexican picked up a $40,000 check for winning the Pleasant Valley Classic at Sutton, Mass.

Green has just spent two weeks in Florida being "a 100 per cent bum." It was his first break from the tour and he enjoyed it fishing, swimming and playing tennis. "It was great to relax. I think I may have relaxed too much."

To suggestions he has lost his desire because he won so much so early in the tour, Green snapped. "That's rubbish. It's just a mental thing.

"Apart from my victories, there was one stretch of six weeks when I was in a challenging position every tournament. You just get plain tired, that's all, mentally and physically.

"The heat, the travel, the concentration ... it just gets to you. You have a letdown and somebody says you don't care. It really is stupid. Every pro wants to win each time he goes out on a golf course. It's just that there are a lot of good, young, players around today."

Although Green is in the money, he insists, "I don't play for money only," but he does maintain golf is the toughest of the pro sports.

"Just look at the time we spend away from home. How much time does a pro footballer spend on the road? Or a ballplayer? Us golfers, we get to spend three, possibly four months with our families. The kids grow up and you don't know it.

"But it's a great way to make a living. I enjoy it. I wouldn't have it any other way."

Green finished fourth in last month's British Open on his first visit to England, was tied for ninth in the Masters and tied for 26th in the U.S. Open the week after he won the IGB Philadelphia Classic.

"I'm not playing as well as I like, but I have another day to get my game together," he said Tuesday as he bit on a hamburger.

Hubie Green did not wish to discuss the rough, which some of his rivals claimed was unfair, or the weather, which turned wet after two months of uninterrupted sunshine that caused neighborhood farmers a bundle of money.

"What's the point of discussing the course?," Green said. "You have to go out and win the tournament. We all start even. Talking about shots which got away don't help."

And with that Green went out to unravel the mysteries of Tanglewood's 7,050-yards. Not an eyebrow was raised.

The talk was still of Gary, Jack, Johnny, Lee and Tom.

Player expressed satisfaction with his game; Nicklaus arrived late to prepare; Miller, whose wife gave birth to a baby girl July 30, said he was hungry again; Trevino said nothing and Weiskopf said his ailing wrist ailed him no more.

Hank looks to another of Babe Ruth's records

The 40-year-old superstar of the Atlanta Braves, who became baseball's all-time home run king earlier this season when he bested the Babe's career record, is moving at a rapid pace toward another one of the Bambino's golden marks—the record for most career runs batted in.

Aaron moved to within 27 of setting an RBI standard Tuesday night when he drove in four runs with a pair of homers while leading the Braves to a 5-2 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

Aaron's homers raised his career total to 728 and he now has 2,183 runs batted in, including 50 this season.

The Braves have only 52 games remaining and Aaron, who figures to sit out at least 25 per cent of those, will have to push hard to surpass Ruth's career RBI total of 2,009.

Marichal feels good

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The cloud keeps getting darker over the Milwaukee Brewers' dressing room, which has seen the team celebrate only one victory in its last eight games.

The gloom was extra thick Tuesday night after the Brewers dropped a doubleheader 6-3 and 6-0 to the American League East leading Boston Red Sox, whom the Brewers had hopes of catching.

"We've got five left to play with them," said first baseman George Scott, formerly of the Red Sox. "The next two here are almost a must. If they beat us, it puts us in deep trouble.

"Ten and a half out—that's what I call deep trouble," said Scott, pondering the worst of the possibilities by the end of the four game series.

Brewers' manager Del Crandall was only slightly less depressed when asked about the situation.

"Of course, we know these two games didnt do us any good," he said. "It will hurt a little more to lose the next two. It doesn't kill our chances or eliminate us, but ...

He didn't bother to finish.

The Red Sox, however, have much to be happy about. Juan Marichal got his second win in a row after not pitching since May because of shoulder trouble. Diego Segui got credit for a save. Marichal and Segui combined for a three-hitter and Dwight Evans drove in four runs in the nightcap.

Marichal walked none and gave up only two hits in seven innings but said he "thought I pitched better against Baltimore last Friday —I mean after the first inning."

In that game he walked a man in the first inning, then picked him off and retired the next 18 batters in succession.

"I'm surprised my control is this good," said Marichal, now 4-1. "I feel good now. I hope I can keep it up because this is the time the team needs a good pitcher."

Progress made in NFL strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The striking pro football players and the NFL owners returned to another bout of bargaining talks today with the government's chief labor mediator, who described progress toward settlement as "very hopeful."

W.J. Usery Jr., head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called both sides back for talks at 9 a.m. EDT in an effort to end the 37-day-old dispute. He said developments today and Thursday would be critical.

At the end of a five-and-a half-hour session with the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council Tuesday, Usery commented: "I am more hopeful. I don't want to use the word optimistic, but I am very hopeful."

Usery renewed the talks after a weekend which saw both sides in the strike score psychological points. Low attendance marked almost every one of the first 12 pre-season games played with a resultant dollar cost to the owners. On the other hand, a number of top stars such as quarterbacks Bob Griese, Roger Staubach, John Hadl and Terry Bradshaw broke ranks to report to their team training camps.

Pats' top choice enters hospital

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Steve Corbett, the Patriots first draft choice in last winter's draft, will enter Newton-Wellesley Hospital for exploratory surgery, the New England Patriots announced Tuesday.

Corbett, an offensive guard from Boston College, injured his neck at the Patriots' camp on July 18. A day later, he was admitted to Newton-Wellesley and released on July 14.

He had not participated in Patriot practices since then, although he had been at the Pats' camp here.

Dr. Francis Rockett said the exploratory surgery would hopefully reveal why Corbett continues to suffer from neck pain.

Lobsters fined $4,000

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Lobsters said Tuesday they have been fined $4,000 by the World Team Tennis league for walking off the court in a huff May 29 in a match against the Florida Flamingos.

In addition, Lobsters player-coach Ion Tiriac was fined $1,000 for the display of temper.

The team also announced that it has dropped Ismail El Shafei from its draft list. Shafei was orginally picked by Boston in the eighth round of the WTT draft.

Football tryouts Aug. 11

Tryouts for George's Packers of the Newton Football League will be held on Sunday, Aug. 11 at 6 p.m. at Newton North High School.

The team is coached by Kevin Marden and Dick Quigley.

Bring the children to lunch at The Ritz. We have a special menu for them — in fact, it even doubles as a coloring book. And our selections include all their favorites (yes, we have sandwiches and hot dog plates and hamburger platters if that's what they like best).

We couldn't be more convenient. After all, the Public Garden blooms right at our front door. So, before or after your ride on the swan boat, set sail for our upstairs dining room.

Clothing donations sought to aid program for retarded citizens

The Citizen Advocacy Project for retarded citizens is asking people to donate clothing for sale to cover incidental and hidden expenses in the running of its volunteer program.

The proceeds may be applied to costs of publishing educational materials, arranging meetings with the community, sending volunteers to training conventions, or helping retarded individuals to set up housekeeping.

People may donate clothing directly to Juniper House (Newton's residence for retarded persons) or they may take clothes to a local consignment shop. In either case, clothes must be clean, pressed, and seasonal.

Juniper House is located at 14 Newtonville Ave. Anyone wishing to bring clothes, furniture or household items should leave them in a bundle near the garage.

People preferring to consign may take clothing to the following shops: The Resale Shop, 227 Belmont St., Belmont, 484-9729, clothing accepted 10 a.m.-noon Thursday-Saturday; women's and children's clothing only; also household knick knacks.

Discovery, Washington Street, West Newton, 527-3200; clothing accepted in the morning after Aug. 18; women's, children's, and some men's.

People who have doubt about what they can consign should consult with the shops directly. People leaving bundles should tell the shops to consign their items under the account set aside for the Newton Citizen Advocacy Project. It is a 50-50 arrangement on the money; half will go into the Project's funds, or a bank account until it is needed.

The good, the bad and the ugly

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — New Hampshire dentists' wives alarmed because the commonest disease in America today is tooth decay have written a low sugar cook book designed to let you eat your cake and skip the cavities.

What causes tooth decay is bacteria —types which breed on teeth and feed on sugar as it passes through the mouth in any form of food.

"If people would only realize that if they changed their diet to a low sugar diet they could reduce this problem immensely," said Mary Abbott who with Virginia Couret is coeditor of the cook book. "They would also reduce their dental bills and give their kids a much better diet."

Mrs. Abbott said the Woman's Auxiliary of the New Hampshire Dental Society (WANHDS) decided to write the book because "we wanted to educate the public to the real need for a low sugar diet.

"A lot of people think dentists are just out to make money and fill teeth. This isn't true," she said.

The dental profession is beginning to advocate the preventive side of dentistry. But filling cavities does tie dentists up in their offices, so New Hampshire dentists' wives decided they could help with the public education job.

The cook book opens with an explanation of how sugar affects tooth decay, and a list of foods with hidden sugars — like corn flakes, bread, mayonnaise, macaroni, baby foods, cheese, fruit juice substitutes and most canned foods.

Make your own, cut the sugar, and you'll be ahead in dental health, the book suggests for many foods.

It also gives a long list of hidden sugars in foods ranking from root beer to whiskey sours to chocolate cake (with or without icing) to orange juice and malted milks.

Then come the low sugar — sometimes even no-sugar — recipies for goodies like strawberry milkshakes, fudge cake, banana cream pie and orangehoney waffle spread. There also are tips on how to cut sugar from home made applie pie and other common recipies without losing sweetness.

The cook book does not use sugar substitutes such as saccharine.

"It's basically a snack cook book," Mrs. Abbott said. "Most kids eat the wrong kinds of snacks —the kinds that are really going to give them cavities. Mothers would say 'what can I do' if you said cut snacks. This provides an alternative.

"I think one of the nicest things in the cook book is our snack list that shows you the various snacks kids eat and the amount of sugar in each serving. Parents would be amazed if they put a sugar cube in a bowl for each teaspoon of sugar kids eat in a day in some form. They'd have a bowl full of sugar lumps," she said.

Recent statistics show Americans consume more than 100 pounds of sugar per person per year.

The cook book, entitled "The Look Ma, No Cavities Cook Book" has just gone into its second printing.

Following are several of the book's receipes which demonstrate the basic principle of low sugar cooking:

Bana Cream Pie

1 tbs unflavored gelatin, ¾ c water, 2 eggs, 1 ½ c skim milk, 2 tbs brown sugar, ½ tsp salt, 2 bananas peeled and sliced, ½ tsp almond extract, 1 tsp vanila extract.

Soften gelatin in the water. In top of a double boiler, beat eggs. Add milk, sugar, salt, cook until mixture thickens and coats spoon.. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Let cool. Fold in bananas and vanilla and almond extracts. Blend thoroughly. Pour into 8 inch baked pie shell. Garnish with banana slices if desired.

Here's an extra-thick consistency cake recipe with less than two teaspoons of sugar per serving (10 servings):

Fudge Cake

Four 1 oz squares unsweetened chocolate, 3 tbs double strength coffee, 1 tbs brown sugar, 4 eggs, 1-3 c powdered sugar, ½ c all purpose flour, sifted.

Grease an 8 inch spring form pan and lightly dust with flour. In a saucepan melt chocolate with coffee. Beat eggs in glass bowl, place bowl in pan of hot water and gradually add brown sugar and powdered sugar. Beat until stiff peaks form. Fold in flour, one tablespoon at a time. Add chocolate, stirring just enough to blend. Pour into prepared pan. Bake at 350 f. for 45 minutes. Cool on cake rack, then carefully remove spring form.

For frosting, try this instant milk frosting:

Cream ½ stick soft butter or margarine with 1 to 1 ½ c instant powdered milk, add honey to taste, and if too thick, thin with a little water or orange juice.

One-third pint of ice cream has 3 ½ teaspoons of sugar in it. Here's a no-ice cream milk shake with no sugar to speak of:

Strawberry Milkshake

Place 1 c milk, ½ c instant powdered milk, 4-5 frozen, whole, unsweetened strawberries and a dash of vanilla in a blender. Blend at high speed, pour into glass.

And when you can't get small children to drink their milk, put in a drop of food coloring. The color makes it interesting to them.

A component stereo system

By JOE HULL

Depending on who you talk to, you'll be told that any amount from $200 to $2000 will buy the ultimate in stereo systems. Logic dictates otherwise, but with the multiplicity of components available, and claims made for them, one may well wonder just what exactly can be expected for a specific amount of money.

The world can't be promised for $99.95, but the burden of choice can be eased by summarizing just which performance characteristics can be expected at what price, what will be gained if more money is spent, and what will be lost if less is spent.

Within a limited budget ($200-$300), about $200 will get a person started with a component system which provides far more sound than was possible just a few short years ago, or is possible now in console form. Such a system won't, of course, shatter goblets; but it will provide a reasonable amount of musical accuracy for small listening areas.

At the upper end of this price category comes noticeably wider frequency range and more sound output, though still appropriate to a "less than huge" listening room.

With a moderate budget ($400-$500), there are two choices. On the one hand, a system can be purchased which provides accurate musical reproduction in every respect, including the frequency extremes, with sufficient sound output for medium size rooms (2000 cubic feet or less).

Alternatively, if a perso likes to play music very loud in a large room, a system can be collected in this price range which sacrifices some accuracy (bass response in particular) for extra sound output.

What somewhat more to spend ($550-$700), an individual will be able to buy a system which combines completely satisfying musical accuracy with ample sound output for even very large listening areas. In addition, it will include features which add to ease and flexibility of operation, and which help to preserve records. For most listeners, the point of diminishing returns is in this price range.

An unlimited budget ($900 and up) will afford the very best equipment available. Such a system can provide a number of subtle sonic improvements for the ultra-critical listener; truly thunderous sound output on demand; and a myriad of luxurious and helpful control features.

The questions now, are how critical will the listeners' ear be and how much can be spent on a system.

Marketing has fallen apart

Maybe one reason prices are so out of sight these days is that marketing, which was born to keep consumers happy, has committed suicide.

(Which is not to be confused with consumers in the marketplace who, when they get an eyeful of the total on the cash register, sometimes feel like it.)

Back in the good old days, before air cargo and refrigerated railcars and trucks, people got most of their vittles and goods from (1) their own gardesn, (2) neighboring farmers and (3) local merchants who bought from nearby suppliers.

Milk didn't come in square cardboard boxes; you got it fresh from the cow in the backyard. If you felt like steak you slaughtered a steer; for pork you killed a pig. And if your livestock was limited there was always a farmer down the road who could take care of you.

Anything that wasn't grown or made locally folks just plain did without. Or, on rare occasions, ordered up from the catalogue. Ask anybody who's seen "Music Man" — the whole town turned out when the Wells Fargo express rattled down Main Street.

Then farms and factories began to get bigger and farther away. And along came some bright young feller with a dream of marketing; a more efficient way to package goods and distribute them over a wider territory.

That worked pretty well for a while. Farmers shipped their corn to neighboring states...growers put their melons in rolling iceboxes for nearby cities...and people started driving "to town" to shop.

Modern technology made it easy to move goods to faraway markets, and pretty soon there were so many customers for everything it took armies of people to handle the business.

Marketing changed its objective and became a tool for the producer, switching gears to develop packaging and processing for his needs instead of the customer's.

We began to hear about "shelf life," a mysterious combination of ingredients that kept bread (and cheese and whatever) fresh longer. Retailers welcomed the additions, but baked goods haven't tasted the same since.

Then came the fancy boxes and tins and containers to protect food as it traveled around the world. They didn't add much to the flavor, but things got where they were going and looked pretty when they got there.

All this packing and shipping required more and more people to handle the product: brokers and jobbers and shippers and truckers and distributors and wholesalers and retailers. All making a living off the poor little product.

So now, instead of the fresh turkey you picked up from your neighborhood farmer, you get a factory bird that has gone from the hen house to the jobber to the shipper to the butcher (or is it the other way around?) to the supermarket to you. It's sealed in plastic and that's what it tastes like. So the farmer is going broke and the housewife can't afford the bird.

Superior packaging commands premium prices, and beef's a prime example of how the customer gets lost in the marketing shuffle. Feed-lot owners spend a ton of money fattening cattle because U.S. beef grades put a premium on fat you throw away on doctor's orders. So the rancher is going broke and the shopper can't afford beef.

Detroit is the ultimate proof that a manufacturer can carry a good thing too far. The auto magnates got so wrapped up in the idea that they could sell anything that was good for Detroit they almost forgot about us. until we kicked the Detroit habit and went out of the car buying business.

What they're forgetting is the original definition of marketing: to fill a need, at a price the customer is able and willing to pay. And right there, friend, is where she all falls apart.

Laughing Tree—a school for after school

By SYLVIA ROSENFELD
Staff Writer

NEEDHAM — WOW!

Not only has Renata Lofgren created the first private after-school enrichment program for children in the country - Laughing Tree - but her life story is like something out of a fairy tale!

"I was raised in a castle in Czechlosvakia with my parents and my six brothers," the attractive divorced mother of two daughters says. "It had 242 rooms but it all seems like a very long time ago, for we fled to our second home in Germany in 1948 when the Russians took over."

Because her father had been politically active as an anti-communist, he was sentenced to 25 years at hard labor in Siberia. Shortly thereafter, while being transported across Russia in a convoy, he and three friends escaped and began a long march back towards Germany.

"They walked for ten or eleven weeks," Renata recalled. "It wasn't until we had been in Germany fora year and a half that he was reunited with us. He had become gray and weighed only 98 pounds by then and I didn't recognize him when he came into our house."

Renata was ten at the time, and her remaining school years were spent in Berlin where she later attended the Free University. After her graduation she won a scholarship and spent a year and a half in Florence studying the history of art.

Then came her marriage to an American and her move to the United States where she and her husband settled in Wellesley. Some nine years ago they moved to Needham.

"My grandmother was a fantastic cook who owned a Viennese restaurant," Renata explained. "I learned to cook from her and when I came to America I gave talks on cooking to women's groups."

Later, she opened a branch of a Brookline boutique in Wellesley and managed it for three years before going to work at Wellesley College doing research on children of alcoholic parents, thanks to a federal grant.

"I guess my main interest for the last ten years has been children," she said. That year at Wellesley opened my eyes to the fact that many children are left to their own devices after school because of family circumstances.

By the time the grant expired, Renata had begun exploring the possibility of opening an after-school learning center for children of working parents and others whose afternoons might otherwise be spent alone.

Thus Laughing Tree was born some two years ago.

"As far as we've been able to tell, ours was the first such program in the country," she continued. "Bec se I had been substitute teaching in the Needham schools I already had been certified to teach such a program and I've had marvelous cooperation from the Needham Public Schools."

Each day, when school gets out, Renata and her two teachers drive from school to school, picking up the children enrolled in their program and bringing them to their center at the First Baptist Church.

"Of course, whenever there's sun, we have an outdoor program which often includes a field trip to such places as an apple orchard, a museum, an archaelogical 'dig' or a playground where we play ball," Renata said.

"All of our activities are fun for the children, but I have teachers' conferences with their classroom teachers every two months so that we can provide remedial work when it is necessary."

Although her program is eminently successful from the point of view of learning, Renata feels her greatest success — and personal reward from it — is the emotional stability she offers the children through loving them and giving them a feeling of worth and responsibility.

"That's what I'm most excited about," she said. "Some of our children have made real progress in their behavior through our program."

The fact that her own daughters can be with her while she works is another reason why Laughing Tree is such a perfect outlet for her considerable talents.

"Now that Sabina is 14 she helps me a lot, while Tanya, who's 11, enjoys being with the other children" Renata said.

After a three-week trip to visit her family in Europe this summer, Renata plans to reopen the school in September. Also among her plans for this fall is one to remarry.

"I feel as though what I'm doing now is exactly what is right for me," she concluded with a happy smile. "I'm very lucky that everything worked out this way!"

Bell active in recycling

Craftsmen throughout New England Telephone are cooperating in a recycling program that not only is conserving natural resources but also in helping to reduce costs.

Newtonville telephone manager Paul Duncan said the Bell System operating companies have always recycled material but now more items than ever are being recovered.

For instance, 236 tons of wire used by installer-repairmen in home installations were returned to Western Electric in Watertown last year. (Western Electric is the Bell System's manufacturing and supply unit.) Of this total, 153 tons were reclaimed for use as telephone connector cable while the balance was sold as scrap for recycling. Before 1973 nearly all of this material went to scrap.

Last December alone, 125,000 telephone set cords were salvaged.

Also thousands of plastic telephone set housings are being reclaimed using a new method devised by Bell Telephone Laboratories - the research and development unit of the Bell System.

The method, known as vibratory polishing, accounts for a recovery rate that was never before possible.

The program is under way in garages all over the company where craftsmen are urged to place used wire, cords and housings in bins for delivery to Western Electric.

The Pecos wilderness in northern New Mexico encompasses 167,416 acres. Its elevations range from 8,400 feet to more than 13,000 feet.

Regulations due on bicycle safety

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission recently declared that new safety regulations will become mandatory for all bicycles introduced into interstate commerce on or after January 1, 1975.

Over 400,000 people throughout the country suffered bicycle-related injuries serious enough to require emergency room treatment in 1973. The major accident patterns associated with bicycles involve:

1. Loss of Control - This occures because of difficulty in braking; riding too large a bike; riding double on banana seats, rear fenders, handlebars, or the horizontal top tube on a man's bike; stunting; and striking a rut, bump, or obstacle.

2. Mechanical and Structural Problems - These include brake failure; wobbling or disengagement of the wheel or steering mechanism; difficulty in shifting gears; chain slippage; pedals falling off; and spoke breakage.

3. Entanglement of a person's feet, hands, or clothing in the bicycle.

4. Foot Slippage from Pedal.

5. Collision with a car or another bicycle.

New bikes will be required to meet requirements for safe construction effectiveness, strength, and performance. Protected edges for metal fenders, coverings for protruding bolts, and wide angle reflectors for night visibility also will be mandatory.

Consumers are invited to call, toll free, (800) 638-2666 for a copy of the new regulations or for a safety fact sheet on bicycles.

NEW TACTIC

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The Stanford University Hospital has tried a new tactic in discouraging smoking. Instead of signs ordering "no smoking", the hospital has installed a "thank you for not smoking" sign.

What you should know about safety packaging

During the past several months nearly each one of us has had an occasion to open a common household product packaged with a safety cap. These safety closures are necessary to protect young children from the hazards of accidental poisonings.

Things to remember when using safety packaging:

—By design, children will have difficulty opening it, but adults should be able to open the package easily.

—Read the written directions for opening it — usually found on the top or side of the container — be sure to securely close the package after use.

—Elderly or infirm people may purchase over-the-counter preparations — such as aspirin or oven cleaners — with the older screw cap tops. This is because the law allows each manufacturer to make a single size package that doesn't comply with the standard.

—Regular packaging can also be requested by the consumer or physician when a prescription drug is involved.

Brochures and fact sheets concerning poison prevention can be obtained (free of charge) by writing the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207 — or calling, toll free, (800) 638-2666.

Frogs may be hunted the year around in Florida.

WOMAN ALONE

BONN (UPI) — Nearly four million women live alone in West Germany either as "bachelors," widows, or divorcees, but many of them find it hard to make ends meet.

The Federal Statistical Office said the average monthly income, tax exempt, was 640 marks ($206) but many of the women actually earned less.

Despite the hardships, three of four women managed to deposit monthly sums in savings banks.

Bentsen is interested

By WILLIAM CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In newspaper stories about prospective 1976 presidential candidates, the name of freshman Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., usually appears in the "others mentioned were" paragraph, if at all.

Bentsen, a wealthy, self-assured Texas Democratn intends to push himself into the first paragraph, and the sooner the betterm He is not coy about his ambitions.

"Sure, I'm interested," he said in an interview. "At this stage, I am not known. I still do not know if it is feasible for me to run. I won't make that decision before the first of the year."

Bentsen is well aware of his biggest problem. "My recognition factor is very low," he says.

People around the Senate occasionally still spell his name "Benson." When he rises to speak on the Senate floor, there is none of the stir in the tourists' gallery that greets a Kennedy or a Percym

Offers new Face

But Bentsen is convinced that "a lot of people are looking for new faces." And after three years in the Senate, he is ready to hit the chicken-and-peas banquet circuit and spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to help them notice his.

If he can do the job by 1975, count him in the running.

Already, Bentsen is quietly putting together the sort of machinery now operating for two announced "non-candidates" for 1976, Sens. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn.

He has hired a political advance man. His travels as chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee are building vital contacts with party workers, contributors and candidates across the country. Chats with editorial boards of several newspapers have produced a sheaf of copy about Bentsen's political availability.

Bentsen's aides figure he has a lot going for him.

Calls Self "Moderate"

Personable, methodical, ambitious and comparatively young at 53 years of age, Bentsen has confounded White House expectations by charting a careful, middle-road course since he was elected in 1970. He calls himself a "moderate."

Last year, the liberal Americans for Democratic Action gave him a 55 per cent rating on his voting record, while the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action rated him at 40 per cent.

Lawn mower safety standards are coming

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is seeking offerors to develop safety standards for power lawn mowers and lawn and garden tractors.

Over 600,000 injuries involving these two items were reported via hospital emergency rooms between July 1, 1972 and June 30, 1973. A majority of these injuries have resulted from:

1. Contact with the rotating blade — This usually occurs when the victim is clearing the discharge chute of grass clippings, especially when the grass is wet; when the victim adjusts the machine without turning it off; or when the machine hits an obstacle such as a rock and the victim's foot slips under the housing.

2. Propelled objects — Wire, rocks, and twigs can be shot out either through the discharge chute or from under the housing. Many of the victims in these cases are innocent bystanders.

3. Overturning — This occurs primarily with riding mowers which are used on steep slopes or embankments. The victims can come in contact with the blades or sustain injuries during the fall.

4. Mower running over the victim — This often occurs when a riding mower or garden tractor is being driven in reverse; the victims are usually young children who, unknown to the operator of the mower, were in the vicinity of the mower which was operating. Another frequent accident pattern occurs when the operator pulls the mower backward over-her own foot.

Any individual, consumer group, or manufacturer may assist in developing the new safety standard. For further information, contact: Office of the Secretary, CPSC, Washington, D.C. 20207 — or call, toll free, (800) 638-2666.

Audichron machine gives time and temp

Jane Barbe always knows the right time.

If you live in the metropolitan Boston area, and called New England Telephone's time of day-temperature announcement at 637-1234 you would hear her voice, tirelessly and cheerfully repeating the day's accurate statistics, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

One can imagine her sitting in a little room, with a clock, a thermometer and an endlessly ringing phone. But the process of handling the thousands of calls that cme in each day in more streamlined and accurate than that.

Mrs. Barbe, of Atlanta, Ga., a former vocalist with a band, is the voice of the Audichron machine - a service made available to all telephone companies in the Bell System. In Boston, the Audichron machine is located in New England Telephone's call switching center at 8 Harrison Ave.

The Audichron machine consists of three revolving drums, each with a recorded tape on it. On one tape, Mrs. Barbe recites, "The time is. . ." and a number, one through 12, for the hour of the day. On the second tape she counts from one to 59 for the minutes. On the third tape she counts to 50 by tens for the seconds.

The three tapes are synchronized, timed to within a fraction of a second, to give the correct hour, minute and second to callers.

The Audichron is accurate to plus or minus one second per month, and is checked daily against the National Bureau of Statistics at Ft. Collins, Colo., in the early morning hours or late at night.

The temperature is recorded by special equipment on the roof of the Harrison Avenue building, which passes down the information so hthat the correct temperature is selected automatically from Mrs. Barbe's tapes. All temperatures from 40 degrees below zero to 120 degrees Fahrenheit are registered on the delicate machinery.

There are approximately 25,000 calls made a day to time-temperature in the Boston area, with the busiest periods occuring between 6-8 a.m. and 4-6:30 p.m.

In past years, twice a year, when Eastern Standard Time and Daylight Saving Time changed places, the service received its greatest flood of calls, when approximately 20,000 additional calls were placed to the service.

At this time the Audichron's tape is changed, and if you happened to be listening at that moment you would hear:

"The time is 1:59 and 50 seconds."

"The time is one o'clock."

So don't feel that a poor woman is sitting alone in a dark room with her thermometer, clock and constantly ringing telephone. The voice is just Mrs. Barbe, reciting numbers on the tape.

AND LOUIS IS DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Louis, who held the world heavyweight championship longer than any other boxer, was floored 11 times during his career.

Fashionettes

Take a step in the right direction for foot health. Vary heel heights often. For instance, women should alternate high platforms with low heels. Male tennis addicts should get off those rubber soles and into other shoes with more heel. Variation in heel height helps feet feel more comfortable, and gives different leg and foot muscles their fair share of exercise. The advice comes from the newly formed Sole Leather Council.

Skirt lengths should suit the individual. The liberated woman will buy the Big Skirt and if doesn't look right on her, shorten it, says designer Bob Goldworm.

Ilie Wacs, the New York designer, gives us a definition of "couture". Says Wacs, "...it is a look-ahead look and an above-the-crowd feeling expressed in luxurious fabrics and individualistic colors and finely made with hand details.

Blouse manufacturers had a rough time when women adopted the shirt almost universally. For fall and winter, however, the blouse is back, showing in soft, silky, satiny fabrics. Many are embellished with embroidery, tucking, or laces, ruffles and lingerie accents.

Designer Pauline Trigere gives a new name to a familiar coat length, the classic fingertip. She calls it the clipper and does the coats both in fabric and fur.

Saturday shopping habits are changing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Grocery list-making is up 74 per cent. Menu-planning has doubled. Cents-off coupon clipping has risen to 59 per cent, a one-third increase in only 12 months.

The traditional Saturday grocery shopping trip has fallen victim to the gas shortage. A survey of shopping habits shows almost seven in ten consumers now do their major marketing on Thursday or Friday in case stations are out of gas by the weekend.

Results of the survey by Home Testing Institute for Progressive Grocer are summarized in the magazine's 41st annual report of the grocery industry.

A special panel of 500 housewives was selected whose households represent the family population of the United States. Uses Coupons

What emerges from the statistics is a consumer who spontaneously changed her shopping habits in the face of runaway food prices and fuel shortages.

She's shopping more judiciously, using not only newspaper cents-off coupons but also those from boxtops, mail, magazines and store circulars.

She pays more attention to specials, watches newspaper ads for them and reads advertising circulars.

Twenty-five per cent said they almost always consulted other members of the family about what to buy. Twenty-one per cent said they did so frequently. Only 35 per cent said they had made little or no change in their meat buying habits by changing to cheaper cuts. Only 25 per cent said they were making fewer meat purchases.

Mostly they counteracted higher meat prices by cutting down total purchases instead of switching to cheaper cuts.

Make Fewer Visits

The changes they made last year show no sign of ending. Thirty-four per cent of the women said their families had reduced their number of meals at fast-food drive-in restaurants.

Another 35 per cent said they planned to follow suit because of gas shortages.

Households also reduced their average number of weekly supermarket trips 25 per cent to 2.28. Worried about the scarcity of gas, they do less shopping around and tend to patronize only one shopping center instead of several. They make fewer visits and buy more per visit.

Newton Country Players select co-producers for season opener

The Newton Country Players have tapped Margaret Spicer Annis of Newtonville and Marilyn Krassin of Newton Centre to co-produce their season's curtain-raiser, Rogers and Hart's musical comedy, "Pal Joey." The perennial favorite will be directed by Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill.

The production will be available at reduced rates to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising for Sunday through Thursday bookings, Nov. 14 to Nov. 30, at Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, with its seating capacity of approximately 200.

Mrs Annis is a five-year member of the executive board and a past president of the community thespian group, now entering its 19th season. "Pal Joey" will mark Mrs. Annis' third assignment as producer, as she was at the helm previously for stagings of "See How They Run" and "Anything Goes."

Marilyn Krassin

Margaret S. Annis

In her ever-varying involvement, she has served as choreographer for "Little Mary Sunshine," worked props for "Everything in the Garden," and set decor and lights for "Gold in the Hills." She was lighting technician also for "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," both when it was a regular season offering and a N.E. Theatre Conference Drama Festival entrant.

Mrs. Annis has worked as stage manager for mountings of "Suds," "Gabriel Ghost" and "The Balcony," the latter an NETC Drama Festival entry also, and she served as assistant stage manager for both the fall and spring tours of "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," and its NETC drama Festival performance as well. Most recently, she worked on stage crew for the Players' 1974 offering into the NETC competition, "Eve's Complaint."

A student of dance at the American School of Ballet, N.Y.C., she performed for two years in the Theatre Guild production of "Carousel" on Broadway, later appearing as one of the Snow children and as a village girl with the national touring company.

Mrs. Annis has appeared in a number of musical plays including "Roberta," "Desert Song" and "Brigadoon" with summer stock companies in Dallas, St. Louis and Allentown (Pa.). Additional dancing parts to her credit include the Riding Mistress in "Annie Get Your Gun," The Popular Girl in "High Button Shoes," and Little Eva in "Bloomer Girl."

While cavorting in "theatre in the round" in music circus tents in Miami, Fla., and Lambertville, N.J., she essayed the role of Nellie Bly in "Frankie and Johnny," as well as dancing in "Show Boat," "Song of Norway" and "Good News." She appeared also in a night club version of "Make Mine Manhattan."

A former president and a member of the Players' executive board for the past six years, Mrs. Krassin was appointed last year to the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission Advisory Board. She has taught classes in drama for the past two years in Newton's Community School Program for children of elementary school age and for the Children's Community Theatre Group at Rebecca Pomroy House. Founder of the Pomroy Peanut Players, she is giving classes in drama currently under the aegis of the Newton Recreation Department.

Mrs. Krassin has involved herself in multiple areas with the Players including producer, stage manager, business manager, house manager, tickets chairman, sponsors, scholarship program book, set design and construction, refreshments chairman, usherette chief, reading committee, and hostess.

Recently, she essayed her eighth stage role under the Players' banner as a member of the ensemble of "Eve's Complaint," presented this spring at the NETC Drama Festival. Other recent outings include Mrs. Furnival in "Black Comedy," Catherine Reardon in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," which she repeated as a Festival entrant, Mrs. Toothe in "Everything in the Garden," and Chantel in Genet's "The Balcony," again repeating her portrayal as a NETC entrant. She received honorable mention twice in the "Best Actress" category for Festival performances.

Also with the Players, Mrs. Krassin executed the lead roles of Grandma in "The American Dream," Vera Claythorne in "Ten Little Indians," and Elizabeth Corban in "Catch Me If You Can." She served as producer for "Little Mary Sunshine." Other local credits include her appearance in "The Wall" for the National Jewish Theatre two seasons ago.

Children's book read aloud at Junior Library

"Watership Down" by Richard Adams, listed on the New York Times Best Seller List for the last eight weeks, should be thought of as a children's book, declares Mrs. Beryl Beatley, the Newton Free Library's supervisor of children's services, who is reading a chapter or two of the book aloud each Tuesday morning at 10:30 a.m. at the Junior Library, 126 Vernon Street, Newton Corner.

The book won the Carnegie Medal in England and is being widely read in the United States, primarily by adults.

Mrs. Beatley feels "Watership Down" is an exciting book which should be as popular here as the Tolkein books and "The Wind in the Willows" by Kenneth Grahame.

The story is dramatic and involved, "full of blood and thunder, but not deeply philosophical" explains Mrs. Beatley. The story involves a quest for the ideal home for rabbits and is interspersed with rabbit folktales. It should appeal to children age ten and older.

The staff of the Newton Free Library has planned more than 60 summer programs for children including story hours, a summer reading program, films, creativity programs and games at the Junior Library and at the children's rooms of the branch libraries throughout the city.

Specific information can be found in the NFL's monthly Bulletin, available at all Newton Libraries, or people may call 527-7700 for information.

Book show exhibit at Newton Free Library

Reservations for the show are available by calling 332-1393 from 3 to 6 p.m. daily. Tickets will also be sold at the door. The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. in the Temple Emanuel Community Hall, 385 Ward Street, Newton Centre.

Production and music are being directed by Gary Good of the Newton North High music department, while the art work is being directed by Mike Zolli of the Newton North art department. Linda Bickelman is in charge of costumes for the production.

Curtain time on Aug. 8 and 9 is 8 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door the nights of the performance.

The man behind creative playing

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of the Graphic Staff

Terry D'Eugenio is a frequent visitor to the Newton Recreation Commission, and he usually arrives armed with enthusiasm and haphazardly constructed prototypes of playgrounds that consist of wooden forts, blankets of tires, tire swings, tunnels and tree houses.

Terry D'Eugenio is, in fact, the unofficial architect-in-residence here when it comes to the great outdoors for children.

For the past two years, these playgrounds have been appearing at schools all over the city. They were all built by parents and kids and teachers and D'Eugenio.

"A playground is not just a place to go for physical development," the architect explained. "It is a social meeting place for children.

"If it has a lot of interesting physical things, that's good; but it's only part of what children need."

Explaining the theory behind his version of a children's playground he said: "It's got to be a comfortable place to go, it has to have a place, such as the tree house, where children can congregate, and it's got to have cool spaces for hot, sunny days."

D'Eugenio said he also tries to make his playgrounds supplemental to the standard fare of swings, slides, and jungle gyms that have come to represent "playground" in the minds of most people.

Before he begins at a particular school, he hears from all groups concerned, listens to what they want and what is most important to them.

Making general observations, he noted that the children are mainly concerned with what equipment they will have. Their most frequent requests are for tree houses and tire swings and "crawling tunnel spaces."

"The children draw these in art classes or make diagrams in math classes to illustrate what they want," he said.

Teachers, he said, often want to have a place where they can take a class outdoors and request that benches and tables be included in the general layout.

"Teachers play an important role in deciding wherr the playground will go," he explained. "They consider the amount of sunlight and want a location where they can easily see what's going on."

"Sometimes they see this type of playground as a separate entity and want it remote from the existing playground.

Debate tonight on drinking ban

The question of whether or not drinking will be banned in city parks, on playgrounds or on public or private ways might be reconsidered by the Board of Aldeermen tonight.

At its regular meeting Monday, the board voted 13-7 in favor of a drinking ban ordinance that had been heavily modified since originally proposed by the Newton Police Dept.

Ald. David Jackson moved reconsideration, opening the question to debate again tonight at the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen called for 7:30 p.m.

Jackson said Wednesday that in view of the fact attempts to pass amendments proposed during debate had all failed by a 9-11 vote, he felt the split in opinion among aldermen was strong enough to warrant a second look at the ordinance.

Jackson said he felt the "intent" of the ordinance was "good," but that he has "serious reservations" about it.

Four aldermen, Michael Antonellis, Alan Barkin, Michael Lipof and Mark White, missed the meeting.

The heavily debated drinking ordinance, as modified by Ald. Terry Morris and approved, says no person "shall drink or consume from an open bottle, can or container any intoxicating liquor or alcoholic beverage while in or upon public parks, playgrounds, recreation or conservation areas, public buildings, public parking lots, private parking lots, public ways and private ways to which the public has access."

The chief of police is charged with the power to grant a $2 permit to any group who wishes to drink in any of these places.

Stricken shortly before the ordinance was passed was the word "possess" (an open bottle, can or container).

Becuase of this deletion, police would actually have to observe someone drinking from a container in a public place without a permit before they could take any action.

The ordinance empowers them to confiscate the open containers of liquor or beer.

Claiming that the ordinance represented an infringemement on civil liberties, Ald. Joseph McDonnell made four attempts to have it further modified by amendments and each amendment lost by a vote of 9-11.

He sought to strike all locations from the ordinance except playgrounds and public parking lots, to insert a ban that would mean the ordinance applied between the hours of 7 p.m. and 7 a.m., to strike the public and private way locations and to take away police power to confiscate beverages being used in violation of the ordinance.

Other opponents of the ordinance said that it was not really directed at the problems the city wants solved.

"The problems of vandalism, rowdiness and loud noise are what we seek to regulate," Ald. David Cohen said. "These sometimes occur in connection with drinking but I do not feel this ordinance will help prevent that kind of conduct."

"We are trying to treat a symptom, not a cause," Ald. Matthew Jefferson said. "We're all being hypocritical in what we're doing here."

Jefferson said he objected to the ordinance because it is really aimed at "young people who like to congregate."

Ald. Richard McGrath told the board that he originally intended to vote in favor of the ordinance, but had changed his mind after listening to Monday night's debate.

"I probably received more calls on this in the past two or three months than any other

Businessmen discuss Lower Falls

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

Three businessmen reported their preliminary proposals for the development of the south side of Washington Avenue, Lower Fall, at a meeting held Aug. 7 at the offices of the Newton Redevelopment Authority. The businesses involved are the Arthur T. Gregorian Co., G. Arnold Haynes, Inc. and the Shipley Company.

This is the second presentation made by the businessmen since an earlier one was opposed by the Metropolitan District Commission because it included plans to change an existing footbridge and fill a portion of the river.

The newest plan, presented by C. R. Shipley, Jr., provides for improved access for trucks to the Shipley Co. loading docks. It is contingent upon real estate transfers between Gregorian, Haynes and Shipley. If the plan were to be implemented, it would also provide for the rerouting of the MDC and city access to the river located in back of the businesses.

This plan is acceptable to the MDC and according to a letter from John W. Sears, commissioner, "reflects a greater awareness of the value of a river bank location." The MDC plans to secure the river bank on the Wellesley shore and acquire title to the dam and footbridge. The footbridge which is in shaky condition is slated for restoration.

It was also recommended at the meeting that the city give their easement to the MDC. According to Executive Director Gerald Early, after the need for the NRA offices are through, the building will be destroyed and the area will be turned into green space.

City Planning Director Charles Thomas stated the plan was "acceptable as long as no fill will go into the river." However, Thomas added that he was still "concerned about the treatment of the river bank" and the so-called "third leg of the footbridge."

According to City Engineer U. M. Schiavone, the plans were also acceptable providing they were "the plans" and indicated he wanted to see a detailed topographical map.

Schiavone said he would be willing to assist Shipley's engineer with information and background records at City Hall. The engineering work will be done privately.

The plan will need special enabling legislation required for alteration or diversion of public land. This will be filed the first week of December. In addition, Hatch Act hearings will have to be held by the Conservation Commission, a necessary step when wetlands are involved. Shipley has been asked to report back to the NHA no later than October.

In addition to Thomas and Schiavone, others attending the meeting were Robert G. Ward Jr., representing the Gregorian Co.; Mildred F. Colantuono, a member of LOPAC; Richard H. Brown, Wellesley planning director; Sally McNair, member of the Wellesley Conservation Commission; G. Arnold Haynes, Shipley; Frederick S. Lane, Shipley Co. attorney and two representatives from Shipley, William H. MacCrellish and L. R. Swift. Also in attendance were Charles Downe, planning consultant and Helen Heyn, Conservation Commission secretary.

Special Board meeting tonight

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held tonight (Aug. 15) at 7:30 p.m. to deliberate a proposed ordinance on recycling and complete City Planning Committee business.

The recycling ordinance, proposed by Ald. David Cohen, was "chartered" at the Board meeting Monday night by Ald. David Jackson.

One thrust of Cohen's proposal is to set aside funds for proper notification of Application for kidnapping complaint denied by clerk

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton District Court Clerk Henry Shultz denied an application this week for a complaint of kidnapping against a Newton doctor who allegedly removed his son from a Hare Krishna temple in Allston.

Dr. Eli Shapiro of 1400 Commonwealth Ave., West Newton, reportedly picked up his son Edward, 20, on Tuesday morning, Aug. 6. He has told police that he had made arrangements with Ted Patrick of San Diego, who specializes in "rescuing" young people from fundamentalist religious groups by deprogramming them. Edward had reportedly been a Hare Krishna member for the past 13 months.

Another youth, Lee Allan Roth, 25, was also reportedly taken by his father, Dr. Monroe S. Roth, from the Hare Krishna headquarters that Tuesday afternoon. Both youths were said to have been taken to the Shapiro home.

According to a member of the Hare Krishna group, Edward Shapiro called Tuesday night, saying "come save us." Apparently, as a result of this call, five members of the Hare Krishna group travelled to the Shapiro home.

Newton Police received a call from Mrs. Eli Shapiro at 2:38 a.m. on Aug. 7. She reportedly said that her house was under siege by members of the Hare Krishna group.

Police found the Hare Krishna members near the Shapiro house. A spokesman, Angus Murphy, reportedly told police that the group lived at the Hare Krishna Temple, 40 North Beacon St., Allston, and that two members of the group, Edward Shapiro and Lee Allan Roth, were being held in the house against their will.

One of the Hare Krishna members reported this week that Roth could be heard calling from the house, "break in."

Police also spoke with Dr. Shapiro, who reportedly said that the Hare Krishna group had attempted to enter his home.

Dr. Roth was also reportedly present when police arrived. He reportedly said that Lee had accompanied him on his own free will. According to police, Lee gave no indication in the house of being held captive. It was reportedly observed, however, that Edward Shapiro "appeared confused."

Police informed members of the Hare Krishna group that they were making a disturbance and trespassing on the Shapiro's property. They were also reportedly told that there was a possible attempted breaking and entering charge whick could be connected with their presence.

Attorney Paul Feinberg of Richmond, Kassler, and Feinberg reportedly called Newton Police at 3:30 a.m. on Aug. 7 and said that Dr. Shapiro was holding Edward Shapiro and Lee Allan Roth against their will.

Members of the Hare Krishna group appeared at police headquarters later Wednesday morning. They reportedly arrived at the Detective Bureau at 10:45 a.m. and inquired about an investigation.

After speaking to police, they reportedly went to Newton District Court. Shultz scheduled a hearing for Wednesday, Aug. 14, in regards to the alleged kidnapping of Edward Shapiro by his father.

George Ford of Burns and Levinson was present at the hearing to represent Dr. Shapiro. Feinberg and Edward Richmond represented the Hare Krishna group.

Reporters were present when Shultz entered to begin the hearing, and Shultz said that it was common practice for them not to be present for such proceedings. Shultz said that "if a complaint is issued it becomes a public matter."

Feinberg said that he had no objection to the presence of reporters, but Ford did object, commenting that he did not "see any reason for the press being here except to fan the flames."

The hearing was interrupted after about an hour, and Shultz and the attorneys walked to the nearby police station. Murphy had said earlier that Shultz seemed to think that Hare Krishna members were "nuts." He expressed doubt over whether Shultz was an objective arbitrator.

Silver Lake has been disappearing for 40 years

What is chronicled below is a story that will most likely be repeated many times in Newton due to the amount of diminishing land. This is not written in judgement. Only observation. But it behooves each citizen to make themselves aware of the land in Newton and begin to think of how all this land should be used or saved. Because the next piece of property could be in your neighborhood or your backyard.

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

Silver Lake lies in the heart of a densely populated section of Nonantum hidden by grotesque industries which have displayed a singular lack of concern for the aesthetics of the site.

The lake is bounded by piles of gravel, plain ordinary junk, cattails and willows. It is filled with water lillies and jutting out in the middle, somewhat bizarrely placed are large, rusty barrel-like containers.

The one neighbor who seems to care about the lake is Donato Cedrone who has been desperately trying to save the water since 1920. No one heeded Cedrone's pleas; and bit by bit, the water was filled in and violated until what is left is really a pond which Cedrone says bitterly should be called "Cedrone's Pond."

According to Cedrone, the lake was once as big as Crystal Lake, but because of industrial development and the filling of the marshy areas, its size was diminished and Cedrone himself was left with an extra one-eighth of an acre of land . . . land that was once water.

Now Cedrone has appealed to the Conservation Commission to aid in his 40-year-battle.

In addition to Cedrone's plight the commissioners are concerned about the Public Works Department's intentions to pipe an open section of the Silver Lake drainage channel.

The Commission has agreed to ask for a "cease and desist" order to go out to Walter and Frank Miller and the Belli Construction Company to stop them from putting further fill in the area. However, the order must be issued from the building department which is responsible for enforcing it. Another suggestion has been to install a boundary which would act as a buffer zone and prevent the existing piles of earth and gravel from falling back into the lake in addition to keeping trespassers off Cedrone's property.

The lake is on the list of open space recommendations prepared by the Newton Conservators Open Space Committee that asks the area be preserved as a neighborhood park.

This list is due to be voted on by the board of directors in the fall.

The committee contends that the area was in a location that was "park deficient." Their vision saw the lake as restored and as a breathing space of greenery with benches for the neighbors living in the clogged area so they could simply enjoy pretty scenery. The committee feels that "senic enrichment is important and necessary at the neighborhood scale" and lists the site as a "priority acquisition."

However, Cedrone is vehemently opposed to such an acquisition stating that it is "irrational and unreasonable." He feels that he doesn't want "roadways or to be harassed by picnickers."

Cedrone points out that as it is, they are "harassed by kids throwing stones at the turtles." Although he spurns summer trespassers, Cedrone does permit children to skate on the property in the winter. Living with his 83 year old mother, he describes his property as his mother's "last refuge" and is definite on the subject of not having the property turned into a park.

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

The Newton Recreation Commission voted this week to establish a new procedure for overseeing use of the athletic facilities at Newton North High School.

The Commission voted unanimous approval of a system which will require Newton residents wishing to use the Newton North pool or gymnasium to purchase a picture identification card.

The card will probably be purchased directly from an outside photographer designated by the Recreation Department, although there was some discussion of the city acquiring the necessary equipment.

Under the new system, to be in effect from Oct. 1 until the end of May, there will be no daily fees for the use of Newton North. The cost of the identification card has not been determined yet, although $2 has been asked for by one photographer already contacted. Several members of the Recreation Commission expressed hope that disoount rates could be possible for large families.

An argument in favor of having a picture identification system was that it will curtail the use of Newton North by non-residents. It was noted that if the system is successful at Newton North, it may be carried over to the tennis and summer swim seasons.

Much of the implementation of the new process has been left up to Recreation Director Russell Halloran. People will tenatively be able to acquire identification cards in late September.

The Recreation Commission heard a presentation by Ken Hagerstrom on the structure and plans of the Newton Youth Hockey Association.

Hagerstrom told the Commission that in 1973-74 the Youth Hockey Association had 509 boys between the ages of five and 18 participating. There were also about 100 adults involved and about 900 hours of ice rental.

Hagerstrom explained that most of the boys involved are between the ages of nine and 13, including 67 nine-year olds and 57 10-year olds.

Geographically, the Association included 106 boys from Newton Centre and 78 from Newton Corner. There were only six boys from Newton Upper Falls and none were known from Nonantum.

Hagerstrom said that in 1974-75 there will be a program for girls for the first time. Goals of the organization include involving more people, involving more city money, improving the coaching, and shortening the length of the season.

Last year, the hockey season ran from early October to the end of April. This coming year, the Association will skate from early November until the end of March.

The Association will move next season to Fessendon School after playing last year at the Charles River Ice Skating Center. The Association also hopes for ice time at MDC rinks, which would save money.

Hagerstrom said that expenses for 1973-74 were $54,987 while income was $59,015. Ice rental was by far the greatest expense while registration fees provided most of the income. 1974-75 expenses have been estimated at $76,435 while an income of $76,950 is hoped for.

Several members of the Recreation Commission expressed hope that scholarships could become available for kids who could not afford to play hockey otherwise. According to Hagerstrom, playing in the intramural program costs a fee of $75, while the expense of being on a traveling team is between $80 and $150. An additional large expense can be equipment. Hagerstrom talked about an equipment exchange as being one of the goals of the Association.

Hagerstrom said that the Association would like $5500 from the Recreation Commission for 1974-75. Members of the Commission remembered an initial request of $10,000 and planned to inquire about how the figure of $5,500 had been arrived at during budget meetings.

Hagerstrom also talked about the Association's achievements during 1973-74. He said that they included better budget control, a program for non-skaters, and fund raising. The non-skaters program reportedly included 50 boys, 23 of whom had never been on skates before.

The program for girls next year will be dependent on the amount of interest shown.

The Recreation Commission heard the results of a recently completed survey which asked tennis permit holders whether they wished a change in the rule which denies playing with non-resident guests on supervised courts. The survey asked whether they would like the rule changed so that they can plan with a guest once a week while losing an hour of their allotted playing time and being charged $2.

The survey was sent out to 1502 permit holders and 420 opposed a change in the present rule. There were 355 people in favor of the proposed rule change, and 15 people offered no definitive opinion.

Tennis buff Harvey Harrison said that he understood that many people who said no to a rule change did so because they did not want to pay $2 and lose an hour of court time.

Recreation Commissioner Nelson Baker and Paul Burke commented that they could not support a rule change after hearing the results of the survey.

Mayor appoints budget officer

Michael Lebner of Winchester has been appointed the mayor's "chief budget officer," rounding out the three-man mayoral staff that was the first phase of the reorganization of the top level of city government.

Lebner, who assumed his duties this week after his $20,000 salary was approved by the Board of Aldermen Monday night, will be primarily responsible for the development and implementation of "performance budgeting," which the administration expects will greatly improve evaluation of department performance.

In addition to responsibility for the technical preparation of the budget, budget administration, and performance audit, Lebner will administer the city's electronic data processing functions.

Lebner, a native of Canada, is a 1969 graduate of McGill University, Montreal, with a B.S. degree in mathematics. He received an M.S. in management from the Alfred P. Sloan School of Management of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1971.

Lebner has been employed in a management capacity with a garment manufacturer and a building supply chain of stores in Massachusetts.

He and his wife plan to move to Newton.

Miller appointed to new post

The appointment was made by the University's vice president for resources and public relations, Robert J. Desmond, and was the result of a 15-week search conducted by alumni volunteers who are involved in the field of public relations and Boston's news media.

Miller, a resident of Milton, is currently director of sports publicity for Boston College, a post he has held since 1960. Prior to that time, he was business manager for the athletic department. He holds a master's degree in business administration and a bachelor of science from Boston College, and served with the Marines from 1950 to 1953. He is married and has nine children. Disposal bids being evaluated

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

On the basis of bids opened last week, it appears that the cost of shutting down Newton's incinerator and going to an alternate system of refuse disposal will cost little if any, more in annual cost.

The Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Board Disposal District Committee, which obtained bids for Newton and Waltham alone and together, will meet next Thursday to hear its consultant's evaluation of the bids, and by the end of the month is expected to make its recommendation to the two cities.

Bids were received from five firms, of which only three are of interest to Newton.

On a five-year extendable contract, using present rubbish tonnage figures, SCA Disposal Services of New England could dispose of both cities' rubbish for $13.38 per ton; M. DeMatteo Construction Co., $15.82; and Resource Systems, $15.70.

Per-ton costs of using the incinerator were figured by the Arthur D. Little Co. at $12.42 per ton for 1972. Former Public Works Director Dudman recently estimated that that cost had risen to around $15 per ton.

Thus the annual cost of disposal of Newton's 57,000 tons of trash may not be more than $800,000 for Newton. Collection and street cleaning account for another $1.5 million.

When Newton switches off from the incinerator, the $81,000 annual debt on the incinerator, which has not been fully paid for, will continue, but most of the cost of landfill operation — $145,000 — will stop.

Costs would go down as tonnage goes up. There are several variations in collection, such as allowing collection of commercial rubbish in Waltham and including recyclable metal and paper, that would affect tonnage now.

If garbage were collected with rubbish in Newton, there could be a saving of $240,000 per year, the cost of the present garbage collection contract. The city of Waltham collects both together.

The three firms apparently in the running have three different approaches to rubbish disposal.

Resource Systems, a Newton firm, would build 10 small modular incinerators in Newton, or a total of 17 in Newton and Waltham. Their incinerators meet all predictable pollution controls, but a limited amount of landfill would be necessary.

The Town of Wellesley has recently begun using Resource Systems incinerators.

SCA Disposal Services uses landfill exclusively and has two sites approved by the state.

DeMatteo Construction would use landfill for one year while its RESCO plant for metal extraction, incineration, and steam production is being built.

With Resource Systems the city would deliver rubbish to the incinerators. SCA and DeMatteo would construct transfer facilities in the existing Newton incinerator building, where Newton or Newton and Waltham would dump the rubbish to be removed by the contractor.

The bids expire Sept. 7, so the two cities independently or together must decide on which course to take fairly quickly. According to terms of the request for bids, the lowest bidder is not automatically guaranteed the contract, since the proposals all differ in some details.

Bids must be accepted by the mayor and the money appropriated by the Board of Aldermen.

Burglaries down, police maintain

Police Chief William F. Quinn said this week Newton's burglary record shows a decrease over last year at this time, and that last year was better than the previous year.

Chief Quinn said that this was not an accident, ti was a result of "citizen vigilance and neighborhoods that were wide-awake to strangers."

"A good neighbor is the burglar alarm," the chief said. "Any neighbor calling in a suspicious person or act will result in prompt service by our police department."

"In order to facilitate this type of cooperation and partnership with our citizens, we have instituted the 911 call system, a system for emergency call, and the caller does not have to identify him or herself. We would appreciate the caller remaining on the line until our car arrives or all details have been given," he said.

The chief also called attention to the fact that Newton has Operation Identification, an engraving program that has taken the profit out of burglary, at least for the 1,700 households that have participated.

"To date, Quinn noted, "we have had only three burglaries listed of those participating. We therefore suggest calling to reserve an engraver, and join us in "neighborhood watching" for burglars."

Housing Authority investigating citizenship

The Housing Authority is presently investigating a mandate from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, HUD, to strike the American citizenship requirement for tenant selection.

When the HUD order was brought before the authority, member Leo Karras suggested it be researched to see what HUD's thinking was.

According to Laurie Langlois, HUD housing management officer, "the federal law is silent on the laws of citizenship and therefore our counsel has interpreted it as not being a requirement for admission."

She added that most housing authorities had stricken the requirement when it was brought to their attention. To her knowledge this law has never been tested in the courts.

In other action, the authority accepted an increase of 5.5 per cent and an additional $6,000 a year for their managed properties. According to Frank Quinn, NHA executive director, "this won't even take care of one week," since hearing costs alone have doubled.

The HUD basis for funding comes from a review of the 1971 NHA operating budget to which they added three per cent. "At that time," said Quinn, "we didn't operate at a deficit and the buildings were four years old."

Quinn points out that now the buildings need some repairs and some painting that the authority doesn't have the money for. "We have to carefully manage every penny we have," says Quinn. There are presently 226 units.

There is a two and one-half year waiting list to get an apartment. Knowing that so many tenants are anxious to get into the projects, the authority is weighing another question before it. And that is whether or not to lower the entrance age from 65 to 62 years old.

This has arisen because of the national trend towards early retirement. However, the problem in Newton is that there are not enough units to supply the need and the turnover rate is slow and would possibly slow down more if the age requirement were lowered.

Commission okays building on 3 sites

Despite neighbors fears that construction of three new homes would worsen an existent water problem, the Conservation Commission remained confident last week the building would not adversely affect the area. The homes are proposed for Nardell Road, Donna Road and Nickerson R.OAD. The plans were reviewed by the Conservation Commission at a Hatch Act hearing August 9.

According to Attorney John Corbett representing developers Carmen Nardone and L. Nardone, former restaurant owners, the houses are to be single family homes in the $60-70,000 range. One home, a ranch is to be built on a lot which Corbett said has "an outcropping of ledge which must be removed."

Corbett stated that "it is not likely that any blasting will be done "from a cost and quality standpoint." The third lot appears to have a problem with drainage. The commissioners agreed that if they issued a permit it would be the builders responsibility to install a drainage pipe to insure that the water did not rise above a level to be determined by photographs in the commission's possession.

One lot presently has a great deal of unsightly gravel which Corbett maintained was dumped there "by overzealous friends" of the developers without their knowledge or approval or permission. Commission action caused the dumping to be stopped. Neighbors were skeptical of Corbett's explanation, saying that the first offer on the property had been made in April, indicating the developer might be responsible for the dumping.

Another neighbor expressed concern over the "horrendous quality of bad work done so far," a reference to the gravel, and said this made her feel "uncomfortable about the next step."

The commission will hold a Hatch Act hearing on violations by the Sidney Hill Country Club to Hahn Brook which have caused flooding on the abutters property. The hearing will be held Aug. 19 at 9 a.m. and has no bearing on the club's request to extend their recreational area.

The commission has voted to allow NCDF to file for their Hatch Act hearing notice of intent as soon as they obtain their foundation building permit for the Hamlet Street site. This was done on the advice of the city Law Department.

Revaluation right on schedule, firm says

Listers for the revaluation firm of Cole-Layer-Trumble are finishing up their work in Wards 6 and 8.

In a progress report released last week, Project Director Paul Reinhard indicated that the job of checking and logging all residential and business properties in Newton is on schedule.

Residential field work is supposed to be completed by September. Commercial and industrial work is scheduled to be completed in November.

According to Reinhard's figures, residential listers have finished 85 per cent of their work. More than 90 per cent of the homes in Wards 1-5 have been surveyed. In Ward 6 the listers are working on callbacks, going back to homes that were not open on their first trips. Reinhard indicated 25 per cent of this work was done.

Callbacks have not yet begun in Ward 8 as the listers continue with their final, initial visits to these homes.

The total estimated number of residential properties in the city is 21,200, Reinhard said. Of the total 20,340 visited, listers have been refused entrance at only 954 houses, a six per cent refusal rate.

Reinhard indicated that two listers have been working in Newton during the summer on residential property while three more were temporarily assigned elsewhere and expected to come back to Newton in mid-August to work on callbacks.

There are an estimated 1,918 commercial, industrial or utility properties in Newton and 25 per cent have been surveyed. Two listers are working on this phase of revaluation.

Reinhard, in his report, also outlined the remaining steps in completing the revaluation process in Newton, including specifying mailing notices out of new assessments in March, 1975.

The process of changing all Newton assessments from percentage levels of value to 100 per cent valuation, his report indicates, involves more than just assessing and measuring property.

Local labor rates and material costs have been analyzed to establish pricing schedules and unit land values.

According to the report inion officials Frank Sonsini, Carpenter's Local No. 275 and builders Charles Train, Bob Zaino and Charles C. Nardone have been contacted in this survey.

In the investigation of lacal material costs, Reinhard said these firms have been contacted: National Lumber Co., Newton; Roy S. Edwards Inc., Newton; F. Diehls & Son, Wellesley; Foster Bros. Brick, Westwood; Glazon Sale, Quincy; New England Sand & Gravel, Framingham; Riverside Concrete, Waltham; A. A. Will Sand & Gravel Co., Canton; West Roxbury Crushed Stone, West Roxbury; Acton Block Co., North Acton; and Ideal Block Co., Waltham.

Residential construction costs, vacant land sales and improved property sales are also checked.

After the house-by-house and business-by-business evaluation, the work must be set in the framework of the community.

Reinhard indicates these phases involve delineating neighborhoods and establishing unit land values and reviewing real estate to estimate the market value of all properties.

All data is scheduled to be correlated and run through a computer by April, 1975.

Once residents are notified of the results, the firm expects to hold hearings on their assessments through the end of May, 1975.

Students praised for work on bike route

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has commended Principal Richard W. Mechem and six students from Murray Road High School for their help in establishing a southern bicycle route in Newton.

Mann acknowledged the work of the students and said: "We have already made efforts to encourage the use of bicycles by placing bike racks in six locations throughout the city. This proposed bike path is yet another way to safely integrate bicycles into our established traffic pattern."

The six students — Wendy Collins, Janet Wolfson, Mike Remar, Becky Chase, Jeff Martin, and Stephen Bottomley, worked under the auspices of the Murray Road "All School Project." In conjunction with the City Planning Department, the students coordinated their own study for effective evaluation of particular routes, established criteria, and finally designated certain paths. They received academic credit for their work on this project.

The route, which was chosen by the students for favorable topography, road and traffic conditions, scenery and directness, forms a loop through Upper Falls to Oak Hills and back to its origin in Newton Center. The new path links recreational, historical and practical areas of the city while providing the rider with a scenic environment.

City Planner Rich Griffin, who supervised the students, said: "These boys and girls worked long hard hours planning, testing, re-testing and deciding the final route. They learned well through first hand experience and deserve tremendous credit for the results."

Currently, the City Planning Department is awaiting cost estimates for signs and off street asphalt paving before acting to implement the findings of the study.

Supreme virtues

Senator Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts no doubt had the best interests of the nation in mind when he proposed that Richard Nixon be spared the further agonies of criminal and civil prosecution in courtrooms throughout the nation.

Americans are just now emerging from the greatest constitutional crisis since the Civil War, a crisis precipitated and prolonged by Nixon's refusal to abide by constitutional standards. On Friday, newly inaugurated, President Gerald R. Ford labeled that crisis our "long national nightmare," and indeed no one can honestly differ with that assessment.

Because former President Nixon declined to "confess" his crimes publicly, Senator Brooke withdrew his resolution of immunity. By asking for the nation's prayers to help Richard Nixon find his own special peace, however, President Ford appeared to have picked up the reconciliation standard.

That the new President did so, is not surprising. He once said, "I am a Ford, not a Lincoln," and merely by mentioning the great Emancipator's name, he gave an indication of his sympathies.

"With malice toward none," of course is the supreme virtue to be practiced by any head of state or ordinary citizen for that matter, but the remainder of that quotation needs special emphasis.

"With charity for all," should now be President Ford's guideline.

If he is to issue a pardon for Nixon then, many think, he must, if he is to bring the nation back from the brink of disaster, also include all other victims of the Vietnam War in that pardon.

There are those who will argue that there are substantial differences between former President Nixon's transgressions and our sons and brothers lost in forced exile because of the war. John Kerry, former director of the Vietnam Veterans against the War, has already argued this point.

Evidently, John Kerry has not grasped the lessons of the past decade. Richard Nixon was, and will forever remain, a victim of the Vietnam War.

The crisis of spirit which has afflicted this nation did not begin with the bungled Watergate burglary and subsequent cover-up. Those entries in our history books will be but one of many sad effects of what was then national policy.

Vietnam, then, is the culprit along with Nixon's own misguided interpretation of the constitution. And many believe to place Richard Nixon in a vacuum without that historic event of tragic magnitude, is as misdirected as continuing to leave his fellow victims in their own vacuums of forced exile.

Sen. Brooke demanded his pound of Nixon flesh

Reflection by John D. Lofton Jr.

WASHINGTON—Some thoughts after watching President Nixon's emotional resignation and departure:

—It was a most sad and tragic affair. This reaction has absolutely nothing to do with who was at fault or who was responsible for the sadness or tragedy. In human terms, I found the whole thing very moving.

The network coverage of the entire affair I think was excessive. Okay, so he is the only President ever to resign. Another Nixon first. But still, TV was too much.

As a result of the networks having blocked out many hours of time to fill, we were bombarded with much stuff best left unaired.

RUN FOR COVER

For example, CBS' Roger Mudd allowed Common Cause chairman John Gardner to simply make a speech endorsing the public financing of elections as the solution to all Watergate problems. Pushing the legislation his group is backing, Gardner attacked the outgoing president for threatening a veto and called on President Ford to approve the bill.

On NBC, in one segment which could have more interestingly been replaced by the showing of the test pattern, reporter Ron Nessen interviewed the people hanging around Ford's house near midnight. Prefacing his questions with the observation that many had come from far away, he then asked several where they were from. All were from nearby in Virginia.

The low-light of the Nessen report came when he informed America that the lights had gone out in the Ford bedroom so presumably he was going to sleep.

—Also striking me as silly was the frequently expressed idea that in his farewell address, the President was supposed to get down on his knees, blubber for mercy and flagellate himself with a rolled-up copy of the Washington Post.

With the body still warm, immediately after his resignation address, almost the first words out of Walter Cronkite's mouth were that Mr. Nixon "did not confess any crimes."

On another network, I forget which since they all look alike, Sargent Shriver - the Mr. Malaprop of the 1972 campaign - was peddling the same line. He missed the "remorse" in the Nixon address, he said, adding he would have liked more "humanity" in it. On the NBC "Tomorrow" show, former California Gov. Pat Brown, who defeated Nixon in 1962, said that he too would have liked more "mea culpa."

Then there was the absolutely grotesque spectacle on the eve of the President's resignation of Massachusetts Sen. Edward Brooke openly blackmailing Mr. Nixon and demanding his pound of flesh.

Brooke said he was offering a resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that the President not be prosecuted when he leaves office. But he would withdraw the resolution, he said, if the President did not confess everything in his speech. Sick.

I too would have preferred Mr. Nixon to explain his resignation in terms a little more detailed than the mere collapsing of his Congressional support. However, in his goodbye speech, I cannot hold against him the fact that he chose to accentuate the positive and talk of his achievements. The most that can be said about the talk is that it could have been a lot worse.

—Mr. Nixon is now gone but not forgotten. It seems the next debate is going to be over whether he should be prosecuted now that he's no longer president. There are some who even feel the impeachment proceedings should continue.

My feeling at this time is that neither of these things should happen. What was important all along is that justice be done with regard to the president. I think this has happened.

Most people, in my judgment, neither want Mr. Nixon behind bars nor want impeachment to continue. They would find either or both of these actions excessively vengeful and vindictive and only further dividing the nation.

And this is the last thing we as a people need now. As Mr. Nixon said, what is needed is to look to the future and put the bitterness and division of the recent past behind us.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

A strange chapter in American history

A bungled third-rate burglary led eventually to the resignation of the President of the United States and an event in American history about which children will be studying in their school classrooms a hundred years from now.

Those history books may not disclose, however, that Richard Nixon was forced to resign from the Presidency because of events which were totally unnecessary to accomplish his reelection in 1972 and were so stupid as to be incredible.

There was no way Richard Nixon could have lost to George McGovern in 1972. He would have won reelection to a second term if he had taken a vacation in San Clemente, waged no campaign and spent no money.

Indeed, if Nixon and McGovern were to oppose each other in a Presidential election today, many political experts believe Nixon would still win.

The burglary of the office of former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien was so ridiculous that many political observers, including this one, believed that Nixon could not possibly have sanctioned it.

Nixon reached the position where his cause was hopeless because he finally was forced to admit he had not told the truth about his part in the cover-up. He painted himself into a corner by his untruthfulness.

He might have been able to stonewall it and tough it out if he had not had tapes made which eventually were to prove his undoing. Nixon's action in allowing recordings to be made and preserved of conversations which clearly showed him to be guilty of obstruction of justice, makes one wonder whether he was really as intelligent as he was supposed to be.

That does not mean this reporter is included among those who believe Nixon should be prosecuted and sent to prison.

Hopefully, President Gerry Ford will pull the United States together and move on to meet the great problems of inflation, unemployment and the high cost of living.

As one college educator observed, a three-ring circus on the sidelines will not help overcome the great problems of the day.

Ford unquestionably would pardon Nixon if he were convicted and ordered to prison. The United States doesn't need the disgrace of a former President serving time behind bars.

Whatever Nixon's motives may and reasons have been in stepping down from the Presidency, he finally did serve the best interests of the nation. He spared the American people from the ordeal of his impeachment by the House and the agony of a long removal trial in the Senate.

When Nixon in his resignation speech referred to the erosion of his support in the Congress and the Senate, it meant to this listener that he no longer had the Senate votes to fight off removal. His reference to the lack of support for his policies and programs was another way of saying it.

Nixon's resignation and Ford's assumption of the Presidential powers should help Republican candidates in the November election, especially if there is an upswing in the nation's economy under Ford. How much it will help a Republican such as Governor Francis W. Sargent is uncertain because Sarge's problems don't stem from the Watergate scandal, but it should improve to some degree his chances of winning reelection. GOP losses in the Congress should be greatly reduced.

A number of readers have requested our opinion as to the real reason Richard Nixon resigned from the Presidency.

Our guess is that Nixon realized both that his cause was hopeless and how much he and his family would be hurt if he went through the impeachment process and was removed from office.

As a former President, Nixon will get a pension of $60,000 per year, free office space in a federally owned building and an allowance of $96,000 annually for the employment of an office staff. If he should ide, his widow will receive $20,000 a year.

All those things would be lost if he were impeached by the House and then were removed by the Senate. His pension, incidentally, is equal to the salary of a Cabinet member. If the pay of the Cabinet members is increased, so is Nixon's pension.

Additionally, he will recieve a so-called government service pension to which he contributed while he was a Congressman and Senator. He also will be guarded by the Secret Service and will have the right to send non-political mail without charge.

Competent Washington newsmen express the opinion that Nixon was close to being broke when he left office. They point out that Nixon suffered a severe financial setback when he was ordered to pay $467,000 in federal taxes and interest and that he still owes $140,000 on his 1969 taxes. Nixon will receive enough money from the government to live comfortably if he never earns another penny, but he's no millionaire. He probably will realize some income from writing.

Back about 1946 a committee of Republicans in a section of California which has been dominated by the Democrats advertised in the newspapers for a candidate to support for Congress. Richard M. Nixon, out of the navy only a short time, was one of those who answered the advertisement.

He was picked and endorsed by the committee, and he won election. That marked the start of a public career which saw him move up to the Senate, the Vice Presidency and the Presidency itself, win a second Presidential term in a landslide that saw 47 million people vote for him, then resign from the Presidency 21 months later when he saw his support crumble because of his admission he had not been truthful. It's a sad and tragic story.

Bartley, Harrington leave mark upon state

House Speaker David M. Bartley and State Senate President Kevin B. Harrington deserve great credit for what the Legislature did and didn't do during its 1974 session.

Sarge, who realizes that the average voter likes his own State Senator and Representative whom he knows but dislikes the Legislature as a body which he doesn't know, tries to run against the Legislature whenever he can.

That has not been as politically profitable while Bartley and Harrington have been presiding over the two branches of the Legislature, as it has been at times in the past.

Harrington and Bartley have been two of the steadiest and most responsible legislative leaders in the modern history of the state government.

Senate President Harrington, a giant of a man who once was an outstanding college basketball player but went into politics instead of professional basketball, is a potential Democratic condidate for Governor in the future.

Bartley, a former school teacher, probably will turn to the field of education when he finishes his stint as Speaker of the House.

Both Bartley and Harrington have left their stamp upon the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Their contribution to the state government and to making this a better state in which to live, has been constructive and impressive.

The Legislature is the target for more criticism than is actually warranted, and it is only fair to say a word of praise for Harrington and Bartley.

Perhaps the most important action taken by the Legislature during 1974 was the repeal of the Racial Imbalance law. The effect of wiping that statute from the books will be felt in the future.

A highly important measure enacted into law was the Bartley-Fox bill sponsored by Speaker Bartley and retired Probate Court Judge J. John Fox which provides a mandatory one-year jail sentence for anyone convicted of illegally carrying a handgun.

The Legislature approved a bill to regulate and control abortions and then enacted it over Governor Sargent's veto. Beacon Hill observers wondered out loud why Sarge didn't wait until the Legislature had ended its session and then pocket-veto the measure if he really wanted to kill it.

Two more of Governor Sargent's reorganization proposals were okayed, one for Environmental Affairs, the other for Civil Service and the Bureau of Personnel.

A third reorganization measure—a plan for consolidating all the state's health regulatory agencies into one office—was killed twice. Finally, the Legislature consented to place this issue on the ballot next Nov. 5 as a non-binding advisory referendum. Almost all the law-makers questioned privately admitted they did not understand the Governor's recommendation and expressed doubt that the voters will understand the question submitted to them.

Approved was an $81 million housing program for elderly and low-income persons which will create jobs and fill some of the gaps left by the federal government's abandonment of housing programs.

A $92.5 million transportation package was enacted. A new formula for distributing funds to the cities and towns was adopted. An increase in the minimum wage from $1.85 to $2 an hour in January and $2.10 in July was approved. A cost-of-living increase was voted for needy persons receiving some form of welfare assistance.

These were just some of the major actions taken by the Legislature during its 1974 session which recently ended.

Little League—good or bad?

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Peter E. Ryan, Michael LeConti, Richard J. Bradley, Paul H. Molloy and Gene Dennis of Newton Little League with copies to Newton newspapers)

Sirs:

This in response to your various communications concerning my remark critical of the Little Leagues at the aldermanic City Planning Committee meeting on June 27.

The remark was made in discussion with members of the Recreation Commission concerning the preference granted the Little Leagues for access to playing field space on Newton playgrounds. There was no attempt on my part or any other person present either to terminate or interfere with Little League operations or to take them over and operate them by the city. There was a suggestion made and supported that the city should try to provide more equalized access to playing fields by all organizations, ages and sexes.

The remark attributed to me in the press reports was as chairman of the City Planning Committee. I do hold that office. However, the remark expressed my own personal views on the floor of the committee, and reflected no expression of the policy on the part of the committee, the Board of Aldermen or the city through its Recreation Commission.

Such policy can only come from votes of these committees, boards or commissions. At the time I made my comment, I believed that I was one of less than 10 persons in Newton who felt as I do, and I did not attribute much importance or significance to it.

Since publication in the press, I have found two aldermen who share some of my feelings, and about as many citizens have expressed to me their support of my views as have opposed them. It therefore appears that further discussion may serve in improving the contributions Little Leagues make in the life of the community.

The policy actions taken by the aldermanic City Planning Committee on June 27 are set forth hereinafter. These are being reported to the Board of Aldermen, recommended for favorable vote as aldermanic policy.

You will note that these actions are simply suggestions to the Recreation Commission, which is the responsible city agency establishing and controlling policy in recreational programmatic matters. The Board of Aldermen may wish to influence the Recreation Commission, or to guide it by suggestion or suasion, but it cannot control or force the commission regarding decisions within its responsibility. The City Planning Committee actions follow:

Approved 5 to 0, White abstaining "Moved that the City Planning Committee respectfully request the Recreation Commission to re-examine their policy of long-standing of giving preference to Little League use of public facilities to the end that all citizens of the community and all sectors of the public would have equal access and opportunity to share the most favorable baseball facilities and the most favorable times."

(If this action should pass, and if the Recreation Commission should undertake such a re-examination, then the Little Leagues should present their case for special preference to the Recreation Commission.)

Approved 6 to 0. "Moved that the City Planning Committee suggest to the Recreation Commission that they request the Little League organization to comply with the City of Newton sign ordinance at city playing fields as it pertains to advertising billboards."

(This matter was brought before the committee by one of its members, not myself, in complaint of the violation by one Little League of our advertising sign ordinances.)

The press was undoubtedly accurate in quoting my remark "I think Little League is the worst thing that has happened to boys and baseball."

Regrettably, in making a chance remark I did not express my meaning at all well in that first statement and my further clarification was not reported.

Clearly, I do not feel that Little League is the worst thing that has happened to boys.

It has done some good things and some bad things for both boys and for our society. In ballance I feel the community and the country would be better off if Little League had not happened. My remark was intended to state that I feel Little League is the worst thing that has happened to boys baseball. Ifeel that Little League has deprived over half of our youth of a fun-yielding and leadership and citizenship developing experience from voluntary catch-as-catch-can all ages and both sexes youth directed managed and umpired sandlot baseball. It has replaced it with: an adult managed, ruled and umpired baseball experience which develops excessive competitiveness without developing leadership, in the major and minor leagues; which provides less baseball playing opportunity for the less proficient in the farm leagues than they would receive from sandlot baseball; and by destroying the usual neighborhood play groupings of sandlot ball during the Little League season has deprived older and younger boys and girls, and those boys who become disillusioned by the minimal opportunity of the farm leagues.

These views result from my experience of one year as a farm league manager and one year as a farm league umpire when my 21-year-old son was of Little League age.

Granted, that was nearly 10 years ago, but nothing that I have observed since that time in watching children's play activities in my neighborhood and at the West Newton playground, or in my work as a scoutmaster for the past seven years, has lessened or dispelled my feeling.

In deference to your request to appear before the City Planning Committee I brought your request to the committee's attention at the following meeting on July 24. Mr. LeConti and another gentleman were present from Little League.

The committee decided that this discussion of my views was a private matter and should not come before the committee. The committee members variously expressed their views as to whether I should meet with you in private discussion. None of them stated that they felt public discussion of this particular matter would be of benefit to either the Little Leagues or the city.

The City Planning Committee directed me to inform you that if the Little Leagues have concerns regarding city policies which affect their operations, and which require aldermanic action vs. administrative or Recreation Commission, then the Little Leagues are encouraged to file a petition for relevant actions by the Board of Aldermen, and the Board will be pleased to assign and hear the matter before the appropriate committee and to offer the Little Leagues a public forum for presenting their views on that matter.

David W. Jackson
Alderman, Ward 4

Sinnott 'sickening'

To the Editor:

Certainly I believe a person has the right to his own opinion. However, Dick Sinnott's column regarding forced busing sickened me.

He fails to see the other side of the issue.

As a Boston teacher, I have been made aware of the racism within the School Department from I.Q. tests used to the dropping of a successful reading program in the black area.

Mr. Sinnott has to be a fool if he really thinks children can grow and develop in this country without the personal knowledge and understanding of races, religions and cultures other than their own.

Not to appear ancestor-happy, I am proud to know that I am descended from Samuel Adams and his cousins because they spoke out for freedom—and that meant freedom for all.

A 'thank you'

Dear Editor:

As a subscriber to the Newton Graphic and as treasurer of the Boston Ballet, I want to thank you for the Graphic's story on the ballet's Esplanade series that was carried in the Aug. 1 issue.

I particularly appreciated the placement and headline.

By now, you probably know that the first week on the Esplanade was a huge success and I thank you for helping to spread the word.

Application for kidnapping

Following a brief sojourn at the police station, Shultz told reporters that he had denied the complaint. He said that he talked to Edward Shapiro, and that the "boy was rational and candid." He stated that Edward Shapiro was asked whether he was held against his will and if he was kidnapped, and that Edward replied "no."

Murphy had said moments before that he was "pretty sure what the outcome will be. They will meet with the boy and he will say that 'I'm here voluntarily.' That's all they're interested in, not what the conditions were."

Murphy was presumably referring to the deprogramming process which has been associated with Patrick.

Feinberg said after the hearing that he believed there was a "prima facie case sufficient for a complaint of kidnapping against the father.

"However, in a highly irregular move, counsel for the father, George Ford, of Burns and Levinson, informed the clerk that the son, Edward Shapiro was available to be interviewed at Newton Police Department headquarters," Feinberg continued.

"Over my objection, because I believe a case had been made out for a complaint of kidnapping, counsel, the clerk and myself met with Edward Shapiro."

Feinberg said that a reason he objected was because "we were denied the right to have my clients present at the interview. If Edward Shapiro is operatin on his own free will, it would not be deleterious to him to meet with my clients."

Feinberg added that he requested that the clerk order a mental examination of Edward Shapiro. The request was denied.

"Edward Shapiro appeared very guarded in his conversation with me," Feinberg said.

"He said Mr. Patrick had not used any physical means on him, but had caused him to think."

Feinberg said that Sgt. Frank Gorgone gave evidence at the hearing, and that he reported that Dr. Shapiro and Patrick said they were deprogramming Edward Shapiro.

"The implications are very broad," Feinberg said. "To permit a third party individual to deprogram another individual without his consent.

"If Patrick can get away with it, it can have implications for all of us."

Feinberg and Richmond pointed out that there is an existing case involving control of Edward Shapiro's estate. Middlesex Court has reportedly appointed Dr. Shapiro temporary conservator of the estate. The father has reportedly pleaded to the court that his son has "mental weakness." Ironically, Feinberg has been representing Edward Shapiro against his father in this action.

Feinberg said that "we are now taking under advisement the possibility of appealing" Shultz's denial of the application for a kidnapping complaint. Their recourse is to go before a Newton District Court judge.

Feinberg has reportedly filed suit on behalf of the International Society of Krishna Consciousness, Inc. and two of its members in Suffolk County Superior Court.

The suit, said to be against Dr. Shapiro, Dr. Roth, and Patrick, reportedly charges that they abducted and deprogrammed Edward Shapiro and Lee Allan Roth. The suit reportedly seeks the release of young Shapiro and young Roth, and damages of $250,000. The suit is scheduled to be heard on Friday.

"It's the parents who actually bring me into the picture," he continued. "They raise the money through the PTA and they constitute the major work force for constructing the playgrounds."

At last count, this group effort at creative playing has been undertaken and completed at 11 schools in Newton.

After several meetings in the month preceding construction construction, the group can put together the playground, under D'Eugenio's direction, in one weekend.

The main materials are always rubber and wood and the emphasis is divided between activities that would take the cooperation of several children, such as scaling the blanket of tires or swinging in the giant web of tires that simply can't be moved by one child or having a little chat in the tree house; to activities that can be done alone.

His creditability in creative playing firmly established here, the architect has now been called upon to turn his attention to adults.

The project got underway while discussions were going on concerning the playground at Cabot School.

'D'Eugenio recalled that one of the parents attending an organizational meeting at Cabot approached him after the meeting and told him about the exercise path.

The parent, a health planning instructor at MIT, and D'Eugenio, soon enrolled in his course, joined forces to bring the "parcours" to Newton.

Land at weir's Cove was chosen in cooperation and with the support of the Recreation Department. Construction is now underway.

D'Eugenio explained that the concept was developed in Europe and the reasoning behind it is that "a lot of cardiovascular problems result from a lack of attention to physical activities."

Insurance companies, he said, are frequent sponsors of parcours in Europe.

Aimed at contemporary sedentary society, the course is usually one or two miles long and consists of a number of "exercise stations."

Carefully laid out, the course is walked and when the walker reaches a station, he is directed to do a particular exercise and told the duration of the exertion. Some have simple apparatus, D'Eugenio said, such as poles for pull-ups or sit-ups.

The course is designed to provide 40 minutes of exercise, to cooling off.

In Europe, he said, many people take to the parcours during their lunch hours.

Thus, the 29-year-old architect described how he fell into a complete career in the outdoors.

He had one final comment: "People have acknowledged great changes in educational techniques, but not through the outdoors. We need to develop continuity."

Debate tonight—

problem," he said. "I agree there is a problem here but it is a social problem that we are trying to answer with the police."

Ald. Sidney Small, a proponent of the measure, said that perhaps peoples' rights were going to be infringed on by the ordinance.

"Maybe we're infringing on certain people's rights. Maybe we're infringing on the right to sit in the street on the hood of a car and drink beero or on the right to drive down Beacon Street and throw beer cans out the window," he said. "I hoped that those who create these types of disturbances would stop. Right now they're thumbing their noses at the police."

In other action, the Board of Aldermen:

—Approved a new Design Review Committee ordinance which eliminates the vote of the aldermen and committeeman on the committee and specifies professional qualifications for other members.

—Approved an increase in taxi fares making the cost $1 for the first mile and 20 cents for each additional one-fifth of a mile. That means $1 for the first mile and $1 for each additional mile. The ordinance also provides for a chit system for reduced taxi fares for senior citizens. The chits will represent a 10 per cent reduction in fare costs.

—Approved Mayor Theodore D. Mann's request for $20,000 in salary for the city's new chief financial officer.

residents as to when recyclable materials are collected in each area of the city.

Aldermen Tuesday deferred action on the City Planning Committee report when they adjourned at about 1:15 a.m.

On its agenda are three resolves relating to the Recreation Commission.

The committee seeks Board approval for a Recreation Department review of the current tennis fees, a reexamination of preference given to Little League relative to use of playing fields and a suggestion Little League comply with city sign regulations.

Drinan auction on Sept. 7

How would you like a date with the 22-year-old mayor of Gardner, or an hour of family therapy with a practicing psychiatrist in Brookline? Perhaps the weekend use of a fiberglass canoe or a holiday stay in a New London, New Hapshire ski cabin is more your style.

All of these, along with more usual auction items like paintings, rugs, and valuable books will be sold at a Sept. 7 auction to benefit the re-election campaign of Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.)

The event will be held at the estate of Thomas Boylston Adams on Concord Road in Lincoln. A preview will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The auction will follow from 1-6 p.m.

Pins and needles

Have you finally decided that due to the higher prices of men's, women's, and children's clothing, you're going to do some home sewing?

Good for you! It isn't necessary to be the finest tailor on the block—all you need is an easy-to-make pattern with just a few seams, darts and no fussy details. Rely on prints which tend to be smaller in scale and the fabric itself can carry a fashion impact, according to Adele P. Margolis, noted sewing authority who has written her 6th book on the subject titled, "Fashion Sewing For Everyone," Doubleday, 423 P. $9.95—a great gift for the novice or expert sewer.

Adele maintains there's a test for the "born" sewer . . . if you can whiz by a counter that contains bolts or remnants of materials and never give them a glance, then perhaps sewing is not in your blood. "Fabric," says Adele, "is the siren song for sewers. It lures us all."

In her book, she separates fabrics into two categories: the easy-to-handle ones such as: solid colors, medium weights, plain weaves, firmly woven, all-over surface designs, two-way design units, cottons, linens, and some woolens.

The hard-to-handle fabrics in the second category always seem to be more appealing and beginners are cautioned that when they choose one of the following fabrics that they resign themselves to learn and master the technique. After all, if you don't enjoy the color and feel of the fabric while you're working on it, chances are you won't wear the garment. These materials are: stripes, plaids, checks, blocks, silks, woolens, man-made fibres like nylon, dacron, polyester, etc., raised surfaces, looped, napped, fuzzy, furry, very stretchy, very loosely woven, very sheer, very heavy . . . in fact, very anything.

Speaking of fabrics, cotton corduroy, a long time favorite, returns again to offer versatility, quality, and most of all, fashion.

Not only is there a wide variety of textures and marvelous colors, but also an extensive new collection of corduroy patterns to choose from.

Plaids are sure winners for fall, and whether they are printed on ribless or pinwale corduroy, they are distinctive enough to build an entire wardrobe around them. Bold blanket plaids with rustic appeal of brushed wool, tweedy textured plaids and of course traditional tartan plaids, are just a few of the looks of the luxury fabrics. Often cleverly combined with corduroy solids, these plaids are well suited to the current popular styles; toppers, wrap jackets, blazers as well as pants and men's trousers.

Have you thought about sewing menswear? Don't shy away because pattern companies have simplified the styling and detailing. Catalogs have sections devoted completely to menswear featuring a wide choice of coat, suit, sports and lounge looks.

The outerwear for fall ranges from tailored double-breasted coats too soft unconstructed jackets. Your best bets in fabrics are cashmere, melton, medium weight wools in herringbones, tweeds, and subtle plaids.

Outerwear colors are the basic go-with-everything basics like spruce, hunter green, camel and cordovan. Once you've selected your style and fabric, be sure to pick underlinings, interfacings, and linings that are compatible with the durability and care requirements of your fabric.

As a starter in sewing for the man in your life, try stitching an easy-to-sew caftan in a striped silk or wool, or Indian cotton or make him pajamas with a touch of class choosing a striped or solid Qiana.

I can almost hear someone groaning, "I'll sew anything if it doesn't call for a zipper!" SET aside your fears. Adele Margolis has this to say about zippers: ". . .the easiest, fastest, most foolproof way to sew a standard zipper closing is to do it by hand. Hand stitching holds well and looks prettier than machine stitching.

Pin the zipper to position. Use a tiny half-backstitch to secure it. Presto! Your zipper is happily in place. And in case you're wondering just what a half-stitch is, Adele explains that also: "Fasten the thread on the underside of the material at the right end.

Bring the needle to the right side one small stitch (one-sixteenth inch to one-eighth inch long) toward the left. Working back to the right, insert the needle half the distance (or less, if you wish) of the first stitch, slide it along the underside and once more bring the needle out one stitch ahead. Repeat for the length of the seam. (She goes on in her book to explain the installation of the regulation zipper and slot-seam zipper.)

If you've gone shopping for baby clothes, you've perhaps wondered why so tiny an article could cost so much. For example, those little terry rompers are very easy to make, consisting of just a few seams and grippers and you can buy the fabric at a reduced rate if you shop the remnant counters.

And what about sewing with knits. Susan Walter of Texfi Counterknits suggests the following: Fabrics washed before cutting are easier to sew . . . this avoids the possibility of skipped stitches. The straight grain of a knit can be marked by long, hand-basted stitches following a fine, lengthwise rib. To avoid stretching the fabric, lay it on a large, flat surface. Do not allow material to hang over the edge. To prevent a knit jersey from slipping, before pinning, cover the area first with tissue paper and lay the fabric on the paper. This will also keep the fabric from curling as you cut.

One more sewing suggestion: When you choose the fabric for your pattern, try to buy the finest you can afford . . . after all, your investment of time deserves the best!

Pork butt slices and orange picnic cake

Across the Kitchen Counter

There are picnics . . . and there are picnics. When you're young, a picnic could mean going to the seashore with the family and coming out of the surf shivery cold and wet to find Mama serving hot hamburgers on buns, home fries, frosty lemonade and thick slices of watermelon.

When you're older and a boy friend invites you to a picnic, the menu takes on an air of sophistication. You carefully arrange a basket banquet of cold fried chicken, expensive stuffed olives and pickles, a loaf of French bread, cheese and a bottle of chilled white wine.

Yes, there are all sorts of picnics, but perhaps the ideal picnic calls for children, a doting grandmother or two, and a happy sprinkling of uncles and aunts. Also desired, a balmy day, grassy or sandy site and a basket bursting with goodies. Informal though the occasion may be, it's important that advance planning be done to avoid the potential danger of food poisoning. Following are a few guidelines:

Take along: Can opener, eating utensils, paper plates, cups and glasses, napkins, ice chest, insect repellant, vacuum jug, salt, sugar, paper towels, paper trash bag, dampened washcloth. Styrofoam ice buckets are inexpensive and most efficient; lined with a sturdy plastic bag that fastens with a twist, food can be kept hot or cold for hours.

There are other inexpensive ways to keep foods cold — properly packed in an ice chest or in dry ice packs. Empty milk cartons, coffee cans or other containers with tight-fitting lids can be filled with water and frozen for use in the ice chest.

Your picnic will be most unique if you prepare a pork butt, the kind that offers pink, juicy ham-like meat. Sliced thingly, cold, it goes into sandwiches; served hot it makes a memorable main dish. For dessert, a frosted Orange Picnic Cake. Following are some picnic recipes:

ROAST PORK FOR PICNICS

1 3-lb. smoked, boneless pork shoulder butt
2 cans (6 oz. ea.) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, reconstituted
½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
One-third cup packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon ground cloves

Place pork in large kettle. Add reconstituted orange juice; cover and simmer for 1 hour. Remove pork from liquid and place in shallow baking pan. Combine undiluted orange concentrate with remaining ingredients; brush over pork. Bake in 350 degree oven for 1 hour, basting with orange sauce every 15 minutes. Slice pork and serve hot or cold on rolls with remaining sauce. Yield:4-6 servings.

ORANGE PICNIC CAKE

1½ cups orange juice
1 cup quick cooking oats
½ cup soft margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Heat orange juice to boiling and pour over oats; set aside. Cream margarine with granulated and brown sugar; beat in eggs one at a time. Add vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon; blend into creamed mixture alternately with orange juice and oats, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Fold in nuts and orange rind. Pour into greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 minutes; until cake tests done. Cool and spread with Orange-Coconut Topping. Place under broiler for 1 minute or until topping is golden brown and bubbly. Serve warm or cold. Serves 12.

Ever think of preparing a thick, delicious fish chowder and taking it along to a picnic well-protected in an insulated jug? Serve with saltine crackers and a crisp salad — especially good at the sheashore.

FISH CHOWDER

1 large onion, chopped
3 stalks celery, chopped
4 tablespoons margarine
3 cups water
1 quart milk
2 large potatoes, diced
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Place fillets in deep kettle; cover with 1½ cups cold water; simmer over medium flame for 10 minutes or until fish is easily flaked with fork. When done place fish in a large bowl; flake fish and save fish stock for use later. Place margarine in deep kettle over medium flame and add chopped onion; saute for 5 minutes or until golden brown. Add potatoes, celery and 1½ cups water; cover and cook for 15 minutes or until potatoes and celery are tender. Blend flour in small mixing bowl with one-half milk; when smooth, add remaining milk then add to cooked potatoes and celery. Add fish and fish stock and heat to boiling point but do not boil. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve in chowder bowls or mugs. Serves 6-8.

CHICKEN SALAD

2½ cups cold cooked chicken cut in bite-size bits
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup peeled diced cucumber
Salt and pepper to taste
Lettuce, tomato wedges, wedges of hard-cooked eggs, sliced red radishes, stuffed green olives

Combine chicken pieces, celery, onion and mayonnaise (or salad dressing). Mix well. Fold in cucumber and add salt and pepper to taste. Serve on a bed of lettuce and garnish with tomato wedges, eggs, radishes and olives. Serves 8.

PEANUT PICNIC COOKIES

2½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup margarine (½ stick)
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
¾ cup unsulphured molasses
½ cup creamy peanut butter
½ cup water

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Beat margarine with sugar, egg, molasses and peanut butter. Blend in flour mixture alternately with water. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto greased baking sheet and bake in 350 degree oven 8-10 minutes until lightly browned. When cool wrap in plastic bags. Yield: 5 dozen.

Question: I hope you can help me, I'm looking for two recipes. One, a bar cookie with almonds and chocolate bits and the other for hermits. Thank you. — Mrs. D. S., Needham Answer: Here are two recipes that are a little different. The Almond Brittle Bars will remind you of almond brittle candy and the Hermits have a delightfully tart lemon glaze.

ALMOND BRITTLE BARS

1 cup margarine
2 teaspoons instant coffee powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup sugar
2 cups sifted flour
1 pkg. (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ cup finely chopped almonds

Beat together butter, coffee powder, salt and almond extract. Gradually beat in sugar; beat until light and fluffy. Stir in flour and chocolate pieces. Press batter into ungreased 15½ x 10½-inch jelly roll pan. Sprinkle almonds over top. Bake in 375 degree oven 20-25 minutes, or until golden brown. Set pan on rack; cut into 2½x1½-inch bars while warm. When cool, remove from pan. Makes 40. NOTE: If you want to break the cookies into irregular pieces, cool baked cookie dough in pan on rack, then break it in pieces with your fingers. Cookies are very crisp.

HAMPSHIRE HERMITS

Two-thirds cup margarine
1 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs
2 tablespoons dairy sour cream or buttermilk
1¾ cup sifted all purpose flour
1¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon baking soda
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup chopped raisins or currants
Lemon Glaze

Beat margarine until light. Gradually add brown sugar and beat after each addition until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating to mix thoroughly. Stir in sour cream. Stir together flour, spices, baking soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture and beat until batter is smooth. Gradually add nuts and raisins. Drop batter from tablespoon 2 inches apart onto greased baking sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven about 12 to 15 minutes until cookies are golden brown. Remove cookies to rack and while warm, brush with Lemon Glaze. Yield: approximately 3 dozen.

LEMON GLAZE

Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice to 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar. Stir until smooth; brush over warm cookies . . . the glaze is thin and tart.

It's great when a reader shares a recipe or idea — our thanks to Mrs. M. S., Walpole, who writes: "My friend served a delightful luncheon for six and though the food was festive and delicious it was relatively inexpensive. I asked for the recipe for her main dish and here it is with her permission:

ARLENE'S TUNA SALAD ON HONEYDEW CIRCLES

1 large honeydew melon
Lettuce
2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. ea.) tuna, drained
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chopped celery
2 eggs, hard-cooked and chopped
½ teaspoon ground marjoram
Dash of pepper
Fresh parsley for garnish
Fresh lemon wedges for garnish

Pare honeydew and cut into circles to 1½ inches thick. Remove seeds and place on beds of lettuce. Combine tuna, mayonnaise, chopped egg, celery, and seasonings. Spoon into centers of honeydew circles. Garnish with fresh parsley and wedges of fresh lemon. Serves 6.

Question: Now that I have a garden of my own and the vegetables are more enjoyable than ever before, I would appreciate a recipe for Ratatouille. Thanks.

Answer: There are many reasons to enjoy a bowl of Ratatouille — it's reasonably low in calories, can be made a day ahead and can be served hot or cold.

RATATOUILLE

½ cup olive oil
3 large onions, sliced
3 large cloves garlic, minced
1 medium-sized eggplant, cut in ½-inch cubes
6 medium-sized zucchini, thickly sliced
2 green bell peppers, seeded and cut in chunks
Approximately 2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sweet basil
½ cup minced parsley
5 large tomatoes, cut in chunks
Parsley

Heat ¼ cup of the oil in a large frying pan over high heat. Add onions and garlic and cook, stirring, until onions are soft but not browned. Stir in the egg plant, zucchini, peppers, 2 teaspoons salt, basil and minced parsley; add a little of the leftover oil as needed only to keep the vegetables from sticking. Cover pan and cook over moderate heat for about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, using a large spatula and turning the vegetables to help preserve their shape. If mixture becomes too soupy, remove cover. Add tomatoes to the vegetables and stir to blend. Also add more oil if vegetables are sticking. Cover and cook over moderate heat for 15 minutes; stir occasionally. Consistency should not be too thin even though served to be eaten with a spoon. Granish with additional fresh parsley and tomato slices. Serves 8-10.

Girl Scout Council running day camp

Camp Mary Day, a day camp run by the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council, Waltham, has been the scene of many activities this summer.

Campers have ranged in age from 2½-12, including pee wees, brownies, juniors, and a boys' unit.

A highlight of the first session was an afternoon of skits about famous women. The campers were excited about this, as it is the national project of the Girl Scouts during the Bicentennial. The second session included the integration of 27 Spanish-speaking children from Jamaica Plain into the regular units. It was topped off with International Day, where all the units performed dances, songs, games, and skits from different countries. Campers learned to sing their favorite Girl Scout songs in Spanish.

In the third session, campers are planning a Rock & Roll Day. Campers will be dressed in outfits from the 50's, and will do skits from that era.

A successful unit at camp is the "Day ? Stay" unit. Run by leaders qualified in Girl Scout camping skills, campers attend day camp the first week, and stay overnight three days the second week. The girls cook nine meals in the out-of-doors, pitch their tents, and learn various advanced camping skills.

Open for three two-week sessions during the summer, Camp Mary Day is located on Nonesuch Pond in Natick.

Florence Daley at DAV convention

Florence Daley, manager of the Newton Highlands Post Office, attended the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, held Aug. 4-10 in New Orleans, La., at the Marriott Hotel.

Mrs. Daley was installed as the national executive committeewoman of the First District of the DAVA, which includes Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and Vermont. She is the past state commander of the DAV Auxiliary. The Newton Auxiliary Commander Jo Fields also attended the convention.

The DAV Auxiliary in joint session with the DAV was addressed by President Gerald Ford two days before he was elevated to that high office.

The convention banquet was interrupted so the guests could see and hear over closed circuit television the resignation speeck of the former President Nixon.

Chosen as the Outstanding Disabled American Veteran of the Year was Salvatore D'Amico of Connecticut.

D'Amico was seriously injured when a box of dynamite blasting caps exploded in his arms during a training session in Germany in 1962. As a result, both his hands have been amputated and his sight was lost. But despite his serious disabilities, D'Amico has learned to write, read Braille with his lips, and get around on his own. He went back to school to complete special preparatory work so he could enter college. He later received a master's degree in social work and is now employed as a social worker in a VA hospital in Connecticut.

Walter Greaney was elected to the high post of National Commander of the DAV. Greaney is a professor of law at Boston College, a veteran of World War II and an expert on veterans' affairs. He lives in Jamaica Plain with his wife Phyllis and one son.

Dr. J. Shulman chairs meeting

Forty Russian immigrant families are being supported by agencies of the Combines Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston. The agencies are primarily, the Jewish Family and Children's Service and the Jweish Vocational Service. This fact was revealed by Bernard Oshansky of Needham, who spoke at the Breakfast Club at Zionist House on Thursday, Aug. 8. Some 50 people attended this unique summer breakfast meeting. The meeting was chaired by Dr. James Shulman of Newton.

Mr. Olshansky, who is the executive director of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, reported on a meeting of the Jewish Agency in Israel. Zionist House is a cultural and community center for Israel.

And now, every little girl can find her very own "Lovebug" in Girls' Sizes 7-14, lower level, D-170.

Fentin, Ms. Allen win singles titles

By TOM GRAVES

Twenty-year old Tom Fentin of West Newton defeated unseeded Bill Ruth in the final of the Newton Adult Tennis Tournament's men's singles this week at Burr Playground.

Fentin, who was seeded fifth, edged Ruth 7-6, 7-5 in what Tournament Director Leon Geller called an "extremely well-played" match.

The tiebreaker in the first set went to 4-4 before Ruth hit a forehand into the net to give Fentin a 7-6 win.

"We couldn't have had a finer match-up in the men's singles final," Geller commented. "It was the best final we've had in recent memory."

Fentin, a 1972 graduate of Newton High School, will be a junior at UMass next year. He defeated second seed Lazar Lowinger in a semi-final match, 6-4, 6-4. Fentin also knocked off third seed Andy Levin, scoring a 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 victory in the quarter-final round.

Ruth reached the final by gaining a 6-3, 6-4 semi-final win over first seed Gene Dressler.

There were 44 entries in the men's singles. Fourth seed Paul Blazar was defeated in the third round, 10-8, by Andy Jacobs.

Left-handed Connie Allen was the victor in the women's singles final, scoring a 6-3, 6-3 win over Joe Pepper. Ms. Allen had defeated defending champion and first seed Connie Montana in the second round, 8-4. Ms. Pepper scored a first round victory over second seed Judy Whittenberg, 3-4. Ms. Pepper defeated Dori Thomas in the semi-final round, while Ms. Allen bested Marilyn Sicurella.

There were 20 entries in the men's doubles. Seeded number one were Dressler and Jack Whittenberg. The men's final is scheduled for Friday at 6 p.m. at Burr.

The women's doubles final was to have been played on Wednesday. First seeded Dori Thomas and Jean Coon advanced to the final as a result of a default in the semi-final round. Second seeded Ms. Montana and Diane Souliotis lost a first round match, 8-5. There were eight entries in the women's doubles.

Tournament Direcotrs Geller and Stephen Freeman were pleased with the efficiency of this year's tournament. They concurred that it ran well due to good weather and the fact that players knew where they were going. Geller, a second singles player for Newton High in 1968, said that there was a "good turnout."

Geller and Freeman have been serving as tennis instructors for the Recreation Department this summer.

Centre sweeps baseball playoff

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

The Newton Centre baseball team became champion of the National Division of the Newton Twilight League last week when it defeated Boys' Club, 7-4, in the third game of their best of five series.

The victory completed a three-game sweep as Newton Centre had won the opening games, 7-5 and 2-1.

Newton Centre opened the scoring with a run in the top of the third inning off of Boys' Club pitcher Steve DiBenedetto.

With one out, pitcher John Carey reached first when shortstop Dana Foley misplayed a ground ball. Leadoff hitter Steve Riley followed with a sharp single to centerfield, sending Carey to second base. Bob Cunningham then stroked a run-scoring single to centerfield.

Boys' Club came back with three runs in the bottom of the third inning, but it scored without the benefit of a hit.

Jerry Murphy started the rally with a bunt back to the pitcher, who had trouble handling the ball, and Murphy reached first. Bob Kinsella then laid down a sacrifice bunt and was thrown out at first by Carey.

After Foley walked, putting runners at first and second, Jack Ryan hit a ground ball to first baseman Dennis Cameron. Cameron tried to throw Foley out at second, but the ball hit the base runner on the back, and Murphy came around to score the tying run.

DiBenedetto then hit a ground ball to second baseman Cunningham, who tried to tag Ryan as he ran by. The ball fell out of Cunningham's glove, and the bases became loaded. Steve Rittenberg followed with another ground ball to Cunningham. The runner going to second was tagged out, but Foley scored on the play.

The next batter, Doug Jessup, grounded out, but Rittenberg became involved in a rundown on the play. Ryan, who was standing on third, broke for home when he saw Rittenberg trapped, and Rittenberg stayed alive long enough for Ryan to be able to score.

Boys' Club added to its lead in the fourth inning. Don Keaveney led off with a double and went to third on Henry Taillacq's ground ball to third base. Keaveney scored on an infield hit by Murphy.

Newton Centre reduced its deficit to one run by scoring two runs in the top of the fifth inning. After Carey led off with a triple to right field, DiBenedetto got Riley and Cunningham to ground out, leaving Carey still at third with two out.

Joe Astone then hit a line drive down the left field line. Rittenberg came in trying to make the catch, but the ball went past him, and Astone came all the way around to score.

Newton Centre regained a lead with two runs in the sixth inning. With one out, Larry White walked and Newton Centre Coach Kevin Moore followed with a single to left field, and the bases became loaded when DiBenedetto walked catcher Brad Schiff.

Newton Centre tried a suicide squeeze with Carey at the plate, but Carey missed on his bunt attempt, and Kramer was tagged out by Boys' Club catcher Kinsella at the plate.

With runners on second and third and two out, Riley delivered the key hit of the game, a well-hit double to left field, which put Newton Centre ahead 5-4.

Newton Centre added two more runs in the seventh inning to win 7-4. Big hits were delivered by John Connolly and Cameron.

This one-time registration fee entitles a new member to instruction and unlimited use of the boats, Monday through Saturday until Labor Day.

The instruction consists of five classes, taken on five consecutive days. Each class is in parts, first a half an hour of "shore class," a dry land lecture on knots, rigging, right of way rules and so on, and about an hour of instruction on the water, with gradually reduced supervision, until on the fifth day, a new sailor becomes a "solo," and can sail alone.

Community Boating is located on the Boston shore of the Charles River, near the Charles River stop on the MBTA Red Line. For more information and applications, people may call 523-9763.

Cosgrove Golf on Sept. 15

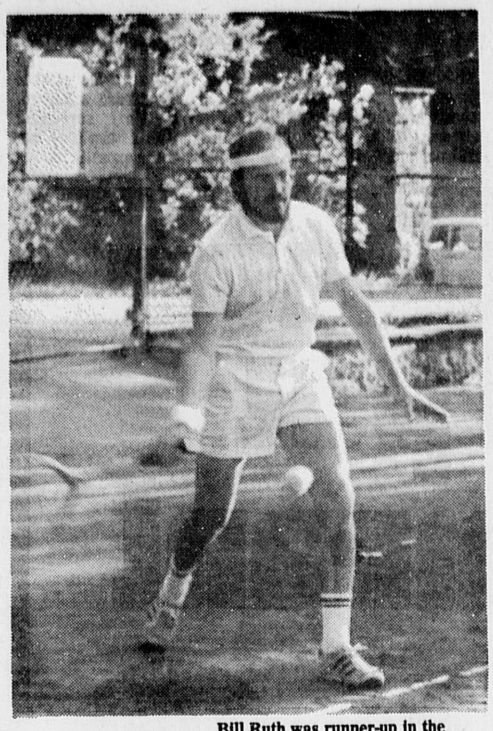
Friends of the late Alderman Charles H. Cosgrove of West Newton have kept memories of him alive through a permanent scholarship fund. This year, the committee, on its 13th anniversary, has announced that a $1,000 scholarship award will be made on Sunday, Sept. 15, at the annual dinner at St. Bernard's Club in West Newton.

Cosgrove, a Boston attorney, lived in West Newton for many years and represented Ward 3 on the Newton Board of Alderman. When he died, a small group of friends that he annually led to the Cape for a golf weekend wanted to remember him in an appropriate way, so the Charles Cosgrove Memorial Golf Tournament and scholarship fund was established.

Over $8000 in scholarships have been awarded. Now in its 13th year, the tournament will be held Sunday, Sept. 15 at the Wayland Country Club. Applicants for the scholarship awards must be West Newton residents, either enrolled or accepted at a college or junior college. Scholarship applications are available by writing to the scholarship chairman, Dr. Ben Antonellis, 130 Walnut St., Newtonville, Mass.

Co-chairmen of the event are Edmond White and Paul Burke. Francis "Chick" Carvelli is serving as golf chairman. Bob Cronin is ticket chairman, Billy Hannan is prize chairman, and committee members include Joe Cosgrove, Ray and Mickey Demeo, Jim Ryan, Jim Picariello, Donald King, John Tedesco, Ed Scarlett, and Dick Cronin.

Tickets are available from any of the committee members. Persons wishing to donate to the scholarship fund may do so by contacting the treasurer, Ed White, at 79 Cleveland St., West Newton.



Finalist

Bill Ruth was runner-up in the men's singles division of the Newton Adult Tennis Tournament. Ruth lost to Tom Fentin, 7-6, 7-5. (Lupo photo)

All A.A. meetings are not alike. They vary widely in members, customs, social levels. If you don't like story meetings, try the discussion or 12-step types. Many beginners prefer them. But, stick around . . . and move around. For some it takes years.
If you, or someone, thought you needed A.A., you probably do. It has been, and is now, a life-saver for several hundred thousand men and women. You don't have to "buy the whole thing" all at once. Just try being with winners. It will be a good start.

Wakefield home acquired for retarded young adults

The acquisition of a 17-room private dwelling in Wakefield by the Newton-based Community Group will hopefully pave the way to help additional moderately mentally retarded young adults develop social and salable work skills in a normal home setting. This would be similar to a program operated there over the past two years for 40 other handicapped men and women in two modern apartment buildings.

David B. Slater, president of The Community Group, 120 Wells Avenue, Newton, praised Wakefield residents for their "warm understanding, help and cooperation" since the program was first started in early 1973.

He said the expansion will make it possible to transfer 20 of the most advanced community-oriented residents from the two existing apartment house settings in downtown Wakefield on Crescent Avenue and Chestnut Street to the new dwelling.

"At the same time," he said, "it will make room for 20 other handicapped young men and women now on a waiting list to leave the stark atmosphere of state institutions or of difficult home situations and move into the modern apartment house setting for a more productive and stimulating training program."

The 17-room brick home at 43 Avon St. will be a residential and educational training center for the twenty advanced residents, and will also be the new administrative headquarters for the organization now located in Newton.

Most of the 20 residents to be transferred to the Avon Street dwelling, Slater said, are familiar figures in Wakefield, as they shop, go to outside jobs in private industry in the morning and return in late afternoon, with many of them, for the first time, having their own bank accounts.

And as many of these continue their personal growth, he said, they may eventually depart to get their own apartments, seeking counsel only occasionally from The Community Group professional staff.

The mortgage on the Avon Street dwelling is held by the Wakefield Savings Bank. The realtor handling the sale of the property to Slater was Ms. Ruth Hicks of the Hicks Realty in Wakefield.

Included in the training to help residents achieve their highest level of abilities is the job-training program conducted by The Community Group, which includes a non-profit workshop in Wakefield.

The program of integrating these retarded young adults into the full community life, including regular attendance at church, has been reported widely in the nation's press, including such national publications as "McCall's Magazine."

The residents living in apartments on Crescent Avenue and on Chestnut Street have also proved to be good neighbors to nearby residents and workers, including firemen at the Central Fire Station. When these residents go shopping, admiring shopkeepers "discount everything" for them.

Because many of them have developed good, reliable work skills, the owner of the Crescent Arms has contracted with them to handle the routine daily maintenance for the entire 18-unit modern apartment house.

At the non-profit workshop, other residents are working on sub-contract projects for nearby industries, for which they are paid regular salaries.

Sister Mary Howard Fleming of the Sisters of Mercy, executive director of The Community Group, expressed pride in the organization's achievements.

"The acquisition of the Avon Street dwelling is in keeping with our philosophy of providing the finest type of living quarters for our residents in comparison with the dehumanizing institutional type of living where many came from. Here, in a normal, warm home setting, these young men and women are blossoming with the love and special attention and guidance provided for them.

"For the first time, many have developed skills and abilities that their parents, guardians or counsellors had once thought impossible. Many for the first time are earning their own living on outside jobs in private industry and becoming self-sufficient." Sister Mary Howard served formerly with St. Joseph's Pine Harbor School in Rhode Island for severely retarrded children.

Those retardates admitted to the program enter on a trial basis. They must be ambulatory, able to dress themselves and able to adapt socially. The overall program is ungraded, but there is progression in terms of individual ability to achieve higher levels of performance in social and work skills.

The initial site at the Crescent Arms apartments saw the program launched in February 1973, with eight residents and a staff of three, housed in two two-bedroom apartment. Today the program requires eight apartments at the Crescent Arms for the 28 residents there, plus three more apartments at the Chestnut Street apartment house, for a total of 40 residents, aided by a staff of 15, including live-in advisors.

The Community Group, which handles the entire program, contracts with parents, guardians and counsellors to provide services for those retarded admitted, following a screening procedure to assure they can gain from the experience.

Students test underwater robot

An underwater robot being developed by student engineers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been successfully tested at a research site in Maine.

The 250-pound, torpedo-shaped robot was christened the "Albertross" a July 22 launching at which champagne was poured over its fiberglass nose cone. The "Albert" of the name was in honor of Albert Bradley, an M.I.T. research associate who helped supervise the project. The "Ross" was added to produce a pun on the word "albatross," a venerated sea bird.

The unique free-swimming robot, designed for oceanocraphic research, underwent its first tests on Wednesday, July 24, at the test site, Smith Cove, near Castine, Maine. The 20 M.I.T. undergraduate students, under direction of A. Douglas Carmichael, professor of ocean engineering, spent the summer doing ocean engineering research together with 16 students at the Maritime Academy in Castine.

In its first operation, the robot was controlled by wire and held at the end of a 50-foot tether. It performed short dives and maneuvered horizontally in the cove. According to Carmichael, the robot performed well, achieving the speed and maneuverability that was expected for the initial dives.

Eventually the engineers will install an autopilot and computer in the robot, to enable it to carry oceanographic instruments along predetermined paths under the waves. These components have been fabricated, and await testing and installation.

Development of the submarine research robot, believed to be the first of its kind, is being funded by M.I.T. and the M.I.T. Sea Grant Program. According to the student group, fleets of the relatively inexpensive robots could become standard tools in oceanographic research, enabling an oceanographer to scan automatically large portions of oceans that he would normally have to examine using a research vessel.

The robot will be able to carry 50 pounds of scientific instruments and withstand depths of up to 200 feet. Its computer brain will be kep informed of its position and underwater attitude by pitch, roll and depth sensors, and an electric companss. With this information, plus course and speed instructions programmed into it by its operators, the robot will trace out a prescribed course, controlling its instruments and sending information back to scientists on board a mother ship.

Members of the research group are also working on nother ocean-related projects, which they design and build as part of an M.I.T. seminar during the winter, and then test during the summer program. The projects include a compressed-air diver propulsion system, a magnetometer gradiometer to detect underwater wrecks, tide gauges, ocean mining techniques, and an underwater radio system.

"Intensive care unit psychosis" diagnosed

Patients receiving top-notch medical care may, paradoxically, suffer from "intensive care unit psychosis," a Boston doctor claims. This psychosis is caused by long confinement in a room that's almost empty—as far as the patient's sight and hearing are concerned. Result: He loses sense of time and reality.

In the August issue of the American Family Physician, published monthly by the American Academy of Family Physicians, Joseph M. Garfield, M.D., a Harvard Medical School anesthesiologist, says that many hospitals are redecorating their intensive care facilities to prevent this psychosis.

"From the time a patient is admitted to an intensive care unit, he is subjected to a barrage of instrunents, wires, and tubes," Dr. Garfield notes. "A cacophony of noises ranging from the beeping of monitors to rumbling food trays, disturbs efforts to rest. Visitors and nurses speak openly about the patient's progress or lack of it, causing innate doubts and paranoid tendencies to surface. If all this has not yet rendered the patient psychotic, the lack of windows, illumination 24 hours a day and the countless conversations will!"

To solve this problem, Dr. Garfield suggests that intensive care facilities be designed with windows, cheerful decor, radios and television sets to orient the patient to the outside world. Physicians and nurses should strive to give the patient rest between procedures and respect rights to privacy and dignity.

To decrease the risk of infection and psychotic disturbance, lines and tubes should be removed as soon as possible. Visitors should be encouraged to come as often as the patient's condition permits. The intensive care unit stay should be as short as possible and those patients who must spend weeks or months in such a unit should be located beside a window.

Film available on S. America mission work

The Missionary Society of St. James the Apostle, Boston-based group of diocesan priests who work in Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, has filmed aspects of its work in South America, the film now available for loan or purchase.

Edited and directed by Rev. George Flynn, a member of the society and graduate of Boston University's School of Communications, the film is an overall view of the society's missions. Parts of it show the beginnings, progress and present status of particular missions in Latin America.

Photographer is Steve Acker. Among highlights are segments on a production cooperative in the jungles of Peru; scenes of Chimbote, the Peruvian "boom town;' and one of the society's city parishes, where the people themselves are taking an active part in the running of the parish.

Further information may be had from Rev. Dennis A. Dever, director of the society, 24 Clark St., Boston, Mass. 02109. Purchase price is $150. No charge for loan, though a donation would be appreciated.

A DIFFERENT ARIES

Q. I was born on April 20, 1921 at 2:00 o'clock in the morning in West Bridgeport, Mass. I would like to know something about myself.

H.B.

A. In 1921 the Sun continued to move through Aries until 10:32 A.M. Eastern Standard Time therefore your Sun Sign was Aries but in many ways you differ from the popular conception of that Sign. While like Aries you would like to be independent, you are apt to be anxious to please others.

Instinctively you sense the need of their cooperation, support and affection and can be quite disturbed when you don't get it. Basically you are apt to do better when you do not depend on others. All this notwithstanding, you like to be with people and reach out to them in helpful ways.

You sympathize with the sufferings and problems of people and could do well in some social service or in a reform movement but you would need to work in your own way preferably dealing with each one individually.

You have a keen mind and should be able to express your thoughts clearly and distinctly. At times you are apt to resort to satire or even sarcasm in your effort to persuade others. Do be careful since people are important to you, you cannot afford to offend them even unintentionally.

When your nerves are on edge or when irritated you are apt to become impatient. Strangely enough, at times, you can keep some of your thoughts to yourself while at other times you may talk too much.

You have good vital energy and excellent powers of recuperation but should discipline yourself not to overextend yourself.

Backyard Frontier:

Do oil and ocean life mix?

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

Six and a quarter million tons of oil are spilled every year in the seas of the world, Dr. Bostwick Ketchum reported at a hearing held by Senator Edward M. Kennedy at the New England Aquarium in Boston on "Offshore Oil: Massachusetts Impact."

The hearing was held to help determine the impact on Massachusetts of the proposal to lease areas off the coast of New England for oil and gas development. Additional hearings will be held throughout New England and on the West Coast to further the ocean policy study. The hearings are a joint effort of the Senate Ocean Policy Study and the Subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Dr. Ketchum said that there is much conflicting opinion on the toxicity of oil. Different studies have given different results—partly because they have studied spills of different types of oil.

Crude oil consists of many different fractions, and the lighter, or aromatic, fractions are the most soluble and the most dangerous. Refined oils have a higher percentage of these more toxic aromatics.

A Falmouth spill in 1969 resulted in almost complete killing of organisms. Species resistant to oil quickly moved in, and shellfishing was eliminated for three years, then opened only to bay scallops, which have a one–year life cycle. Some shellfish in the area still have identifiable oil in their tissues, after five years. There is also still oil deep down through the sediments. Slow recovery is now apparent, but far from accomplished.

Studies of the Santa Barbara oil spill show less effect on sea life, probably because the oil was crude, not refined, as the Falmouth spill was.

Dr. Ketchum said that a great deal more research is needed. He named six general areas of research needs:

—General studies of toxicity and persistence.

—Studies of rate recovery of the ecosystem.

—Chemical studies to identify spills by "fingerprinting" of oil.

—Studies of the amount and distribution of oil in the present environment.

—Continuous monitoring of the oil problem for future evaluation.

—Physical studies of solubility, spreading, and changes in oil when it is spilled in water.

The most urgent need is to study the entire ecosystem and how it is related. "One small change can sometimes cascade and have a tremendous effect," said Dr. Ketchum, "but sometimes one small change is insignificant."

EPA publishes directory of recycling projects

The Regional Office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has published its 1974-75 edition of Solid Waste Recycling Projects: A New England Directory.

The directory lists approximately 150 recycling centers, as well as recycling projects within municipal trash collection operations in the states of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont. The directory also includes a list of state solid waste agencies, and a section on preparing materials for recycling.

John A. S. McGlennon, Regional EPA Administrator, noted that Americans today recycle a lower percentage of wastes than they did a decade ago: "Less than one half of all we discard finds its way back into the production stream. By making information on recycling opportunities more widely available, we hope to reverse this trend away from recycling, and to encourage people to recycle more newspapers, glass, cans, and other materials."

"Using materials wisely in the first place and recycling and reusing those which have been discarded is clearly the sensible way to reduce waste, conserve energy and materials, and at the same time, cut drastically the waste management problems which plague every city and town in this country. In its infancy today, recycling should one day become the keystone of a sane policy of solid waste management," Mr. McGlennon added.

Copies of the recycling directory are available free of charge by writing EPA, Public Affairs Division, JFK Federal Building, Boston 02203.

10-speed bike program at Ponkapoag Center

The Greater Boston YMCA has declared August 26-30 "Ten-Speed Bike Week" and announced a weeklong, coed, residential cycle clinic and touring program for teenagers at its Ponkapoag Outdoor Center. The Center is in the MDC Blue Hills Reservation, off Route 128 in Canton.

The nonprofit program is under the supervision of well-known bicycle designer Richard Poole of Wayland. Although enrollme t will be limited, the Y says that no previous ten-speed experience is required. The Center supplies all bikes, meals and lodging.

"The program should be quite valuable to teenagers contemplating the purchase of a ten-speed," says Poole. "They'll learn what kind of a bike to look for, and how to repair and adjust the one they get. Kids who already own bikes should pick up some useful cycling skills that will remain with them for the rest of their lives."

Poole has already planned an overnight cycle trip as well as day tours to interesting locations and recreational areas. There will also be instruction in bike repair, safety, riding for efficiency, and map reading, as well as daily swimming and other forms of non-cycle recreation.

Upon completion of a "qualification ride" participants will be awarded jacket emblems certifying them as eligible for other YMCA bike tours, such as one planned for Martha's Vinyard in the future. Interested teenagers can contact the Y Center weekdays at 696-4466.

Liquor use about the same among both youthful and adult drivers

Eighteen-to-20-year-old Massachusetts drivers have been involved in significantly more accidents since the state's drinking age was reduced—but the proportion of their accidents that involve drinking appears to be no higher than that for older drivers.

Those are the main findings of a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research team that has analyzed the effect on auto safety of the March, 1973, law that reduced the drinking age in Massachusetts from 21 to 18.

The researchers, who worked with data supplied by the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, said their conclusions contrast sharply with reports of alarming, unexpected increases in accidents among 18 to 20 year old drivers.

"Younger drivers are known to be more likely to have auto accidents," they said. "However, driving-after-drinking among 18-20 year olds appears to have increased only to the point where it is now comparable to that of older drivers."

The researchers found that the increase in accident rates among 18-to-20-year-old drivers was most pronounced for fatal accidents.

Their report said that all fatal accidents involving these drivers rose about 40 per cent—amounting to approximately five more fatalities per month.

About a 25 per cent rise was estimated for property damage accidents, or about 14 more a month.

An analysis of the reasons for the increase would indicate, they said, that drinking is now a factor in about half of all fatal accidents involving drivers 18 to 20 years old. They noted, however, that drinking also is a factor in about half of all fatalities involving older drivers.

"The increase in fatalities among 18-20 year olds was not large enough to indicate that driving after drinking is now more common among teenagers than among older motorists," they said.

Commenting on earlier reports of a "131 per cent rise in road deaths linked to teenagers and liquor," the researchers said this was the result of "preliminary comparison of raw data on accidents involving drinking citations for the few months before and after the new law went into effect."

"Though the increase is dramatic," they said, "these data are not adjusted for road use condition or for other factors that might have changed during the months involved—such as reporting practices for driving-after-drinking citation. Also, the actual number of drinking related fatalities involving young operators are subject to large statistical fluctuations since they are small compared with the total number of highway fatalities and the total number of teenager-involved accidents during those months."

The research covered the period from January, 1969, through September, 1973, seven months after the new law went into effect and just prior to the advent of the energy crisis.

The team used sophisticated mathematical techniques to analyze several types of data, such as:

Monthly accident figures, broken down by age and type of accident (fatal, non-fatal, property).

Concurrent data for the number of recorded "operating under the influence" and "operating after drinking" citations broken down by accident type.

The researchers reported that date was "well-behaved"—that is, consistent—prior to March, 1973, but exhibited significant changes after that date in cases involving 18-to-20-year-old drivers.

In their report, the researchers said that the precision of their estimates and the analysis of possible time-varying effects had been limited by having only seven months of data to work with after the law was changed. But the coming of the energy crisis would have complicated further analysis, they said.

They said they also found that statistics on citations involving operating-after-drinking underestimate the fraction of accidents associated with drinking and are unreliable for estimating the drinking behavior of specific age groups.

The study was begun in the summer of 1973 as an M.I.T. Undergraduate Research Opportunities Program (UROP) project. The program enables undergraduates to participate in research projects.

The work was supported by the UROP office and a National Science Foundation grant for "Innovative Resource Planning in Urban Safety Systems" at the M.I.T. Operations Research Center and the Laboratory of Architecture and Planning.

Come Let Us Reason Together

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX
"SOME DITCHING SUGGESTIONS"

With the ever increasing number of people who are divorced and widowed somebody needs to teach us "how to ditch." We have been totally unrealistic to believe that the marriage bliss of the wedding day means that you'll live together happily ever after. There are, for whatever reasons, fewer and fewer such marriages. More than one in three marriages is breaking up . . . more than that are critically unhappy.

I hope it won't happen to you . . . but if and when the "ditching" comes you consider the following suggestions:

First . . . DON'T PUT YOURSELF DOWN. Don't keep thinking "if only he-she had changes" . . . not blaming yourself "if only I had-hadn't done . . . " History can't be changed. Don't keep chiding yourself. "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are it might have been." Take what you've learned from the past and plow it inot the future.

Secondly . . . IMPROVE YOURSELF . . . your self image . . . your mind . . . your personality . . . your skills. Malcolm suffered after his "ditching" for six months. Then he began to learn to dance. He became very good. Said he . . . "It was good for my ego . . . because women like to dance with me. It was a great pick-me-up" . . . he said.

A divorced woman, Joyce, learned to play bridge. Here she made new friends and developed this new skill. Some divorcees are going for tennis . . . adult education courses . . . some even go for a higher collegiate degree. The point is . . . don't just sit there . . . do something constructive with your life.

Thirdly . . . DON'T ISOLATE YOURSELF. Some divorced people . . . feeling like failures . . . are embarrassed and withdraw themselves from church . . . community activities and friends. Don't worry if your female friends feel that you're a threat to them . . . that you may steal their husbands away. That's their problem. Might even motivate some of them to "shape up" a little more . . . to realize it could happen to them. Go where you want to go . . . be the free person you want to be. Don't let anyone intimidate you. Don't pity yourself. Hopefully you're better off than you were. If not you're now free to make it so.

Food news and views:

Have a nectarine!

By The Norfolk County Extension Service

The nectarine: isn't that something scientists conjured up by crossing a peach with a plum?

The nectarine's unexpectedly smooth skin and lucious flavor have helped create that impression, but actually this popular relative of the peach is distinct from other fruits. It was grown in China at least 2,000 years ago. Trader caravans carried it to the Near East, where it flourished in Persian gardens as a rare delicacy.

Explorers apparently brought it from Europe to the Western hemisphere. It was grown as a curiousity in the eastern United States in the early 19th century and introduced to California during the gold rush era.

After World War II, plant breeders did succeed in increasing the nectarine's size and in deepening the skin color. Its faint blush on a greenish background was changed to the now familiar gold and crimson. Today's nectarine is also firmer and its flesh is golden instead of white.

Classified as a subspecies of the peach, nectarines do occasionally grow on peach trees and vice versa. About 60 varieties have been developed, although only 10 account for almost all commercial sales. Most of the U.S. crop is grown in California, where San Joaquin Valley is the main producing area.

Regulations under a federal marketing order help insure a steady flow of nectarines to the consumer and provide for industry-wide standards of quality, size, and maturity. To gurantee that shipments comply with these requirements, all nectarines are inspected by a federal-state inspection service, operated cooperatively by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service and the California Department of Agriculture.

Nectarines don't have to be peeled. They're great eaten out-of-hand. At breakfast, nectarine slices brighten up a bowl of cereal. They combine well in many kinds of salads and fruit cups. Topped with ice cream, they make a delicious, simple dessert. The more ambitious may want to try making homemade nectarine ice cream or sherbet. Other dessert ideas include tarts, puddings, shortcakes, and pies.

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A recent column on memorial societies as a potential source of less expensive funerals prompted an inquiry from a woman in Denver.

She writes:

"I have a question to ask in regard to a funeral plan my husband and I both have, and in fact we have had for about 12 years and pay $6.40 a month. But recently when reading it over I find a clause which reads that the mortuary should be notified if one was taken seriously ill or was to undergo major surgery.

"This I don't understand. It states that the funeral plan could be canceled if this was not done. Could you tell me why, and could this be so? There is no interest paid on this plan either, which I think there should be. The amount (of the total plan) is $550 each."

It appears you have been stuck with a prepayment plan which is unethical, if not illegal. The National Association of Funeral Directors says it never has heard of an arrangement quite like yours either, and advises you to contact the Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies to lodge a complaint and perhaps win an adjustment.

Colorado is one of 35 states which have laws governing prepaid funerals. All of them require the money involved to be placed in a trust fund, with varying arrangements on what happens to the interest earned. Most allow the customer to withdraw all the money, and the interest, at any time.

The funeral directors group reports that a growing number of Americans are using prepayment plans. The difference between this and the memorial society approach is when the money is paid, and perhaps how much money.

Memorial societies are nonprofit groups which arrange in advance for basic funeral services for their members, working through one or more mortuaries. They claim to be able to save their members money by working in quantity and in advance. The payment is not due, however, until after the fact.

The funeral director's association contends that a good prepayment plan can serve the consumer just as well. That may be so, but a good bet would be to explore both alternatives.

The states, incidentally, which have laws governing funeral prepayment plans, in addition to Colorado, are Arizona, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Government safety investigators are looking at a potential lead poisoning problem with electric tea kettles. The kettles are very popular in Canada but generally not sold in the United States.

There are indications that a number of Americans have the kettles, however, having brought them back from Canada or received them as gifts. The problem involves lead solder which experts believe is dissolved into the water when the water is boiled.

No list of brand names or model numbers has yet been made available, and it is possible that both the Canadian and American governments will eventually determine that the problem is not big enough to warrant a recall or other action.

Safety officials tentatively report, however, that the investigation has uncovered one hopeful note: The more the kettle is used, the less likely the problem.

This is because most of the lead escape appears to occur the first few times the kettle is used. Those which have been in use for years are likely to be leaking lead into the water at levels which are too low to be a problem, experts now believe.

Under that theory one piece of advice for owners of new or recently purchased electric tea kettles would be to use them several times and throw the water away.

RIVER BASIN

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The River Plate Basin in South America includes large areas of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay.

The area is drained by the Parana, Paraguay and Uruguay rivers. Their more than 9,000 miles of navigable waters empty into the Atlantic through the River Plate estuary. An estimated 80 million people live in the region, which has a largely untapped potential for producing 60 million kilowatts of hydroelectric power.

Books

Pills, Profits and Politics, by Milton Silverman and Philip R. Lee. (California, $10.95) The authors, both with respectable scientific and academic backgrounds, take on everyone who misuses drugs —the doctors who over-prescribe them, the patients who gulp them down, the government agencies that should but don't regulate them. It seems that the first aim of a person seeing a doctor is to get a prescription, too often willingly dispensed. Well documented and highly readable.

Walls Come Tumbling Down, by Thomas R. Brooks. (Prentice Hall, $10) It all seems so long ago, and in the long ago it all seemed so simple. There were the sit-ins, the bus boycott, the freedom rides, the civil rights marches. And the solutions, which appeared as simple as honesty, gradually became more complex. Brooks puts it all in perspective in this moving, engrossing history.

The Corsican, by Bill Ballinger. (Dodd, Mead, $7.95). Supposedly based on fact, this book chronicles the rise of a mobster in traditional fashion, except that the protagonist is a Corsican instead of a Sicilian and it is the shadowy Union Corse that dominates the background and adds menace and mystery. The author, an accomplished, deft writer, manipulates his material with great skill.

How you face tomorrow depends on how you save today.

It's easy to put off saving money. But you can't put off the future.

So maybe you'd better make sure tomorrow doesn't catch you with your savings down.

One of the easiest ways to get the edge on saving is to join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Just sign up where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

By the time the future catches up with you, you'll have a solid stockpile of Bonds to fall back on.

Join now. So you can face tomorrow.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years 4 % the first year. Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Letter from Poland

By HOWARD A. TYNER

sWARSAW (UPI) — Authorities in Poland are out to improve the life here by cutting down on red tape.

What they have done is step up a campaign to eliminate unnecessary documents and forms, weed out time servers and paper pushers in state jobs and generally make more efficient use of this country's sprawling bureaucracy.

Most experts feel the program's success or failure will have much to say about the outcome of Polands three-yearold economic reform, and, ultimately, on the political future of top leaders themselves.

The latest move against red tape is a broad reorganization in the administration of rural areas under which local officials were given more autonomy from the central government in daily operations. Gierek Started Blitz

Planners say this reform, which went into effect Janm 1, should eliminate needless telephone calls, messages and other correspondence between Warsaw and provincial centers, and thus speed up progress in Poland's badly underdeveloped countryside. s

Communist party First Secretary Edward Gierek initiated the anti-bureaucracy blitz in 1971, shortly after he succeeded Wladyslaw Gomulka as Polish leaderm s

Many Poles believe a major cause for Gomulka's fall from power was because many of his ideas were blocked by entrenched bureaucratic interests or simply lost in a quagmire of bureaucratic indecision—an experience Gierek was determined to avoid.

"We must eliminate soullessness, inertia and slapdash from public life," he said in an early speech.

Some progress has been made, but the size of the challenge facing Gierek's reformers is awesome. No one even knows how many bureaucrats there are in Poland's rigid, centrally controlled system. s

Authority Is Wide h

What is known is that they reign supreme in the government, both at the national and local levels. The estimated 200,000 bureaucrats also run the 3,000 enterprises, 220 industrial associations and 40 ministries, commissions and planning boards which form the pillars of Poland's economy.

Their authority is wide Z"vest pocket dictators," according to one Warsaw journalist) and their say often decisive not only on affairs of state, but also on the lives of ordinary citizens seeking jobs, passports, drivers' licenses, apartments and official papers. l

Tales of their bumbling are numerous. Several years ago, for instance, bureaucrats in the slip-making industry delayed Poland's entry into the miniskirt era for months because they refused to follow the lead of skirt makers in raising hemlinem l

Bureaucrats also put back by two and one half years the signing of a contract with CocaCola because they could not agree on a retail price for the drink.

More Pressure Applied

"It was just a matter of bureaucratic indecision," the trade newspaper Gazeta Handlowy said.

Early in his administration Gierek began the clean-up by doing away with compulsory deliveries of agricultural goods by farmersIthus celiminating vast amounts of paperwork.

The process of obtaining passports and other travel documents was greatly simplified, a widely popular move. Some banking procedures were dropped and a simple checking system introduced.

sMore pressure for change was applied last summer when the Polish parliament debated relations between citizens and government officials and found that of 530,000 citizens' complaints lodged cagainst nivil servants during 1972, nearly half were justifiedm

Western diplomats say Gierek's real test will come later this year when the Communist party calls in membership cards for a "credentials check."

Communist sources said as many as 20,000 of the two millionmember party could be excluded from reentry to the party as a result of the card swap, depending on how deeply leaders want to cut in their cleaning out of nonproductive and time serving elements. s

NAME FAVORITES

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Michael and Claudia are the most beloved names in West Germany, according to a survey by a Cologne radio station.

The station polled listeners and said the top five male names were Michael, Thore, Peter, Wolfgang and Christian.

THREE TO GO

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers, who beat the St. Louis Cardinals three times in 1968, is the last pitcher to win three games in a World Series.

"Professional Hero" or Hero with a cause?
By PATRICK A. MALONE

LENEXA, Kan. (UPI) — There are those who call Charlie Plumb, not complimentarily,a "professional hero." He doesn't like the tag but doesn't duck it, either.

Professional or otherwise, Plumb is a legitimate hero, decorated as such by the U.S. Navy. And he spent six of the best years of his life, 2,103 days, in North Vietnamese prison camps where his body stagnated and his soul flourished.

The days of captivity, he says, were an unmatched learning experience and he believes he must tell his story and share his learning. He makes his living doing so, as a paid speaker.

His heroism took seed on May 19, 1967. It happened to be the birthday of Ho Chi Minh, then the North Vietnamese premier, and it was only five days before Plumb's tour of duty was to end.

Lt. Cmdr. Joseph Charles Plumb Jr., was threading his F4B Phantom fighter jet through antiaircraft fire on a bombing mission over North Vietnam. A surface-to-air missile brought him down.

Unhappy Homecoming

Six years later, on his first day of freedom at an air base in the Philippines, Plumb learned that his wife was divorcing him, his best friend had died of cancer and his country appeared p;p"reedom meant to a man denied it, of how he endured through love of God, love of country, pride, self-discipline. The children listened.

"If I hadn't been a prisoner of war, nobody would have wanted to listen to Charlie Plumb plug motherhood, apple pie and the American flag," he says now. 'We t66 guys were in an enviable position —we came back and people listened to us. Now I have a personal philosophy that when a person finds out he can do something right, something good, then it becomes far more—it becomes an obligationm"

Keeping Out Front

It's been a year and some months since that decision. All but a handful of the POWs have retreated from the public glare. Plumb and a few others have stayed in the forefront. He has made over 450 public appearances since returning, accepted some 60 plaques and other mementoes, spoken to more than 200,000 students from New Mexico to Florida.

Now Plumb says he has "slowed down": he gives only eight to 10 speeches a week. He has at least one scheduled every night for six weeks in advance.

"I think interest in the POWs has died to a certain extent," he says, "but I sure haven't seen it."

He found he was so popular, and he felt his message was needed so much, that he retired from the Navy in January and incorporated a public relations firm to promote Charlie Plumb full-time. He has one full-time employe, two part-time.

Pre-marital physicals
By Dr. James Price

Up until just years ago, a couple preparing to get married would contact their family physician just long enough to have the necessary blood test for syphilis drawn. Other than this, medicine was asked to add almost nothing to the preparations for marriage.

The increased sophistication of the public and the general availability of medical advice concerning contraception today has created an important role for the physician in helping a couple prepare for a life together.

Most states still require a blood test for syphilis prior to applying for the marriage license. This necessitates the drawing of a small quantity of blood. It is done because undiagnosed and untreated syphilis can have a crippling effect upon a baby. With V.D. at an all time high in this country, this test is becoming increasingly more important.

Since the three day measles (rubella), if contracted during the first three months of a woman's pregnancy, can cause defects in the baby such as blindness and heart malformations, many states couple the test for syphilis with a test that indicates whether the woman has ever had three day measles. 1

Should a bride have escaped this as a child, she may be immunized against it before she gets pregnant, but in no case should this immunization be done while a person is pregnant since fatal abnormalities may resultm

It takes only a little more blood for the blood type of a couple cto be determined in order to anticipate possible rh problems in babies as they come along. Incidentally, most cases of rh difficulties in babies now are avoidable through the use of a new desensitizing shot which is given to the mother shortly after birth.

A thorough physical examination should be part of the premarital preparation of both partners, since some treatable defects may interfere with a normal happy life. This is particularly true of the pelvic examination where abnormalities of the reproductive system can be detected as can any condition likely to result in painful intercourse.

Family planning is an important part of every premarital examination. lAppropriate means of contraception should be discussed and in some instances (such as the "pill") be begun a month or so before marriage. This is important if the bride expects to be protected against pregnancy during her honeymoon. 1

Counseling concerning attitudes about sex is quite important and can help prevent miserable honeymoons. Both bride and groom should be present during this counseling which is aimed at helping them understand the anatomy, physiology, feelings and expectations about sex of themselves and their partners. It's important for an inexperienced couple to recognize that normal males and females differ somewhat in their feelings about sex, and appreciation of these differences adds much to be a solid basis on which to begin married lifem

Genetic counseling may be indicated whenever either partner has some knowledge of a potential hereditary problem such as mongolism or other specific birth defects. In the absence of any recognized familial disease, genetic counseling, other than that normally done by the family physician, is probably an unnecessary expense.

Commission members sworn in by Mayor Mann

At the ceremony, attended by Joan Needleman, Lois Alexander, Susan Green and Paul Shiman, Mayor Mann remarked, "The neighborhood schools should be used by the entire community all year to meet the educational and recreational needs of all our citizenry.

"There has been increasing realization that the neighborhood schools have been underutilized. We have found that communities are receptive to the community schools concept because school facilities are being used for educational and community related purposes after school hours at minimal cost to the city," Mann concluded.

The Community Schools Commission was established by an ordinance resulting from a task force study headed by Mrs. Florence Rubin. The ordinance resulting froma task force study headed by Mrs. Florence Rubin. The ordinance, which was approved in December 1973, established a nine-member commission.

Mrs. Alexander, the Chairman of the Commission was formerly the chairman of the Hyde Community School Council. The other eight members are: Jane Pitt, Aaron Fink, Paul Shiman, Susan Green, Joan Needleman, Florence Rubin, Fern Marx, and Frank Fitzpatrick who represent the following agencies or departments: the Department of Human Resources, the Newton School Department, the Board of Aldermen, the Newton School Committee, the Mayor, and the Recreation Department.

Presently, ten schools operate as neighborhood centers for educational and recreational facilities for all ages. These schools are: Auburndale Community School, Pierce, Ward, Memorial Community School, Mason-Rice, Hyde, Angier, Davis, Emerson, and Oak Hill Community School.

The programs include classes in auto mechanics, guitar, modern dance, languages, child behavior, yoga, and law, as well as discussion groups on women's issues and current literature.

A number of school children take advantage of the after school or early evening classes. Among courses of interest to the younger children are: puppetry, drama, movement and song, and instruction in ice skating and skiing.

Summer film series to conclude Aug. 22

"Mr. Hulot's Holiday," starring Jacques Tati, a modern masterpiece of slapstick that recreates the visual satire of the silent days of Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and the Marx Brothers, will be screened, free, at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, Thursday evening, Aug. 22 at 7:15 p.m. in Chaffin Hall.

The film tells the story of a group of people vacationing at a seaside resort in Brittany. It is a series of comic mix-ups and casual caricatures that reveal how somemnly and strenuously people go about the job of enjoying themselves. The dialoque, in French and English, is at a minimum and is used to satirize the silly and pointless things that summer people say.

"Mr. Hulot's Holiday" is the last in the Newton Free Library's free summer film series which included screenings of Hitchcock's "Suspicion" and John Ford's "Stagecoach."

Announcements will soon be made for the Wednesday noon and Thursday evening NFL free film series.

To accommodate film fans' varied schedules, a new Thursday morning screening of the same films in the evening series, will be scheduled at the Newtonville Branch of the NFL.

Expected highlights of the 1974-1975 film series include screenings of Alistair Cooke's "America," a thirteen part series, three Luchino Visconti films, and three Robert Flaherty films, including "Nanook of the North." The NFL will also screen many feature films including "Henry V" with Laurence Olivier, "A Star is Born" starring Judy Garland, and "The Informer" featuring Victor McLaglen.

Film fans of all ages are invited to view the varied and specially selected feature films, documentaries, etc., screened free at the Newton Free Library.

Candidates

LOIS PINES

Regulations requiring the labeling of fat content in hamburger and establishing uniform nomenclature in the classification of hamburger and ground beef have been adopted by the Food and Drug Division of the Mass. Dept. of Public Health.

According to the measure's sponsor, State Rep. Lois G. Pines, Democratic candidate for reelection in the 19th Middlesex district, the regulations will go into effect on Sept. 3.

Three categories of hamburger, lean, regular and extra lean, will be sold.

"There is no excuse for consumers not to know the exact contents of the product they are purchasing," Mrs. Pines commented. "The implementation of these regulations is a vital step forward towards more exact and comprehensive consumer protection laws in Massachusetts."

DAVID J. MOFENSON

A bill cosponsored by State Rep. David J. Mofenson of Newton to set up a comprehensive statutory scheme for waiver, county payment or obviation of court costs for indigent litigants in both civil and criminal proceedings was signed by the governor last week.

"The legislation," Mofenson said, "implements constitutional requirements assuring that low income persons obtain equal justice."

The principal of public takeover of such court costs has been recognized by statute in 15 states.

JACK BACKMAN

State Sen. Jack H. Backman of Brookline has called upon President Gerald Ford to use his powers "to unite all groups in the nation and to grant amnesty to young people who dared to protest against our nation's involvement in the illegal war in Southeast Asia."

Backman is a Democratic candidate for reelection in the newly created State Senate district that includes Newton and Brookline.

IRVING FISHMAN

State Senator Irving Fishman of Newton said this week that he is "pleased" with his 1974 legislative work. Fishman reported that 27 of the bills he sponsored passed the Legislature and were signed into law this year.

They dealt with tax reform, tax relief, consumer protection, housing and banking reforms.

"In this time of spiraling inflation, my bills are designed to save people money, to help them to get more from their hard earned dollars," the candidate commented.

PAUL GUZZI

Secretary of State candidate Paul Guzzi of Newton this week proposed an Office of Citizens' Assistance within the secretary of state's office to handle problems Massachusetts citizens encounter with state agencies.

Guzzi, a Democrat, said he believes the office of Secretary of State "is the appropriate place for interaction between people and state agencies."

It would have subpoena powers, could compel the attendance of witnesses and could require agencies to produce relevant documents.

GEORGE SACCO

Eight pieces of legislation filed by former State Rep. George L. Sacco have been signed into law.

Among the new laws are a measure extending enforcement of the 1970 Unit Pricing Law to local authorities, a resolve to investigate the need for providing legal counsel for the children of married couples seeking a divorce, a bill permitting convicted individuals in certain minor felonies to have their records sealed and reducing the waiting period for sealing from 10 to five years.

WILLIAM COWIN

Republican candidate for attorney general William I. Cowin recently addressed the Newton Rotary Club.

Cowin spoke about reform of the state budget process.

"We will never control state spending," Cowin told Rotarians, "so long as budgets are passed in secret without adequate justification or explanation."

Cowin, formerly state secretary of administration, pointed to the reforms of the budget during his tenure, including the publication of a budget summary, "The Budget in English."

Cowin also cited the need to cut down on the number of annual budgets, "in order to keep agencies from spending too much and then running back for more."

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI

Democratic candidate for attorney general Francis X. Bellotti said this week that the Massachusetts fishing industry needs larger catches and tougher restrictions on foreign fishing fleets if that valuable industry is to survive.

Bellotti, a former lieutenant governor noted that the need for tough legislation is "now."

"We cannot afford to await the decisions of international conferences," the candidate said. "That process will take years."

He suggested that a good first step would be the enactment of an interim measure providing for a 200-mile conservation fishing zone now pending in Congress.

JOHN P. LYNCH

Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor John Pierce Lynch of Springfield has called upon Governor Francis Sargent to "take the initiative in the fight against inflation by being frugal and cutting back on unnecessary state expenses."

"Leadership must start at the top," Lynch said. "With a deficit of alarming proportions and a big tax increase coming up next year, Governor Sargent must bear the responsibility for the state's deteriorating economic condition."

FRANCIS SARGENT

Governor Francis Sargent, Republican candidate for reelection told Boston GOP leaders last week that while he was not expecting a battle in this September's primary, he "welcomes" the challenge.

In his speech, the governor also urged his fellow Republicans to "turn from the partisan politics of the past."

He said it is now necessary to "make the effort we must to bring this country together again, to heal a nation deeply wounded by tragic error."

MICHAEL DUKAKIS

Michael Dukakis, Democratic candidate for governor, proposed Monday a new "pay-as-you-grow" mortgage program as a way to encourage home ownership by younger families in older urban neighborhoods.

Under the proposal, families would pay less on their mortgages in early years and more in later years as their incomes rise.

"The state must begin an effective program of 'greenlining' older urban neighborhoods," Dukakis stated. "Assuring access to mortgage money for young families is the cornerstone of this program."

Commenting on the unavailability of bank loans in some areas, Kukakis urged that Massachusetts shrift institutions be required to disclose the geographic location of their mortgages investments upon the request of a certain minimum number of depositors.

ROBERT QUINN

Democratic candidate for governor Robert H. Quinn has charged that state residents are paying in excess of $100 million in taxes "to cover errors and abuses caused by Governor Sargent's state Dept. of Public Welfare."

Attorney General Quinn said that "bungling" by the administration threatens a cutoff of federal funds amounting to some $60 million sometime next year unless the error rate is substantially reduced.

"A glaring example of the spiraling error rate," Quinn said, "is a $31.8 million misdelivery of welfare monies to ineligible recipients."

"The Commonwealth and its taxpayers have to carry the financial burdens of these errors — mistakes we cannot afford," Quinn said. "In this time of increased costs, taxes, and necessities, the people of Massachusetts should not be forced to pay for incompetence, and that is what we have here — an incompetence tax."

ROBERT DRINAN

Congressman Robert F. Drinan, Democratic candidate for reelection in the Fourth Congressional district, voted in favor of legislation to reform the financing of federal election campaigns last week.

The bill passed by the House of Representatives sets strict limits on contributions by individuals and organizations to political campaigns. It also establishes an absolute ceiling on campaign expenditures by all candidates for federal office, and provides for the complete public financing of presidential elections through voluntary check-offs on the federal income tax form.

The Senate has already passed legislation which contains most of the provisions of the Clean Elections Act sponsored by Drinan last year.

"As the scandal-ridden Nixon presidency has reached its anguished conclusion," said Drinan," the job of this Congress to restore the integrity of our political system has only just begun.

"The public is distressed with corrupt politics and corrupt politicians. Now we in Congress must act to prevent future abuses of the political system by enacting vigourous campaign reform legislation.

"We owe it to the American people to apply the grim lessons of Watergate to this constructive purpose," he said.

JOHN L. DANEHY

Middlesex County Commissioner John L. Danehy, a candidate for reelection, moved for action by the County Board to establish a program-performance-management budget system for fiscal 1975.

The proposal calls for specifically detailing each of the 39 units and 200 subunits of county government according to current levels of productivity and proposed levels of performance which would reflect budget requests.

Lower Falls housing to have luxury units?

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

A meeting between the Lower Fall Project Area Committee (LOPAC) and the Newton Housing Authority to determine the fate of low-income housing in Lower Falls resulted in the committee's decision to investigate other options.

Three issues are at stake. One is the number of units to be devoted to subsidized housing by the Newton Redevelopment Authority; the second is the fate of those who must be relocated due to urban renewal; and the third is whether or not to mix units and not isolate them economically.

The Housing Authority came to LOPAC, according to NHA Chairman James Miller, wanting to determine the "requirements of the urban renewal plan and how we can fit in."

The number of units that could be built on the redevelopment site would be approximately 60. LOPAC Chairman, Joel Leighton, said he felt this would be the "maximum density" for the area. It was the understanding of some members that all the units to be built would be wholly subsidized in the following manner — one-third low income, one-third moderate income and one-third elderly.

However, Donald Budge, president of the Lower Falls Improvement Association and LOPAC member, asserted, "I am unalterably opposed to the project being 100 percent subsidized . . . if the breakdown were to allow for one-third of the units to be built for market development, it would create a basic upgrading of the whole development."

Budge added that an entirely subsidized project would be "detrimental to the area." Member Mildred Colantuono stated that only putting in low and moderate-income housing "won't take care of the people here," (people who had to be relocated due to the urban renewal project).

Dora McKeon commented, "We always were in a squeeze," and member Ruth Maffiola pointed out that only one resident to be relocated was eligible for low-income housing.

Attorney Richard Clarey, who is also a member of the Newton Redevelopment Authority, pointed out that the wording of the plan "allowed for luxury apartments." Clarey was very vehement on the subject of residents who have to be relocated being treated fairly and stated, "If I have anything to do with it, they will be."

While the determination of how the units must be divided is a consideration, another factor is LOPAC's desire to have only one architect build the housing for the sake of uniformity. Leighton pointed out also that "the original concept is not supposed to be little ghettos but 60 crazy, mixed-up families living together."

Leighton's theory of income mix is documented and supported by a recent Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency's report that said residents economically mixed and living together were delighted with the situation.

The Housing Authority can only build low-income housing, and Miller stated that they were not interested in "simply leasing" units but were committed to new construction.

LOPAC will meet with William White of MHFA on Sept. 12 to further explore housing options available to the residents.

Condominium law signed by governor

A bill giving the Board of Aldermen controls over the conversion of multifamily dwellings to condominiums has been signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent.

The state law is an enabling act, giving Newton the right to establish its own controls over condominium conversion.

The proponent of the law, Ald. David Cohen, and Ald. Edward Richmond, who co-filed the earlier aldermanic resolution with Cohen, have prepared the Newton ordinance, which will be given a public hearing in October.

The Board of Aldermen passed a resolution in May asking for a state law to control condominiums. The vote was a surprising 17-6, with some aldermen not seriously in favor of the measure, it seemed.

Properties affected by the law are those for which special aldermanic permission (permissive use) had been granted for their construction.

According to Cohen, most apartment houses and garden apartment developments in the city will come under the law.

Protection of the tenants in existing apartments is the main purpose of the law.

Under the new legislation proposed by Cohen and Richmond, all tenancies in effect at the time a conversion to condominiums is contemplated shall remain in effect for up to 18 months after request is filed by the owner of the building.

Further, the tenant has the right to apply to Newton's Department of Human Resources for relocation to a comparable rental unit. The petitioner wishing to convert to condominiums will be responsible for the relocation effort.

In cases of hardship, "financial, physical, psychological, or otherwise" (the proposed ordinance reads), the owner may be required to extend a tenancy for 18 months, under rules to be written by the Department of Human Resources, and may be required to give more 18-month extensions as long as the hardship exists, as determined by the Human Resources Department.

Owners of illegally converted buildings will be subject to a cease and desist order from the Building Department, disobeyance of which not obeyed, will subject them to court action.

The state enabling legislation was before the governor once earlier and returned for modification. When it last reached the floors of the Senate and House during the waning hours of the legislative session, Sen. Irving Fishman and Rep. David Mofenson both literally kept their eyes on it every minute to avoid the "accidents" and "losses" of the actual bills that sometimes occur.

NCDF and Lasell ready to move on building plans

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic Staff

Two highly controversial and longstanding matters — the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) housing and the Lasell Junior Coolege student center — were the subject of public hearings last week before the Land Use Committee.

Also discussed were a proposal for a day-care center at Hammond and Beacon Streets, Chestnut Hill, and a plan to reduce parking spaces required when valet parking is provided.

NCDF President Rev. Gilbert Avery reported to the committee that NCDF has received a mortgage commitment from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and selected a contractor and hopes to break ground this fall for its 50 units of housing.

Avery also said that a limited partnership agreement has been sent to the Towers at Chestnut Hill, the condominum complex that is helping to finance the NCDF housing on the Thompsonville site adjacent to the Towers.

A lease agreement is "in the works," Avery said, with the Newton Housing Authority for the latter's leasing of 20 housing units from NCDF for the NHA subsidized housing program.

Site studies, which have been completed, Avery said, required the minor changes in site plan that necessitated the public hearing.

The changes are a reduction in landfill needed and a consequent lowering in elevation for one of the buildings, a realignment of parking spaces for one building, sewer relocation, and enlargement of the walkways to comply with fire regulations.

Robert Cohen, owner of abutting land and a consistent opponent of NCDF, questioned Avery's statement about real estate taxes, which Cohen said NCDF has all along said it will pay.

Avery had said that under Department of Community Affairs regulations for a limited partnership, NCDF will pay to the DCA 13-15 per cent of gross rentals to the state, which will refund it entirely to the city.

Cohen warned that this type of partnership may be converted to a corporation that will have landtaking power.

Access to the Hamlet Street site was disputed by Cohen and others, all of whom claimed that NCDF has no right to access or the laying of utility lines through the street, since it is a private way.

The bitterness that marked the course of NCDF toward providing some low and moderate-income housing in Newton has abated in amount but not in intensity.

Opponents of the plan, all residents of the Hamlet Street area, appeared at the hearing to speak against various matters connected with the housing.

The most vociferous opponent was Letitia Angelone of Langley Road, who spoke at length. She told the aldermen, "By permitting this housing to go forward, you are ruining the homeowners of Newton Centre and Thompsonville."

"We don't need this kind of housing in Newton. We don't have slums now, but we will have (if the NCDF housing is built)."

While opposition to NCDF apparently continues, opposition to the student center at Lasell Junior College seems to have dissipated to a large extent, since the college has relocated the proposed facility toward the center of the campus away from the street.

The Auburndale college has been planning a new student center for two years, but neighborhood opposition has been strong to a location near homes, because of the threat of increased traffic and late-night noise.

The Auburndale Community Association has changed its position from near-unanimous opposition to "no position," meaning that the ACA is not in favor and not opposed.

Some opposition was heard at the meeting, however, principally from Dr. Thomas Ryan, 46 Vista Ave., who said he was representing 14 abutters also opposed to the proposed location.

Several neighbors spoke in favor of the location.

Under an amendment to the city ordinances, the Board of Aldermen now has the power to review site plans of alterations to educational institutions which were previously exempt from the zoning ordinances. However, actual control that can be exercised by the city extends only to parking, traffic, and landscaping requirements for proposed alterations or new construction of buildings with educational uses.

A petition for a day-care center to be operated by Boston College was met with skepticism by opponents and resistance by some aldermen.

Ald. Michael Lipof siad, "There's no end to the permissive uses, variances, and so on, Boston College is putting the city through."

"With its acquisition of Newton College of the Sacred Heart, I can see the destruction of the single-family neighborhood in Newton Centre," he said.

"I've drawn the line with the excesses of Boston College. In another five years Newton Centre will look like Cleveland Circle," Lipof said. His statement was greeted with applause from the audience.

The college is seeking permission for an 86-child day-care center to be run by Boston College, with professional staff and some student staffing. The center would, according to spokesmen for the college, be primarily for Boston College faculty, employees, and graduate students.

Another approach to solving the dearth of parking in Newton was presented by lawyer Robert Freeto at the Land Use Committee meeting.

Freeto is asking for a reduction in the number of parking spaces required for theatres, clubs, and other such places where of "amusement or assembly" where large numbers of people are expected, if valet parking services are provided.

Under Freeto's proposal, only three-fourths of the number of parking spaces now required by ordinance should be necessary, since cars can be parked more closely when an attendant can move blocking cars.

Freeto believes that the concept could be applied also to restaurants, stores, and apartment buildings.

All these matters, and others, will be discussed at a working meeting of the Land Use Committee on Aug. 27.

Work begins on North asbestos

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Work begins this morning on boxing in the exposed asbestos beams at Newton North High Schools.

Building Commissioner Gene Larson said Wednesday that James Boyle and Son, Inc., of Everett has contracted to do the work for $175,000. An additional $18,000 will be spent on the bedding and taping of beams which were taped last summer.

There has been much concern in recent months about asbestos at the new high school being a possible health hazard. City officials met with several doctors Tuesday morning at City Hall, and out of that meeting came a decision to box in the exposed beams.

The work is expected to take about nine weeks, but Larson noted that the majority of the work will be completed prior to Sept. 5, the day school is scheduled to start. Larson said that school will commence on time.

Much of the work which needs to be done is in the shop areas of Newton North.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann said this week that "a very definite commitment has been made to boxing in exposed beams." He called the process "preventive medicine," and remarked that "to my knowledge, we are the only community in the United States addressing itself to this problem."

It has been suggested in recent years that exposure to asbestos fibres may eventually cause cancer.

A representative of the U.S. Mineral Co., which sells asbestos to sub-contractors, was at the Tuesday meeting. Mann said that it was pointed out that U.S. Mineral Co. has investigated the health of people who apply asbestos, going back 25 years, and that it was indicated that there have been no known cases of pulmonary disease relatedd to the applications.

Mayoral assistant James Salter said that the doctors agreed that asbestos fibres in the lungs is not healthy. "It was agreed that it was prudent to do prevention action," Salter commented.

Larson has explained the history of the asbestos situation. When the high school was designed, he city's specifications called for asbestos fibers in the fire-proofing material. Larson noted that "asbestos was a standard item until the asbestos scare of 1971-72".

"In April, 1973, it was undertaken to box in exposed beams," Larson added. He said that about $49,000 was paid to a contractor on a time-and-material basis.

Last spring, the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee approved a $130,000 appropriation for boxing in asbestos at Newton North. Larson said that earlier this summer "it became obvious that the problem was larger than we had imagined."

Initial tests indicated that much of the fireproofing material at Newton North might be a nonasbestos material, according to Larson. "This got our hopes up," he said, "but more tests said it was asbestos." The final report on the tests was received in early August.

Larson statedd that he estimated that it would cost $2 million to box in everything with asbestos on it in Newton North. Much of this expense would come from the necessity of taking down suspended ceilings, duct work, and pipes to get at the asbestos.

The city is still seeking more information on the potential health hazard of asbestos. Salter pointed out that "the action Newton is taking is beyond any standards that exist." Test at Newton North have shown that the asbestos level is well within required safety standards.

Larson has written a letter to Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, a professor of environmental medicine in New York, to ask if he is interested in being retained by the city. Larson said that if Selikoff agrees to come, he would be asked about the potential health hazard of asbestos outside of industry, and if it is hazardous, what can be done to deal with it.

The connection of asbestos with cancer has generally been associated with people in industry.

Off-street parking under study

A revised ordinance governing the provision of off-street parking for buildings whose used has changed has been prepared by the Planning Department for review by city agencies and is currently under review by the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

The new proposed ordinance applies also to parking for buildings that are being replaced or enlarged.

The revision is a substitute for a proposal presented last year by Rep. Peter Harrington, which was held in the Land Use Committee until earlier this year, when opponents of the establishment of a McDonald's restaurant in Newtonville tried to use parking as a barrier to the restaurant.

That first proposal to require off-street parking upon notice of use change for a building brought on a campaign of protest from the Chamber of Commerce and some of the Board of Aldermen, and after it appeared that the measure was doomed because of its stringency, the Planning Department was given the job of redrafting an ordinance that would be acceptable to the chamber, the business community, and the Board of Aldermen.

"A lot would revolve around the attitude of the Board of Aldermen toward granting permissive use for expansion of parking," Songer commented, adding that the chamber "appreciates the willingness of the city to work with the chamber."

"Hopefully," Songer said, "we can come with some ability for business expansion."

The proposed revision makes use of the present zoning requirements under Section 25-20 of the city's zoning ordinances, with modifications.

The application to existing retail and office buildings, which are responsible for most of the parking needs in the city, is as follows:

Milton Hindus of Newton and Brandeis

If your "junk mail" habitually finds its way into the nearest wastepaper basket, unopened and unheeded, you may belong to an army of postal customers long irritated by this phenomenon.

Milton Hindus of Newton Centre does, even though in 1947 it nearly cost him the chance to be part of the founding faculty at Brandeis University.

Hindus, the nephew of famed Russo-American author Maurice Hindus, was an assistant professor of humanities at the University of Chicago 27 years ago, when a colleague one day asked if he'd heard about the new university in the East recruiting a faculty. From all over, too, even at Chicago.

No, he hadn't heard. But Milton Hindus admitted if any overtures had come to him by mail, he probably gave them the heave-ho, especially if it looked like "public relations stuff."

Although he wasn't considering a move after only two years at Chicago, the idea of a new university quickened his pulse.

"I hurried back to my office that day," he remembers, "and sure enough, crumpled up in the wastepaper basket was a brochure telling about Brandeis University and all its plans." What's more, there was an invitation for an expenses-paid trip to Waltham that said, "Come, look us over." He did. And from the time he decided he liked what he saw, events passed quickly.

The rest, of course, is history. Milton Hindus tied his star to Brandeis, an the university was happy to tie its star to him and 12 other original teachers for its 107-member pioneer freshman class.

The last 26 years are history: "I've given more than a quarter-century of my life to Brandeis, but if I had it to do all over again, I'd do it the same way."

There may be a hundred reasons for such an attitude, but the one that echoes longest in his conversation deals with the things that made Brandeis different. It is these of which Milton Hindus is perhaps most proud in his long alliance with this University.

"No, I wasn't nervous or worried when Brandeis opened, or when classes met for the first time, and I think this says a lot about me," he concedes matter-of-factly. "I was kind of brash and self-confident in those days. Many of us were looking for smallness, and maybe there was more of it in 1948 than I bargained for. Everyone knew everyone else, of course, and all of us were together in the same boat wondering to ourselves what brought the other fellow here."

There may have been a risk, too, he agrees. After all, it was comfortable at prestigious, solid Chicago.

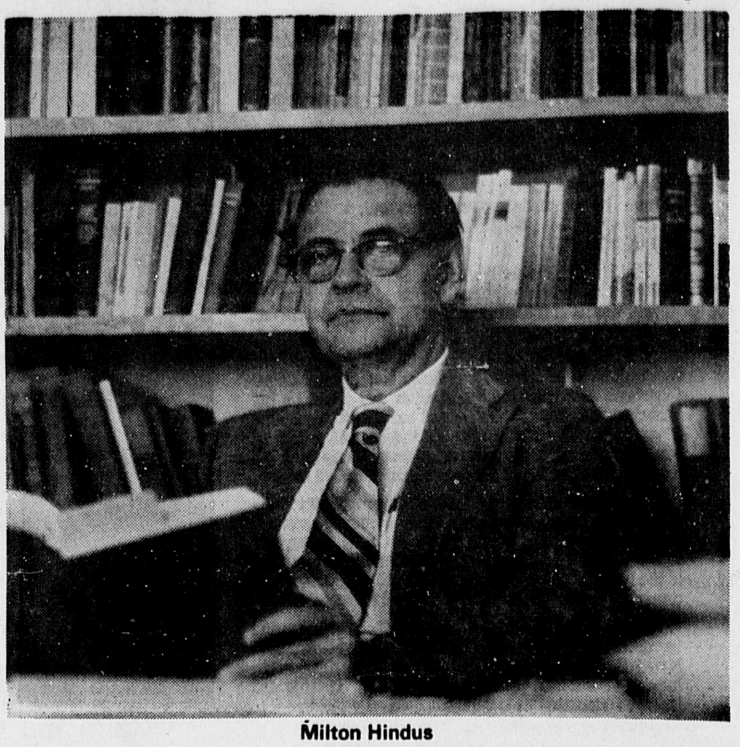
"Maybe it was foolishness and maybe it was rashness to leave and come to Waltham. But in some ways, Brandeis was attractive to me, partly, because of a positive orientation I had toward my own Jewish background. It was not a nationalistic kind of Jewishness, though."

The fact that Brandeis was new helped as well. "I didn't want to get lost in the shuffle. I knew what large organizations were like, and I guess I'm individualistic and eccentric enough not to like them."

Some of the excitement, strangely enough, came from the tensions created by the struggle for survival. "Brandeis might have closed its doors at any moment, and that was something we learned to live with quickly. But I was fairly sanguine then, and I thought no matter what, I could make my way. So I didn't worry. Anyway, the place was jumping, and it was exciting and the students were interesting. Of course, I was young and when you're young the whole world is exciting."

There is more to remember from those early years, like living in Brandeis, "Castle," his friendship with Joseph Cheskis, and his memories of people like Robert Frost.

Frost, the legendary American poet, was an early "friend" of Brandeis, and he first came here as a guest lecturer in an adult education program for which Milton Hindus was largely responsible. "Frost was very friendly to the university when we got started, and I think it was important — in those days — that he extended his recognition to Brandeis quickly, since he was a hard man too fool. His friendship with us is particularly memorable for me."



Milton Hindus

At Robert Frost's last visit to Brandeis, Hindus recalled, "He was in his eighties and on the night he visited the campus he had a cold and a fever and the doctors had ordered him to stay in bed. Robert Frost would have none of that, however. He said to me, 'I haven't miseed a lecture in 40 years, and I'm not going to start with Brandeis.' "

Hindus pointed across the angular rooftops of the Usdan Student Center to the "Castle." "There, in between those trees, you can see the window of what was our living room." The Hinduses lived in the Castle for a year before they moved to Watertown. Later, they came too Newton Centre, where they have now lived for 20 years. He and his wife, Eva, described Newton Centre as a "lovely place to live in." "Our area is, perhaps, one of the last spots with two miles of woods behind it."

The temptation to compare today with yesterday is irresistible, but unlike some of his colleagues, Milton Hindus portrays student quality at Brandeis over the years as remaining nearly constat.

"In 1948, the students I became acquainted with (in terms of their interest and their search for answers and their discussion) were as good as any I taught previously. When I came here I found people, like some at Chicago, who functioned on pretty much the same wavelength as my own."

Students in 1974? "Well, today there are many the same way, but there have been some extraordinary ones in recent years," he says. One youngster, even before he enrolled at Brandeis, visited Milton Hindus to talk about Marcel Proust. "He had read a lot about Proust and when he came across my book on him, he wanted to come here and talk to me. He did, too! It struck me as odd that a young person would want to do this, even before he enrolled as a student."

Recently, another student in an English literature class answered a question that has since given moments of satisfaction to Milton Hindus. "I asked him what he got out of my class. His answer made me feel good. He said: 'I learned for the first time that literature could be taken seriously be people I respected.' "

In "his" world of literature, Milton Hindus finds other reasons to throw bouquets at Brandeis. "For the most part, the eight books I have written were done at Brandeis and with the university's help." He describes his principal scholarly writing as focused on American and European literature, although two of his books have Jewish themes.

"Brandeis was helpful to my writing, and I must put this down too the great credit of the university."

Recycling plan passed, drinking ban held again

Of two important measures heard at a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen last Thursday, one was passed and the other returned to committee for the third time.

A recycling ordinance developing out of a proposal submitted by Ald. David B. Cohen in 1973 was passed 14-3 by the full Board.

Under the terms of the ordinance, the city will undertake curbside collection of recyclable glass, separated by color, as well as newspapers, which are collected monthly now.

The backbone of the ordinance, compliance with which is voluntary, is an accompanying resolution calling on the mayor to appropriate up to $2500 the first year of the ordinance's existence to pay for advertising and informing citizens of collection days.

The newspaper collection for recycling was begun with much fanfare more than two years ago, but tonnage collected has been gradually declining.

Many recycling proponents attribute the decline to the lack of notification of collection days. No notice has been left at homes.

Details of the glass collection, such as type and color of containers to be put on the street and how they might be identified, and frequency of collection, remain to be worked out.

An amendment proposed by Ald. David Jackson to make the program mandatory was voted down by the Board.

The ban on public drinking, first approved by the Board of Aldermen at its regular meeting Aug. 12, was moved for reconsideration and voted on again at Thursday's special meeting.

The much-debated and worked-over ordinance would prohibit the drinking or consumption of "any intoxicating liquor or alcoholic beverage" in public parks and playgrounds, public buildings, public or private parking lots, and public or pravate ways to which the public has access.

The prohibition would not apply when prior consent of the owner has been obtained or when a permit has been obtained from the appropriate city authority.

After considerable debate, the word "possession" as a prohibition was eliminated from the original proposed ordinance.

The drinking ban was reapproved by the Legislation & Rules Committee earlier this month after having been returned to that committee from the Board.

Returned again, the ordinance cannot be worked on in committee until Aug. 26, the next regular L&R committee meeting date, and if reported out to the full Board could be voted on again on Sept. 3.

Police Chief William Quinn and former Recreation Commissioner John Penney both asked for a change in the ordinances to help them deal with the noise, littering, and other abuses connected with uncontrolled drinking in playgrounds and other public places.

Two new lawyers join Law Department staff

The Newton Law Department has added to the young look around City Hall these days, with the hiring of two new lawyers who have begun work within the last two weeks.

Commenting on the additions to his staff, which now numbers five assistant city solicitors, City Solicitor Howard Levine said, "I am very pleased for the city that we were able to attract two such intelligent and competent young attorneys."

Kristen Apgar, 27, is a graduate of Mills College, Oakland, Cal. She received an M.A. and an M.A.L.D. from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, and a J.D. from Boston University School of Law.

Her previous legal experience includes that of law clerk with the Boston law firm of Martin, Morse & Wylie and with the Boston Legal Assistance Project.

Ms. Apgar has also been employed as a coordinator of research and data processing for a group of universities and as a summer intern at the Agency for International Development.

Ms. Apgar and her husband live in Allston.

Richard K. Foster, also 27, is a native of Rhode Island. He received a J.D. degree from North Carolina Central University and an LL.M. degree from Boston University. He was associate editor of the Law Jornal at North Carolina Central University, from which he was graduated cum laude.

Foster has been admitted to practice before the Rhode Island Supreme Court and the Federal District Court.

He lives in Lincoln, R.I., but plans to move to this area soon.

Human Resources post to Ms. Byrne

Patricia Byrne has been appointed to the position of assistant director of the Department of Human Resources by Mayor Theodore D. Mann. Ms. Byrne replaces Karen Adler, and assumed her duties on July 15, 1974.

In the capacity of assistant to Director Jane Pitt, Ms. Byrne will act as liaison between the Department of Human Resources and the Youth Cultural Affairs, and Community Relations Commissions and the Council on Aging.

The student internship program will be expanded and coordinated under Ms. Byrne's direction. The program employs interns from local colleges who serve in certain city departments, where they will gain firs-hand experience in particular fields while earning college credit. Ms. Byrne will handle all student, school and department requests concerning the program.

The new appointee is currently involved in arranging interviews for the Street Worker Program to be initiated in the fall, at which time supervision will be assumed by Ms. Pitt. The department intends the new program, which is to be staffed by Action volunteers, to serve all the youth of the city.

Ms. Byrne will also coordinate activities at the senior citizens dropin center in Newtonville.

Ms. Byrne, a native of Westbury, N.Y., was graduated from Newton College of the Sacred Heart, where, as a student, she held a position on the Board of Trustees.

Chestnut St. parking ban upheld

A 4-3 vote by the Board of Aldermen's Street Traffic Committee to accept the Traffic Commission's recommendation to prohibit parking on the west side of Chestnut Street from Ellis Street to Route 9 for a 60-day period was greeted last week by cries of protest by antique dealers on the street.

Dealer Gretta Sones stated that the problem was one of "safety" and the aldermen's action will not "solve the problem at all." She charged that the aldermen were trying to solve the situation with "token" action and pointed out that there are four antique dealers who won't be able to unload furniture.

There have been rumors that one of these dealers may seek an injunction to stop the aldermen's action.

Another dealer, Brian Reardon, who owns The Red Coat, said, "My customers are elderly and if they can't park, they just won't come." Reardon suggested that making this street one-way might be a better solution and alleged that the only reason it wasn't done was due to "political interference on the committee."

Reardon felt he was entitled to run a business and said that the antique stores had brought "color" to Upper Falls. He resented that fact that the banned area began "right outside my shop" and felt that the aldermen had "divided the road indiscriminately." He commented that rush-hour traffic is the villain and pointed out that "my place closes at 4 p.m." He also felt that citizens using the road were not from Newton and asked, "Why should they take care of people who don't even live in Newton?"

The committee tabled action to install a fenced median strip on Elm Road which is the location of Newton North High School. The resident most affected by the students' drinking, congregating and even urinating on his property is Henry O'Connor of 83 Elm Rd.

Some drawbacks to a chain-link fence are that it could be stepped over and, unseen at night, could possibly cause injury.

Children's Theatre to have touring company

For the fifth season, the Boston Children's Theatre will supplement its winter theatre program of productions in Boston, with a touring company which will travel weekends to bring live theatre to communities outside the city.

The touring company season will open on Nov. 16 with "The Reluctant Dragon," which will be available through Feb. 9.

The play "Aladdin" will be offered from March 8 through mid-May. Bookings are being accepted now.

Appearing in these plays are youngsters selected from the creative drama classes which the theatre provides during the school year. Also in preparation is the B.C.T. Winter Theatre performing at New England Life Hall October through May. Scheduled productions are, "Hansel and Gretel," "Hans Brinker," "Pinocchio" and "Heidi."

For information on any of these activities — drama classes, Winter theatre or the touring company, people may write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Ma 02116, telephone 536-3324.

Vice-President

Never before in the history of this country has there been such intense and introspective interest in the office of the vice-president.

Recent history has proved that the second highest office is very often a shaky step toward assumption of the highest office in the land.

Among those who served as vice presidents and later became Chief Executives are Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, Harry Truman, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and President Ford.

Never again will the post be that of political window dressing and secondary speech making.

Our hopes, prayers and best wishes go with the new vice-president today as he embarks on the historical mission that truly affects each and every one of us.

What might have been

Except for the opposition of one Republican leader in 1968, former Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe might well be President of the United States today.

When the Republican National Convention opened, principal speculation centered on Nixon's selection of his vice-presidential running mate.

John Volpe was considered a top possibility. He was a Catholic, a Republican who could draw Democratic votes. He had won election to a governorship three times in a strongly Democratic state. It seemed he could generate as much help to Nixon as anyone who could be picked for second place on the GOP national ticket.

But opposition to Volpe developed. He had been unable to deliver his state's delegation to Nixon on the first ballot when Nixon would be nominated. In fact, Volpe himself was forced to vote for Nelson Rockefeller on that ballot.

Senator Edward W. Brooke, no great friend of Volpe's, had caught Volpe by surprise and executed a political coup which saw his friends and followers vote for Rockefeller as their presidential choice.

Massachusetts delegates to the two national conventions were bound to vote on the first ballot for the candidates favored by the voters of their parties in the presidential primary.

That did Volpe in as far as the vice presidential nomination was concerned. He had to vote for Rocky on the first ballot while beating the drums for Nixon.

In the end, the committee Nixon had convened recommended that he pick Spiro Agnew, then governor of Maryland, as the No. two man on the Republican national ticket. "Spiro who?" was the reaction of reporters covering the convention and voters at home.

It was a surprise choice. Agnew was not as well known nationally as Volpe. At the beginning of the presidential primaries Agnew was supporting Nelson Rockefeller, then governor of New York. Agnew shifted from Rockefeller to Nixon — apparently because Rocky did not pay enough attention to him and court him in the manner he expected.

Those strange circumstances prevented John Volpe from getting the vice-presidential nomination he wanted so much in 1968 and from being elected to the vice-presidency in 1968 and 1972.

As events turned out, he just missed the Presidency.

The ill-fated second-term Richard Nixon

Analysis by Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — In the Nixon scheme of things, his first term was to be political and the second to be historic. For the first four years he would consolidate his power; in the next four, he would use that power to enter the hall of the greats, along with Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt.

But fate – or a fatal flaw in Nixon — turned all that around; The first term had historic merits; the second was pockmarked with political demerits.

Had Nixon left office at the end of four years, his brief service might well have been recorded as a significant transition from a period of uninterrupted wars (World War II, Korea and Vietnam) to an era of international entente. He was, for that purpose, the right man in the right place at the right time.

The time was right. The Communist monolith was coming apart. China and Russia were fearful of each other and ready to make a dentente even with the hated capitalist United States to keep a Communist rival off balance.

North Vietnam had become something of an annoyance to the great Communist powers, showing altogether too much independence and aggressiveness in Laos, Cambodia, Thailand. China and Russia were as eager to get the Vietnam war over with as were the war-weary American people.

Nixon was the right man. He was a Republican who had made a career of his antiCommunism. He could deal with Brezhnev, Ma. Jo without being called a Traitor. He could get American conservatives to sing his praises for shaking the bloody hands of the red tyrants. In short, he could do what no liberal Democrat could have done without risking a nasty right wing uprising against the sell-out of the totalitarians.

Nixon was in the right place – in the presidency. It is here that the man could wield his greatest influence, for in the area of foreign affairs our Chief Executive is almost an absolute power.

Had he left office in 1972, his initiatives could have been recorded as statuesque statesmanship, especially if the United States avoided major military entanglements through the '70s and beyond.

But then came the second term, historic in its own way, but epoch-making only in its political shame. The first president to see his vice-president resign under fire; the first president to see dozens of his most trusted and influential aides indicted, found guilty, jailed; the first president to resign from office. He is also the first president to use the 25th Amendment to name a vice-president. And Nixon's will by the first four-year period that will see three vice-presidents.

These are all historic firsts. But they will all be grouped in the books under the caption of Watergate: dirty politics.

And what was Watergate but a way to win the power to win a noble niche in history – another case of the means destroying the end.

Quinn, Dukakis sing political lullabies

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn and former State Representative Michael S. Dukakis, opponents for the Democratic nomination for Governor, have carefully refrained from stepping on each other's toes, saying a cross word about the other or asking each other any hard questions.

That is a pplite and refined method of campaigning, but it is not the way to have a full discussion of the important issues or to let the people know where Quinn and Dukakis stand on major matters, and after all these two men hope to be elected to the highest office within the gift of the voters of Massachusetts.

So in this column we will pose some questions for the two Democratic gubernatorial aspirants. If either of them answers the inquiries within a reasonable period of time, we will relay their responses to you.

Whether they reply or not, the questions alone should give you some insight into their public records which surely will come up for discussion when one of them stands against either Governor Francis W. Sargent or former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan in the final election campaign.

Quinn is a moderate, middle-of-the-road Democrat. Dukakis supposedly is a left-wing liberal although his rather spotty record of votes does not always justify such an appraisal. Our first question is directed to Candidate Dukakis.

Spokesmen for senior citizen groups claim that Dukakis, while a member of the House of Representatives in which both Quinn and he served, voted against bills which were intended to help elderly men and women in modest circumstances.

They declare that in 1964, Dukakis, a supposed liberal, voted against a resolution calling upon Congress to grant a $200-a-year pension to all persons over the age of 65.

Mr. Dukakis, they say, was listed as not voting when the House in 1966 passed a bill to give elderly citizens a tax exemption. After the then Governor Volpe vetoed that measure, Dukakis voted to uphold the Governor's veto, they add.

Finally, they complain that in 1968 Mr. Dukakis voted against a bill to permit senior citizens to ride for half-fare on the mbta after reaching the age of 65. They argue that these votes do not reflect the concern for elderly people which one would reasonably expect from a Governor.

If Mr. Dukakis desires to answer their complaint or explain any of these votes, we will publish his statement.

Members of the Civil Liberties Union sharply criticize Attorney General Quinn for supporting the Springfield School Committee against the State Board of Education in a row over whether portions of the Racial Imbalance Law were legally and validly repealed. The CLU members side with the State Board against Quinn and maintain that the repeal of the law was unconstitutional.

They say that although Quinn is the chief law officer of the Commonwealth, he refused to provide special counsel for the State Education Board so that it could present its position to the State Supreme Court and that instead Quinn will submit a brief to the high court supporting a petition of the Springfield School Board to vacate a court order for school busing in Springfield.

If Attorney General Quinn desires to explain what some Civil Liberties Union members call a high-handed and arbitrary action by him we will publish his statement.

These are some of the matters which Quinn and Dukakis should be debating in the political arena if they weren't just singing political lullabies as part of their pact not to offend each other.

Withhold opinions on Ford's 1976 prospects

Political experts across the United States are predicting that President Gerald Ford not only will be nominated for the Presidency by the Republican party in 1976 but also will be elected to it by the voters.

The students and scholars of politics reason that the people will be in no mood for another big change and upheaval in their national government a little more than two years from now.

There is no doubt that the Republican presidential nomination will be Ford's for the taking in 1976. He will have the power and patronage of the Presidency at his command. His men will control the party machinery in Washington.

But any opinions concerning Mr. Ford's chances of winning the Presidency in his own right should be delayed until time permits an appraisal of the job he does as President. He is confronted with some tough problems which will not be easy to overcome.

JEKYLL AND HYDE

President Ford will have an excellent chance of winning election in 1976 if he solves the nation's economic problems in the next two years—curbs inflation, brings the cost of living under control, increases employment and generally improves the prosperity of the United States.

He will have virtually no chance of gaining another term in the White House unless he at least has made some progress in that direction by the time of the next Presidential election.

Gerald Ford also is much more conservative than most people apparently realize. The change from the role of Congressman from the Grand Rapids section of Michigan to President of the United States may cause some revision of his views, but there is scant liklihood President Ford ever will be accused of liberal leanings.

It is highly unlikely, for instance, that Gerry Ford ever could carry a state such as Massachusetts against any Democratic opponent. On the other hand, he should be strong in the South and the Middle West.

President Ford's record of accomplishments during the next two years will pretty much determine whether he will be unbeatable in 1976 or if a Democratic candidate such as Senator Edward M. Kennedy might be able to topple him.

At the moment Gerald Ford is enjoying what is called a political honeymoon period in which he can do no wrong.

Members of Congress during the next 100 days will vote most of the things Ford wants if they don't clash too sharply with the convictions of the Congressmen.

Newspaper columnists and television commentators will try to find kind things to say about the new man in the White House who should be allowed time to get his bearings.

Many people will wonder why Gerald Ford wasn't nominated at least for Vice President in 1968 and 1972 if he has such great Presidential possibilities.

President Ford's political honeymoon will end about Thanksgiving.

Democratic spokesmen will begin to forget that he once was a member of "the club" on Capitol Hill.

Along with the newspaper columnists and the television commentators, they will state to criticize Gerry Ford for some of the things he is and isn't doing. President Ford will be the target of partisian fire by Christmas when thoughts will be turning to the 1976 election. By then President Ford will have to do something more than cook his own breakfast to draw favorable reports on television or in the newspapers.

At the year's end Gerry Ford no longer will look like the invincible man on the shining white horse. He will be marked by some of the flying mud.

Open letter to Mayor Mann

Dear Sir:

First I want to state that I have never before written an unsolicited letter such as this and I am over 65 years of age.

The reason for this letter is the headline of the Aug. 8 New Graphic, "$14 to $20 increase in taxes almost certain."

What does this mean to you and what can it mean to the average citizen? Does it really bother you or your administration? Well, let me tell you that it frightens and dismays the majority of the Newton taxpayers.

I have been waiting to see or hear something that refers to the word "austerity, economy or sacrifice" on the part of City Hall or the Board of Aldermen or the School Committee. Or is that what is expected only of the taxpayer?

You are asking for new additional staff personnel. That means additional salaries. These jobs are to be newly created. Couldn't the city get by without them? How did the previous administrations get along without them? Couldn't you try.

We received a small reduction in taxes last year. Should we now accept the opposing candidate's statement that this was a political tactic? I shouldn't want to think so.

Is it not a fact that school enrollment is becoming smaller each year and is expected to decrease in the future? Then why should we be appropriating millions of dollars for new additions to our present school system. It appears that there is no limit as to what should be spent on Newton Schools. It is about time someone has guts enough to say "STOP." I read somewhere only recently, it may be Wellesley, that a community turned down for the third year a bill to spend a million dollars for a new school. They said the taxpayer could not afford it, and Wellesley is a pretty wealthy town. It is time to call a halt in our city. If we don't we will begin to look like the city of Boston with a tax rate that drives homeowners out of the city.

Doesn't anybody care what is happening to the retired or low income people that could lose their homes because taxes are reaching a confiscatory point?

Why couldn't we have eliminated the Newton Junior College last year? The delays cost the taxpayers money. You are a man of action. Why can't this be done now and wipe it off our hands?

The city workers deserve a cost-of-living wage increase, but wasn't that a pretty big jump? Did the administration negotiate, or were we scared of a longer strike, and settle too quickly? I am certain that the union realizes that the money comes out of the long-suffering taxpayer.

I have been watching the local newspapers for some editorials mentioning the need of economy, austerity, holding down taxes, but it seems that it is not a serious problem. Well, it is a serious problem, but the public is as usual silent and long-suffering.

Is the School Committee sacrosant? Can't the mayor or the Board of Aldermen put some restraints on them?

We could have been receiving over a million dollars in taxes from the Towers, but someone messed up the construction, causing delays, and now I am not sure that it will ever be built. Some eager beaver found a technicality that ruined everything and cost the city a large tax income. I hope that this person has found some kind of satisfaction from what he caused.

It took over four years to get the Marriott Motor Hotel built. Why? We lost the taxes for all those years. Whenever someone wants to put up a building, there is an immediate outcray from some small groups for their self-interest. We need some leadership to prevent this and help Newton grow, and to decide what is best for the city, not individuals.

Why is Brookline having a steady construction program? New buildings are going up continuously. What is happening in Newton? Not much. Are we becoming static.

Please believe me, I am not a crank, just a private citizen who has feeling of deep frustration and felt I had to express my feeling. Too many people are willing to just drift along and hope that the politicians will solve their problems. I just don't want to see homes lost because of excessive taxes that could possibly be avaoided.

Mr. Mayor, what about it?

Drinan praised

To the Editor:

On Aug. 8, you carried a letter by Gary Barron of Waban wherein he expressed his "extreme disgust and disappointment" with (his claimed) "almost nonexistent participation of Congressman Robert Drinan in the Nixon impeachment proceedings."

Mr. Barron is badly misinformed about Cong. Drinan's work and position in the Judiciary Committee of the Congress. The fact is that Drinan is a highly respected member of that committee, respected for his stalwart character, industry and profound knowledge of our constitutional law. In the committee he has energetically and successfully protected the sovereign rights of the people against autocratic attacks by President Nixon.

I, a Lutheran protestant, cannot express my admiration of Cong. Drinan, the Jesuit, better than by quoting him from the magazine section of last Sunday's Boston Globe:

"Even if the monstrous abuse of the power of the Executive branch of government is dismantled, the illegal impounding of funds, the invasion of privacy, the illegal surveillance of citizens, outrages against civil rights, even if all these were dismantled, there still would remain the massive and financial bureaucracies which dominate American life to the point where reasonable people are searching for conspiracy theories to explain the outrageous injustices inflicted upon them as consumers in a democracy supposed to be under the control of the people, . . . a massive infusion of morality in government from top to bottom" (is what is needed).

I heartily agree with him.

Applause for Newton theatre

To the Editor:

Accolades to the cast, directors, choreographer, musicians, and crew of the recent production of "Fiddler on the Roof" presented at Newton North High School. It was truly a delightful evening and a fine interpretation of a difficult play. Newtonites are indeed indebted to Gail Forman and the Recreation Department for sponsoring such a creative and worthwhile an activity.

And applause, too, for the Ward Street Players for a fun evening at Temple Emanuel with "Come Blow Your Horn." It was a fast-paced, laugh-a-minute night.

What a pleasure to know that we are fortunate enough to have such talented, creative, and industrious young people in our city!

Sinnott has 'courage'

To the Editor:

Chalk up one for columnist Dic Sinnott. Three cheers for his soul-searching essay on forced busing. Not only does Sinnott have a marvelous writing style, he also has the courage to take a tough stance on a tough issue.

I was sorry to see that Boston school teacher criticize Sinnott in Aug. 15's Graphic. She talks about freedom and then wants to deny Sinnott his. Incidentally, if she is so involved and desires to truly abide by her convictions, why doesn't she move to Boston?

Police harassment

To the Editor:

As a concerned citizen and one who believes very strongly in the rights of the individual, I am deeply disturbed over recent events in our city.

To be specific, on a Sunday evening recently, while I was conversing with my peers at the Newton South parking lot, a Newton police officer approached us and demanded that we leave the parking lot. The time was close to 11 p.m.

I informed the officer that resolution No. 784-72, which was passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen, allowed us to occupy the lot up to the hour of 11 p.m. or when the lights went out on the tennis courts, whichever was the later. He claimed that the curfew was 10:30 p.m. and if we failed to move we would be subject to arrest. I told him to call Police Chief Quinn, the mayor or any alderman and that they would back up my story. The officer then proceeded in giving me a hard time, stating that he didn't "give a damn what they say" and that if I wanted to press the point he would arrest me.

I must say that I was very tempted to take his offer, but I decided that the best course of action to take was to leave and complain to City Hall the next day.

The next day I complained through the mayor's office of the incident, and I also informed them that the signs at the parking lot had been illegally changed to say 10:30 p.m. I asked them to change the signs back to 11 p.m. and to inform Chief Quinn to stop harassing the youth who use the lot. As of Wednesday the signs have not changed.

On March 30, 1972, Quinn wrote a letter to fellow officers telling them to "Cooperate with youth whenever you can."

This incident of pure harassment isn't the first to happen to me. One week before the 1973 municipal election, I received a ticket by Officer Macnair of the Newton Police Department for failing to stop at a stop sign at the corner of Centre and Lyman streets. I was harassed for close to 40 minutes and finally served with a complaint. There was just one problem; there is no stop sign at the corner of those streets. I took the case to court where I was declared not guilty within three minutes. Officer Macnair failed to show up at the hearing.

Now I am reading in the papers about this new ban on drinking in public. This ban also gives police the right to search cares when there is "probable cause." This new law is an invitation to any police officer who abuses the law to harass the youth in this city. This point was brought up at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen and is worth considering.

I sincerely hope that this letter has an impact on the readers of this newspaper and the city as a whole.

One final point: When the right of the individual is threatened, society becomes threatened as a whole.

Siphon banned

Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., of the Newton Fire Department wishes to bring to the attention of all persons concerned with selling or using automotive equipment the following directive received from the office of the State Fire Marshal:

"All fire chiefs are alerted to a hazardous product being offered for sale called a 'Gas-Getter' siphon, distributed by R. P. Products, Inc., Raleigh, N.C., and Marketing Ventures, Inc., of Atlanta, Ga.

It consists of a draw plunger within a one-quart plastic bottle to which is attached a 5-foot section of ½" plastic hose. In tests conducted in our laboratory this device was found to leak badly, and liquid spills could not be avoided. In addition, sufficient vapors were retained within the hose and bottle to create an explosive mixture in the trunk of an automobile. This device is considered to be in violation of FPR-4, Rule 44, and fire chiefs are directed to order its removal from sale and prohibit its use."

The Mall a 'jungle'?

To the Editor:

These days, it is really so hard on the shopper. Not only because of the unbelievable inflation — going to a shopping mall is a tease in the first place — but when you have to fear for your own safety and wonder if your car will be where you left it, with everything in it, locked up or not. This is a sad fact of life in the summer of '74.

Last Saturday, after an hour or two of daylight shopping at the Chestnut Hill Mall, upon returning to my car, I found that, despite the fact that it had been locked, it was broken into.

I found the front seat littered with pieces of metal and the ignition switch mangled by a botched-up attempt by a thief who was either an amateur or had been frightened off.

The police officer who reported this crime told me I was lucky that the car was still there with all the tires on it. I was told by a security guard that this is a very common occurence, and by a female employee that it is dangerous to venture too far on the outskirts of the parking lot because of the number of attacks, and by the repairshop man of the fantastic number of cars they see inthis condition or worse. All told me I was lucky I found my car there at all.

I can understand the lack of publicity on these matters on the part of business and shop owners, but as a shopper I feel I must warn others to be alert, and holler out loud!

Counterfeit warning

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department is advising every merchant in the city to be aware of counterfeit bills that are being circulated in Boston and surrounding areas.

The Chief warned that the notes have varying serial numbers and some tens and twenties have turned up in Newton already. In cooperation with the U.S. Secret Service, "our uniformed officers are notifying as many business establishments on their routes as possible," Chief Quinn added.

Candidates

LETITIA ANGELONE

Letitia Angelone, independent candidate for state representative from the new 19th District, this week said she is distressed to read "the pitiful claims of the incumbent candidate in the 19th Middlesex District, regarding the so-called tax-deferment law, which is nothing but creeping expropriation of the property of elderly homeowners, to be foreclosed on death (in exchange for picayune benefits), and the 'elderly tax-exemption law' giving those over age 70 an insignificant remission of real estate taxes."

Such "benefits" are but more dust in the eyes of the retiring citizens who have been the backbone of the community during their whole lives and have proved it by acquiring decent homes, Miss Angelone said.

"The burden of supporting the various forms of urban housing, redeveloping, public, low-income, etc., financed by tax-exempt bonds and exempt from real estate taxes for 40 years, even though transferred to private corporations within that time, is oppressive indeed for working taxpayers, but to the elderly it constitutes dispossession.

"When dispossed, the elderly have oo hope of living in deluxe low-income subsidized rental apartments under the law voted for by our present representatives. This is the kind of representation Mewtonians do not need."

DAVID J. MOFENSON

The recently concluded legislative session saw the continuation of Rep. David J. Mofenson's outstanding roll-call record. Of 570 recorded roll calls in the 1974 session, Representative Mofenson was present and voting on 565.

Since he entered the ligislature in January, 1971, he had been recorded on 2,304 of 2,316 roll calls, giving him a 99.59 roll call record.

"The roll call is the key to legislative responsibility," said Rep. Mofenson. "Among the states, the Massachusetts Legislature ranks as the most roll-called. I am proud that I have been able to provide the citizens of Newton with a voice on virtually every issue to come before the legislature."

LOIS PINES

Legislation introduced by State Representative Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) every year since 1971, which will grant over 220,000 low- and middle-income families a state tax deduction effective in calendar year 1975, has been signed by Gov. Francis Sargent.

The new legislation will allow working families to deduct from their gross income the cost of expenses incurred for the care of children under 15 years of age and dependent-care expenses of a disabled spouse or dependent who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself, provided the expenditures made enable the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

Several liberalizing provisions are being considered by Congress that would modify federal law to more closely approach Massachusetts legislation.

Under the new legislation a family whose joint income is less than $18,000 will be able to deduct all expenses incurred for child care or dependent care up to $400 per month.

Rep. Pines, a practicing attorney before her election to the House, is a candidate for re-election from the 19th District.

JACK BACKMAN

State Sen. Jack Backman, chairman of the Social Welfare Committee, is filing legislation to turn the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development, which is now subordinate to both the secretary of manpower affairs and the governor's staff, into a major state department with the prime responsibility to provide an annual and long-range economic plan of development for Massachusetts.

There would also be a counterpart as a standing legislative committee, staffed with top economic, business and government planners, so as to give initiative and flexibility to the legislative process in regard to specific legislation relative to tax incentives, business planning incentives and other financial incentives to attract new industry.

Backman, a Democrat from Brookline, states: "Here in Massachusetts we have one of the highest unemployment rates in the country and a high cost of living and high taxes. Cutting back on programs for children or the elderly will certainly make the lives of many thousands of people very difficult, t it will not accomplish what must be our main task — the revitalization of Massachusetts economy.

"This must be accomplished by stimulating business growth, eliminating unemployment, creating new jobs. Massachusetts once was one of the key industrial areas of the country. But in the last 50 years, industry has been packing up and moving South. We must determine to reverse that process."

IRVING FISHMAN

Several important bills sponsored by State Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton) to provide tax relief for elderly homeowners become Homeowners over age 65 with incomes under $20,000 are now permitted to defer payments of their property taxes until their property is sold or becomes part of their estates, providing they make such an agreement with the Board of Assessors.

Another Fishman bill, now law, extends tax exemptions from real estate taxes for elderly persons with marginal incomes. The bill eliminates Social Security payments from the $6,000 gross income eligibility ceiling.

"These bills will help relieve the financial pressure on many senior citizens who are living on limited incomes and want to keep their homes," Sen. Fishman said.

Fishman is candidate for re-election.

MARK FURCOLO

Mark Furcolo, a Democratic candidate for state treasurer, said recently that he considers the rising cost of living the overall most important problem Massachusetts government faces. Furcolo pledged immediate and forceful efforts against inflation if he is elected the chief financial officer of the Commonwealth.

Furcolo signaled that he would initially cause the state treasurer's office to join the fight against inflation by inaugurating a series of conferences, meetings and seminars with recognized financial and economic experts for the benefit of all city and town treasurers and government financial officials.

"We must not lose the struggle against inflation by default," Furcolo said. "We must successfully combat the acid of inflation which literally is eating away our people's earnings and savings."

"In my view," said Furcolo, "the state treasurer's office is the appropriate place for new leadership to come from as government searches for new economies and efficiencies which will keep the cost of living under control."

PAUL GUZZI

In response to events on the national level secretary of state candidate Paul Guzzi this week called for the creation of an independent public attorney for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Guzzi said, "Experience has shown that elected politicians cannot be trusted to police other politicians. Massachusetts needs a strong independent public attorney to investigate and prosecute election law violations, political crimes, and conflicts of interest."

"Massachusetts has had political corruption, scandals, and election law violations that have not been investigated or fully prosecuted," Guzzi said.

"John Davoren, as secretary of state," Guzzi continued, "has had the responsibility to police election laws, a major area of concern as Watergate has shown, and in his seven years in office not one election-law violation has been prosecuted."

Guzzi called for the independent public attorney to be appointed for one six-year term by retired members of the judiciary, with a budget of not less than 15 per cent of the attorney general's budget. The single term could not be renewed and the official would not be eligible for public office within two years following his term.

WILLIAM I. COWIN

William I. Cowin, Republican convention-endorsed candidate for attorney general, this week proposed a "Consumer Corps" in the attorney general's office.

The Consumer Corps would be a special investigative unit within the Consumer Protection Division that will operate undercover, as decoys, Cowin explained. "They will pose as typical unsophisticated consumers. They will allow themselves to be defrauded and exploited, and they will gather sufficient evidence to secure criminal convictions of the worst offenders."

Cowin said the staff for the Consumer Corps would come entirely from the budget of the existing Consumer Protection Division, using existing staff wherever possible, and supplemented by volunteers.

Cowin also pledged to curb the "spiraling budget" of the attorney general's department, and called upon all candidates for state office to make a similar commitment to control state spending.

"For my own part, I will start with the budget of the attorney general's office. Under the present incumbent, that budget has increased 130 per cent in six years! The number of employees has more than doubled! If I am attorney general, that uncontrolled expansion will stop."

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI

A Democratic candidate for attorney general, Francis X. Bellotti, has called for a more comprehensive coordination of crime-fighting programs between the Attorney general's office and the various district attorneys.

"According to figures recently released by the FBI it is clear that armed robbery, murders, burglaries, and forcible rapes are no longer occurring within the urban environment. In fact, serious crime is increasing at a faster rate in the suburbs," Bellotti said.

Bellotti, a former lieutenant governor, has been a consistent advocate of crime-fighting programs set up on a coordinate state-wide basis.

"During the past five years in the Greater Boston area, for instance, crime has increased by 60 per cent in the suburbs as opposed to 44.4 per cent in Boston proper. According to recently compiled date three factors account for the increase in suburban crime: the growth experienced by many communities as subdivisions, apartments, and shopping centers proliferate; a court system which, in the opinion of many law enforcement officials, is not tough enough in prosecuting and sentencing offenders; and the construction of highways like the Massachusetts Turnpike, the Southeast Expressway and Routes 93 and 95, which have made it easier for thieves to reach what were our isolated communities," Bellotti said.

CHARLES CABOT

Charles Cabot, a Republican candidate for attorney general, today called for a new approach to utility rate setting in Massachusetts which uses guidelines to reward efficiency and punish inefficiency.

"Under present procedures," Cabot said, "the burden rests upon the Department of Public Utilities or a complaining consumer to demonstrate that expenses incurred by the companies were unwise or unjustified."

"Instead of spending all their time providing a perfunctory review of utility accounting, the DPU should develop efficiency guidelines by comparing the operating costs of various private and public utility companies here in Massachusetts and throughout the country.

"Then the burden should be on the companies seeking rate increases which don't meet the efficiency guidelines to explain their circumstances. Based on these guidelines and the explanations offered, utility companies which operate efficiently should be allowed a greater profit, and those which are inefficient, less profit."

EDWARD F. HARRINGTON

Edward F. Harrington, a candidate for the Democratic attorney general nomination, has called for the creation of a special Attorney General's Elderly (AGE) Task Force, a unit that would address the problems of the state's senior citizens in matters related to the law.

"Too often our elderly neighbors are victimized by an entire range of legal difficulties simply because they are advanced in age," Harrington said in spelling out his plan.

He said the task force would utilize the resources of the attorney general's various functional divisions, including those devoted to consumer protection and criminal investigation.

"The objective of the AGE Task Force will be to aid the elderly with legal problems that are created or intensified merely because these men and women are beyond middle age," Harrington said.

Harrington, the former chief attorney of the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in New England, has been endorsed for the attorney general's post by Mass Caucus '74.

GEORGE SACCO

George Sacco, Democratic candidate for attorney general, today announced that as attorney general-elect he would request that an independent nominating committee be named to screen and recommend all applicants for major positions with the attorney general's office.

This unique nominating committee will be comprised of law-school deans, consumer organization representatives, law-enforcement figures, and leading members of citizens groups.

The committee will be charged with the responsibility of recommending directly to the attorney general those applicants best qualified to head up the 13 division and two bureaus of the attorney general's offiee. This procedure will effectively remove the appointment process from the political realm and ensure that the attorney general will have immediate access to the finest available legal and technical talent in Massachusetts.

THOMAS P O'NEILL III

State Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill III, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, has proposed a comprensive plan to help homeowners and renters strapped by soaring electric rates and "fuel adjustment" alowances.

O'Neill said that Newton had been particularly hard-hit by spiraling rates, noting that the average family here now pays $27.53 monthly for electricity. "Last year," he added, "these charges amounted to only $18.99. This is a 45 per cent increase for the average Newton family."

Citing the problems that New England has experienced in obtaining fuel because of its geographic location and its dependence on foreign fuel sources, the Massachusetts legislator called for the creation of a New England Fuel Cooperative.

"Electric utilities in New England have been forced to compete for the scarce residual oil that is currently available," O'Neill said. "This competition has driven prices sky-high."

"If New England utilities bought their residual oil collectively, they would form a very powerful consuming group — a virtual 'consumer monopoly.' This consumer monopoly would immediately reduce the disastrous impact the Fuel Adjustment Clause has had on the average consumer's pocketbook," O'Neill concluded.

ROBERT H. QUINN

Fiscal and administrative mismanagement of executive departments and programs has cost Massachusetts more than $600 million in wasted tax dollars over the past five years of the Sargent Administration, Attorney General Robert H. Quinn has charged.

Quinn is a Democratic candidate for governor.

Quinn ticked off a list of instances where "a minimum of $600 million has been mispaid, unaccounted for, improperly distributed or foolishly spent."

Quinn said that while administrative fumbling was evident throughout the Sargent administration, the largest single waste of funds came in the handling of public welfare, hurting both the taxpayer and the clients in need of aid and service.

"All told, our research indicates that in welfare alone, some $350 million has been mismanaged by the Republican administration since 1969," he said.

Irresponsibility and incompetence have resulted in our state budget increasing during the past six years from $1.4 billion to $3 billion, Quinn said.

"Orange reflectorized barrels are being rented by the state for highway construction projects at a cost of 21 to 27 cents a day, or almost $100 per barrel a year," Quinn said.

"Those barrels could be bought for $8 . . . instead we're paying $100 a piece for them. This is one small but very visible example."

"They will pose as typical unsophisticated consumers. They will allow themselves to be defrauded and exploited, and they will gather sufficient evidence to secure criminal convictions of the worst offenders."

Cowin said the staff for the Consumer Corps would come entirely from the budget of the existing Consumer Protection Division, using existing staff wherever possible, and supplemented by volunteers.

Cowin also pledged to curb the "spiraling budget" of the attorney general's department, and called upon all candidates for state office to make a similar commitment to control state spending.

"For my own part, I will start with the budget of the attorney general's office. Under the present incumbent, that budget has increased 130 per cent in six years! The number of employees has more than doubled! If I am attorney general, that uncontrolled expansion will stop."

FRANCIS X. BELLOTTI

A Democratic candidate for attorney general, Francis X. Bellotti, has called for a more comprehensive coordination of crime-fighting programs between the Attorney general's office and the various district attorneys.

"According to figures recently released by the FBI it is clear that armed robbery, murders, burglaries, and forcible rapes are no longer occurring within the urban environment. In fact, serious crime is increasing at a faster rate in the suburbs," Bellotti said.

Bellotti, a former lieutenant governor, has been a consistent advocate of crime-fighting programs set up on a coordinate state-wide basis.

"During the past five years in the Greater Boston area, for instance, crime has increased by 60 per cent in the suburbs as opposed to 44.4 per cent in Boston proper. According to recently compiled date three factors account for the increase in suburban crime: the growth experienced by many communities as subdivisions, apartments, and shopping centers proliferate; a court system which, in the opinion of many law enforcement officials, is not tough enough in prosecuting and sentencing offenders; and the construction of highways like the Massachusetts Turnpike, the Southeast Expressway and Routes 93 and 95, which have made it easier for thieves to reach what were our isolated communities," Bellotti said.

CHARLES CABOT

Charles Cabot, a Republican candidate for attorney general, today called for a new approach to utility rate setting in Massachusetts which uses guidelines to reward efficiency and punish inefficiency.

"Under present procedures," Cabot said, "the burden rests upon the Department of Public Utilities or a complaining consumer to demonstrate that expenses incurred by the companies were unwise or unjustified."

"Instead of spending all their time providing a perfunctory review of utility accounting, the DPU should develop efficiency guidelines by comparing the operating costs of various private and public utility companies here in Massachusetts and throughout the country.

"Then the burden should be on the companies seeking rate increases which don't meet the efficiency guidelines to explain their circumstances. Based on these guidelines and the explanations offered, utility companies which operate efficiently should be allowed a greater profit, and those which are inefficient, less profit."

EDWARD F. HARRINGTON

Edward F. Harrington, a candidate for the Democratic attorney general nomination, has called for the creation of a special Attorney General's Elderly (AGE) Task Force, a unit that would address the problems of the state's senior citizens in matters related to the law.

"Too often our elderly neighbors are victimized by an entire range of legal difficulties simply because they are advanced in age," Harrington said in spelling out his plan.

He said the task force would utilize the resources of the attorney general's various functional divisions, including those devoted to consumer protection and criminal investigation.

"The objective of the AGE Task Force will be to aid the elderly with legal problems that are created or intensified merely because these men and women are beyond middle age," Harrington said.

Harrington, the former chief attorney of the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in New England, has been endorsed for the attorney general's post by Mass Caucus '74.

GEORGE SACCO

George Sacco, Democratic candidate for attorney general, today announced that as attorney general-elect he would request that an independent nominating committee be named to screen and recommend all applicants for major positions with the attorney general's office.

This unique nominating committee will be comprised of law-school deans, consumer organization representatives, law-enforcement figures, and leading members of citizens groups.

The committee will be charged with the responsibility of recommending directly to the attorney general those applicants best qualified to head up the 13 division and two bureaus of the attorney general's offiee. This procedure will effectively remove the appointment process from the political realm and ensure that the attorney general will have immediate access to the finest available legal and technical talent in Massachusetts.

THOMAS P O'NEILL III

State Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill III, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, has proposed a comprensive plan to help homeowners and renters strapped by soaring electric rates and "fuel adjustment" alowances.

O'Neill said that Newton had been particularly hard-hit by spiraling rates, noting that the average family here now pays $27.53 monthly for electricity. "Last year," he added, "these charges amounted to only $18.99. This is a 45 per cent increase for the average Newton family."

Citing the problems that New England has experienced in obtaining fuel because of its geographic location and its dependence on foreign fuel sources, the Massachusetts legislator called for the creation of a New England Fuel Cooperative.

"Electric utilities in New England have been forced to compete for the scarce residual oil that is currently available," O'Neill said. "This competition has driven prices sky-high."

"If New England utilities bought their residual oil collectively, they would form a very powerful consuming group — a virtual 'consumer monopoly.' This consumer monopoly would immediately reduce the disastrous impact the Fuel Adjustment Clause has had on the average consumer's pocketbook," O'Neill concluded.

ROBERT H. QUINN

Fiscal and administrative mismanagement of executive departments and programs has cost Massachusetts more than $600 million in wasted tax dollars over the past five years of the Sargent Administration, Attorney General Robert H. Quinn has charged.

Quinn is a Democratic candidate for governor.

Quinn ticked off a list of instances where "a minimum of $600 million has been mispaid, unaccounted for, improperly distributed or foolishly spent."

Quinn said that while administrative fumbling was evident throughout the Sargent administration, the largest single waste of funds came in the handling of public welfare, hurting both the taxpayer and the clients in need of aid and service.

"All told, our research indicates that in welfare alone, some $350 million has been mismanaged by the Republican administration since 1969," he said.

Irresponsibility and incompetence have resulted in our state budget increasing during the past six years from $1.4 billion to $3 billion, Quinn said.

"Orange reflectorized barrels are being rented by the state for highway construction projects at a cost of 21 to 27 cents a day, or almost $100 per barrel a year," Quinn said.

"Those barrels could be bought for $8 . . . instead we're paying $100 a piece for them. This is one small but very visible example."

Hindus of Brandeis

(Cont. from Page Two)

The reputation Milton Hindus has earned for literary criticism makes you seek his evaluation of contemporary writers. "I would certainly rank Saul Bellow high on any list of American writers. Norman Mailer? I'm down on him and I think he's overrated. I would consider him a good journalist, but in my way of thinking he copped out on his serious writing.

"I rather like Philip Roth. I gave "Portnoy's Complaint" a bad review, but I remember saying at the time, this book would eventually seem like second-rate Roth. I've never been able to really 'dig' John Updike."

But for more substantial, enduring literary qualities, we must look beyond the American scene, he says. "The best American writers at the moment do not rank very high, but if there are any who do, it is only through adoption." Two writers head his list of greats — Vladimir Nabokov and Jorge Luis Borges, the Argentinian.

"I would place these two among the international grand masters of literature. In fact, I think Borges outranks any Noble Prize winner alive today. Beckett? He is interesting, but in my view, he comes only after Nabokov and Borges."

While he personally respects Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Hindus is skeptical of his contribution to important literary developments.

"My moral and political admiration for Solzhenitsyn surpasses my literary admiration for him. I think he's been tempted in those directions of literature that bring his work close to political journalism."

Writers like Joyce, Celine, Proust, Whitman, and Fitzgerald may be the cornerstones of Milton Hindus' literary career. He has taught classes on Joyce and written books on the other four. "I like Joyce very much, and I'd say that in the twentieth century no writer has been more important. Proust, maybe an equal . . . and Celine, possibly."

Milton Hindus' most recent literary work has been the introduction to Celine's last work, "A Traveler in Two Worlds," published two years after Maurice Hindus' death.

It is a long way from Proust and Joyce to Brooklyn, N.Y., the birthplace of Milton Hindus.

From 1932 until 1938 Milton Hindus attended City College of New York, studying for his bachelor's and master's degree. He also studied later at Columbia and Chicago. Beside writing, he has either lectured or taught at Hunter College, U.C.L.A., Sussex, American College in Jerusalem, the New School for Social Research, C.C.N.Y., and, of course, at Chicago.

At Brandeis, he has twice been elected the campus chapter president of the American Association of University Professors, and in 1968 he was named to the Brandeis faculty senate. An early high point of his career came in 1958, when he was awarded the Walt Whitman Prize for his book, "Leaves of Grass: One Hundred Years After."

Prof. and Mrs. Hindus (they have one daughter, Myra) share a strong attachment to music. "We both love music very much," he says, adding that his wife was a child prodigy at the Warsaw Conservatory when she was 10 years old. Unfortunately, he said, she never became a professional. He has tried his hand at music composition, and he plays the piano, although (in his words) "very badly."

Of writing and the durability of an author's work, he says, "One of the things I like about Ezra Pound was that he once said if we take 30 lines with us to posterity, we'll be doing well."

"You'll have to write 30,000 or 300,000 to get them. And chances are, the writer won't recognize which ones are really important!"

Who will? In the end, it may be the verdict of ordinary men alone that counts. "Yes, I think so," Milton Hindus says. "The common sense of the common reader will finally be the judge."

Parking

For buildings to be enlarged, replaced, or changed in use, the number of parking spaces presently called for in the zoning ordinances would be determined according to present use and size of the building.

Next, the number of spaces required for the building if it were a new building would be determined, without the present allowance of an additional 1500 square feet that can be added and now requires no new parking.

The first number would be subtracted from the second, yielding the number of additional spaces needed, except that up to five spaces or 10 per cent of the total number of spaces, whichever is greater, may be deleted from the required number.

The deduction, according to Planning Director Charles Thomas, who drew up the revised proposal, will make up for the removal of the exemption for an extra 1500 feet of floor space.

The Board of Aldermen, under the new ordinance, would be able to give permissive use for a reduction or waiver of off-street parking requirements for an increase in floor area up to 1500 square feet.

Band concerts are scheduled for Nantasket Beach on Sunday, Aug. 25, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., and on Wednesday, Aug. 28, from 2 to 4 p.m.

GUIDELINES ON ALCOHOL PROBLEMS

IT'S AN INSIDIOUS AND ADDICTIVE DRUG

Like some drugs . . . and unlike others . . . alcohol is an addictive drug. Any addiction increases with usage . . . and if you drink alcohol long enough and heavy enough you may become "alcohol dependent" . . . and that's just a step away from alcoholism.

"Dependent" means that you need it to help you function better . . . at home, work, or play. Without it, you're tense, shaky, fearful, depressed, sick, and tired. Yes, alcohol is habit-forming . . . so try and keep this habit under control.

Menswear for town and country

"Return to elegance? Nonsense!" was the sharp response of designer-author John Weitz when interviewed recently.

"I predicted this would not happen, and it hasn't. A more apt description would be a return to clothes that are calmer, more business-like, more tasteful, and, more useful (especially useful).

"I suppose," he continued, "you could call the new suit the "leisure suit" or "easy suit", and what it all boils down to is just a pleasant way for a man to dress on the weekend when he wants to loaf. It is definitely NOT the business suit of 1975!"

John Weitz has many "firsts" in his career. He was the first "name" menswear designer to be presented by a leading American luxury store, the first American designer to be featured by a famous British menswear group and first to be featured by a leading Japanese store group (Daimaru). He has won most major fashion awards. In 1967 he was voted to appear on the International Best Dressed List and in 1971 was admitted to its permanent Hall of Fame. When he has an opinion, though it may be one shared by his peers, Weitz has an authorative, crisp manner of stating his beliefs.

"The modern man must never look as if he is of any specific nationality. The jet plane has wiped away all those differences. Modern clothes must be featherweight, easy to pack, wrinkle-proof. They must contour themselves to the body without heavy interlining or darting of stiff fabrics. I have eliminated most of these Victorian hangovers. I think that dandyism is a joke in the 1970's. I believe that a man should take his time to develop his own style and to become truly well-dressed. Function must always precede fashion and I am as interested in construction as in styling.

"Most of all," John Weitz stresses, "a man must always look healthy and fit and scrubbed. He must wear his clothes as if they are old and valued friends."

Other than the leisure suit with its easy styling, Weitz also designs for the business man on the go. Few of his suits are priced above $150. Typical is his beautifully tailored midweight blend of 65 per cent polyester and 35 per cent wool suit featuring 2-botton styling, generous lapel treatment and deep center vent. The color-coordinated lining bears the John Weitz signature.

In defense of the leisure suit that is being worn to the office, is Bernie Toll, speaking for After Six Inc. "We feel the barriers between town and country looks have practically disappeared. There's a very fine line between tailored clothing and sportswear. You could call it a more casual, laissez-faire approach to city dressing. The all-round suit which will go anywhere. In fact," he continued, "you'll be seeing fabrics formerly relegated to the country now being interpreted in a very metropolitan manner."

There is one innovation in silhouette: A shorter jacket cut with broader shoulder, a higher armhole and no vent . . . it's a continental design well put forth by the Lebow Brothers. Two-button models with deep center vents predominate . . . and there are one-button jackets with no vent."

In sportswear, the firm has coordinated fashions for the man who would like to stretch his off-the-job look into workday hours. Safari shirts and battle jackets, boldly belted, often epauletted and yoked, and pocketed with plenty of pizzazz are shown with matching or patterned slacks. The colors are warm and earthy, deep forest and hunter greens, camel and chamois, russet and stone gray.

Fall coats offer enough variety to cover every taste and climate. Malcolm Kenneth and Harry Fischer, the outerwear division of the After Six firm, are offering shaped, double-breasted and single-breasted styling. There are the classic elegant velvet-collared Chesterfields, epauletted British warms, and wrapped and sashed polo coats that have a very definite '30s influence. Fabrics, mostly imports, are shown in bold plaids, checks, tweeds and gabardines.

Always the master of formal wear and accessories, After Six sees the traditional tuxedo changing. This season the more adventurous man will applaud the use of Dupont's Qiana fabric in men's clothing--vests of velvet; black watch tartan ensemble of trousers and matching vest; and deep autumn colors like hunter green and dark brown.

Lapels are either peak or notch with an occasional classic shawl collar. Watch for the revival of the belly peak or belly notch lapel jacket which harks back to the 20's and '30s. One brand new lapel treatment features a satin inset framed with velvet braid, topped with a velvet collar.

As for the formal trimmings, velvet butterfly bow ties predominate. New this fall are superb shirts with delicate French ribbon braid or embroidered panels placketing a ruffled front. One color that is especially pleasing with deep brown is ecru.

This fall leathers in both glace and sueded finishes will be seen in everything from sport jackets and short battle jackets to full length outerwear, the latter often enhanced with fur or pile collar lining.

For the super sport, Bert Paley has designed a bomber jacket in dappled beige hide or an eyelet-belted lamb suede in a vicuna shade. Paley also takes the traditional double-breasted trench coat and styles it in buttery soft umber glove leather and, for a real surprise, spice-colored genuine sheepskin with full shearling lining.

Little wonder that men are spending their days off shopping early for a fall wardrobe—there are styles, colors, fabrics and patterns to please all.

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I am in the process of arranging my recipes and am confused by the many different names used. Would you please define and group the following into their proper categories: Kugel, Kuchen, Flan, Buckle, Cobbler, Crisp, Crumble, Parfait, Mousse, Fluff, Delight, Bavarian and Russe. Thank you.

Mrs. M. Newton

Answer: Sorry, but space does not allow for individual explanations of the thirteen items mentioned in your letter. They are all desserts and you could classify the first, Kugel, as a pudding; the Flan, Buckle, Cobbler, Crisp and Crumble are generally cakes made with fruit (apple or peach).

Mrs. E.N., Walpole, writes: Enclosed is a recipe for Fluffy Lemon Pie that was sent to me from California. We think it's really good and hope you will enjoy it too! (Thank you!)

FLUFFY LEMON PIE

Pastry for 9-inch pie shell
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
Dash of salt
1 can (6 0z.) frozen lemonade concentrate thawed
½ cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Sugar to taste

Soak gelatin in water about 5 minutes in saucepan; add beaten egg yolks and salt; stir and cook over low heat until slightly thickened. Add lemonade concentrate and mix well; chill until slightly congealed. Beat egg whites to form soft peaks; add sugar gradually and beat until stiff; fold into slightly congealed gelatin mixture. Whip cream adding sugar in small amounts at a time. Fold in half of the whipped cream and pile filling into cooled pie shell; chill until set. Serve, garnished with remaining whipped cream. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Question: Would you please include a Coffee Crumb Cake in your Information Please column?

Mrs. Collins

Answer: In looking up your Coffee Crumb Cake, I came across a favorite of mine that was in the column back in May, 1970, and so I'll include both recipes.

WALNUT COFFEE CRUMB CAKE

Topping
½ cup brown sugar, packed
One-third cup all purpose flour
One-third cup butter or margarine
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
Batter
One-third cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon nutmeg
Two-thirds cup sour cream

To make topping, blend together sugar, flour, butter (or margarine) and cinnamon until crumbly. Stir in walnuts. Set aside while preparing batter. Cream butter (or margarine) sugar and eggs together (mixture will appear curdled, but it's alright). Sift flour with baking powder, salt, baking soda and nutmeg; add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream. Spread half of batter in a greased deep 8½ inch round or a 9-inch square baking pan. Sprinkle with half the topping. Cover with remaining batter and sprinkle remaining topping over all. Bake at 350 degrees oven for 25-30 minutes or until cake is golden brown and tests done. (Wonderful served warm).

Across the Kitchen Counter

What is a sandwich? The dictionary falls short with its definition: "Two or more slices of bread with a layer of meat, cheese, or savory mixture spread between them." Ah, no, sandwiches can be a meal or a snack and can be eaten any hour of the day . . . hot or cold, thick or thin, diet-thin or full-to-bursting and drippy.

Everybody knows how to make a hamburger, but do you know how to make a really great hamburger? Have you ever considered using home-style light rye bread instead of a bun, sauteed chopped Spanish onion, generous slice of tomato, 2 slices processed cheese for a super sandwich? Broil the beef patty and lightly toast the two slices of bread. Place cheese slice on each bread slice, add tomato slice to one slice bread and place under broiler until cheese is melted; top with patty and sauteed onion and cover with bread-cheese slice; serve with pickles and olives!

Here are some sandwich tips which will surely come in handy when school reopens:

Spreads: Either butter or margarine should cover inner surfaces of bread slices to keep them from becoming soggy (particularly when sandwiches are made ahead.

Salad-type fillings: Keep salad filling under refrigeration to avoid food poisoning and since cold foods require more seasoning than hot foods, be sure mixture is not bland and uninteresting. It's also a good idea to add crunch to these spreads—such as chopped celery or nuts.

Most sandwiches call for salad dressing—try using seasoned sour cream as a pleasant change.

Breads: Variety is indeed the spice of life—try making a sandwich of two types of bread—such as white and whole wheat or rye and pumpernickel. The pits or Syrian-type breads such as Sahara, make marvelous pockets for all fillings no matter how juicy.

August is National Sandwich Month and has been celebrated for 19 years with a Sandwich Idea Contest open to professional chefs, salad makers, waitresses, dietitians and others in the food field who vie for cash and world travel prizes by contributing original sandwich masterpieces.

Following are the 1974 top winners:

SIDEWALK SANDWICHES

4 cups mixed salad greens (2½ cups shredded lettuce, 1 cup shredded spinach, 2 green onions, chopped, 2 radishes, sliced)
¼ cup Italian dressing
3 loaves frozen enriched flat bread (Sahara) thawed
2 pkgs. (3 oz. ea.) cream cheese, softened
¾ pound thinly sliced roast beef
12 large Greek olives, pitted, sliced

Toss salad greens with dressing. Set aside, no longer than 15 minutes. Cut loaves of bread in half; open center pocket. Spread insides of each half with approximately 1½ tablespoons cream cheese. In each pocket place 2 ounces roast beef, approximately 1 tablespoon olives and ½ cup tossed green salad. Garnish with marinated artichoke hearts and radishes. Yield: 6 sandwiches.

Prizewinning sidewalk sandwiches using Syrian (Sahara) bread

VEGETARIAN DELIGHT

18 lengthwise slices cucumber, ⅛ inch thick (2 or 3)
Marinade for Cucumbers (see recipe below)
12 slices enriched pumpernickel bread
Butter, softened
12 slices (½ oz. ea.) Swiss cheese
18 thin slices tomato (2 or 3)
6 teaspoons mayonnaise
Salt
Pepper
24 leaves raw spinach

Marinate cucumber slices in Marinade for 1 hour. Butter bread. On each of 6 slices of bread layer 1 slice of cheese and 3 tomato slices. Dollop 1 teaspoon mayonnaise on tomato slices; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Drain cucumbers; place 3 slices on each sandwich. Top each sandwich with 4 spinach leaves and a second slice of cheese. Close sandwiches with remaining bread slices, buttered side down.

MARINADE FOR CUCUMBERS

One-third cup oil
One-third cup wine vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 teaspoons onion powder
2 teaspoons whole mustard seeds
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon crushed black peppercorns

Combine ingredients in low, flat dish. Garnish with wedge of lemon and parsley. Serves 6.

STROMBOLI

1 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ cup tomato sauce
½ cup ketchup
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon fennel seed
⅛ teaspoon ground oregano
6 enriched Kaiser rolls
Garlic Spread (below)
6 slices (½ oz. ea.) Mozzarella cheese

Brown the beef and onion, stirring frequently to break up meat. Add tomato sauce, ketchup, Parmesan cheese, garlic powder, fennel seed and oregano; cook for 20 minutes. Split rolls; spread with about 1 teaspoon of the Garlic Spread on top half of each roll. Divide meat mixture evenly on bottom halves of rolls and top each with 1 slice of cheese. Close sandwich with bun top. Wrap in foil. Heat in preheated 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until cheese is melted.

GARLIC SPREAD

2 tablespoons butter, softened
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon paprika

Blend ingredients together in small bowl.

HAWAIIAN FARMER

12 slices enriched white bread
Butter, softened
1 and one-third cups (6 oz.) diced cooked chicken
1 and one-third cups (6 oz.) diced ham
½ cup diced celery
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained
On-third cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons finely chopped pecans
1½ tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon thinly sliced green onion tops
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
6 slices (1 oz. ea.) Mozzarella cheese

Butter bread. Mix together chicken, ham, celery, pineapple, mayonnaise, pecans, green pepper, onion, salt and pepper. Divide mixture equally on unbuttered side of 6 slices of bread and top each with 1 slice of cheese. Close sandwiches with remaining bread slices, buttered side out. Grill on both sides until cheese starts to melt and sandwich is golden. Garnish with pineapple spear, kumquat and sprig of parsley.

ALTHEA ALLEN'S
TOP ME TWICE CAKE

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (13½ oz.) crushed pineapple (undrained)
First Topping
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup flaked coconut
½ cup chopped pecans
Second Topping - Sauce

Melt ½ cup butter or margarine. Stir in ½ cup light cream or milk, ½ cup granulated sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Just mix together till smooth and pour over warm cake . . . it will soak down into the cake.

Directions for cake batter: Combine sugar, vanilla and eggs in a large mixing bowl and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed. Mix at low speed and add flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt and pineapple. Mix 1 minute and pour into cake pan—12x8-inch cake pan ungreased. Sprinkle with First Topping. Bake in 350 oven 30 minutes or until done. Just before cake is done start preparing sauce for 2nd Topping and pour over cake while it is still hot from oven. Cool cake before serving.

Question: I suppose like other housewives I am always on the lookout for good tuna recipes (not that tuna is inexpensive any more) and I wonder if you have a nice casserole-type dish that would serve 4 nicely. Thanks.

Mrs. N.S., West Roxbury

Answer: I quite agree with you and this one 7 oz. can of tuna goes a long way in this unusual dish:

POT LUCK TUNA

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and broken into pieces
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas and carrots, cooked and drained
1 pkg. (8 oz.) refrigerated biscuits.

In a 2 quart saucepan melt butter or margarine; saute celery and onion until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Remove from heat; gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cook 2 additional minutes. Add cheese, tuna and vegetables; pour into casserole, top with biscuits, and bake in 350 degree oven for 20-25 minutes. Serves 4.

Cases continued to Sept. 12

The cases of three men charged with larceny of property over $100 and conspiracy were continued in Newton District Court this week to Sept. 12.

Walter Panzera, Enzo M. Gargaro, and Nicholas J. McGrath have all pleaded not guilty to the charges. They have all been released on personal recognizance.

The charges reportedly stem from a hijacking of a truck containing lawnmowers last month.

M.I.T. study finds that liquor use among youthful drivers, adults about the same

Eighteen-to-20-year-old Massachusetts drivers have been involved in significantly more accidents since the state's drinking age was reduced — but the proportion of their accidents that involve drinking appears to be no higher than that for older drivers.

Those are the main findings of a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research team that has analyzed the effect on auto safety of the March, 1973, law that reduced the drinking age in Massachusetts from 21 to 18.

The researchers, who worked with data supplied by the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, said their conclusions contrast sharply with reports of alarming, unexpected increases in accidents among 18 to 20 year old drivers.

"Younger drivers are known to be more likely to have auto accidents," they said. "However, driving-after-drinking among 18-20 year olds appears to have increased only to the point where it is now comparable to that of older drivers."

The researchers found that the increase in accident rates among 18-to-20-year-old drivers was most pronounced for fatal accidents.

Their report said that all fatal accidents involving these drivers rose about 40 percent — amounting to approximately five more fatalities per month.

About a 25 percent rise was estimated for property damage accidents, or about 14 more a month.

An analysis of the reasons for the increase would indicate, they said, that drinking is now a factor in about half of all fatal accidents involving drivers 18 to 20 years old. They noted, however, that drinking also is a factor in about half of all fatalities involving older drivers.

"The increase in fatalities among 18-20 year olds was not large enough to indicate that driving after drinking is now more common among teenagers than among older motorists," they said.

Commenting on earlier reports of a "131 percent rise in road deaths linked to teenagers and liquor," the researchers said this was the result of "preliminary comparison of raw data on accidents involving drinking citations for the few months before and after the new law went into effect."

"Though the increase is dramatic," they said, "these data are not adjusted for road use condition or for other factors that might have changed during the months involved — such as reporting practices for driving-after-drinking citation.

Also, the actual number of drinking related fatalities involving young operators are subject to large statistical fluctuatioons since they are small compared with the total number of highway fatalities and the total number of teenager-involved accidents during those months."

The research covered the period from January, 1969, through September, 1973, seven months after the new law went into effect and just prior to the advent of the energy crisis.

The team used sophisticated mathematical techniques to analyze several types of data, such as: monthly accident figures, broken down by age and type of accident (fatal, non-fatal, property); concurrent data for the number of recorded "operating under the influence" and "operating after drinking" citations broken down by accident type; and miscellaneous estimates of monthly vehicle miles, State Police Laboratory blood test statistics, liquor consumption figures, etc.

The researchers reported that the data was "well-behaved" — that is, consistent — prior to March, 1973, but exhibited significant changes after that date in cases involving 18-to-20-year-old drivers.

In their report, the researchers said that the precision of their estimates and the analysis of possible time-varying effects had been limited by having only seven months of data to work with after the law was changed. But the coming of the energy crisis would have complicated further analysis, they said.

They said they also found that statistics on citations involving operating-after-drinking underestimate the fraction of accidents associated with drinking are unreliable for estimating the drinking behavior of specific age groups.

The study was begun in the summer of 1973 as an MIT Undergraduate Research Opportunities Program (UROP) project. The program enables undergraduates to participate in research projects.

The work was supported by the UROP office and a National Science Foundation grant for "Innovative Resource Planning in Urban Safety Systems" at the MIT Operations Center and the Laboratory of Arcitecture and Planning.

The researchers were Dr. Joseph Ferreira of Boston, assistant professor of urban studies and operations research in the Department of Urban Studies and Planning, who supervised the project; Stephen J. Cucchiaro of (12 Brackenbury Lane), Beverly, who received a bachelor's degree in mathematics in June; and Alan Sicherman of Chelsea, a graduate student in the Operations Research Center.

Several persons at the Registry of Motor Vehicles were involved, including James Velis, assistant to the registrar; Fred Cody, administrative assistant to the registrar, and Evelyn Trefey of the Registry's Statistical Bureau.

A talk with Andy Robustelli

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

On Sunday morning, Aug. 11, I traveled to the Marriott Hotel in Auburndale to speak to some of the New York "Football" Giants.

I brought my tape recorder in case I was lucky enough to get a good interview. I was fortunate enough to get three interviews, one with the Giants' number one draft pick, John Hicks; another with a veteran player who had crossed the picket lines, Pete Athas; and a third interview with a former All-Pro linebacker with the Giants, Andy Robustelli.

Robustelli is now the Giants general manager after spending many years in the telephone business.

I asked Robustelli first of all, why had he come back to football.

"For the most part, I believed that the Giants should not be in the position that they are in," Robustelli responded. "I felt I could contribute into making the Giants into the same team they were when I played."

I then asked the recent Hall of Famer how it feels to look back to those days when the Giants were a power in the National Football League.

"It's always great to look back to the days when I was playing on all the great Giant teams," Robustelli commented. "I played with a lot of great guys, I enjoyed it, and it was a great life for me.

"I also like to look back to when I was growing up. My goal then was to be a professional football player.

My next question for the rookie general manager was how did he plan to build the Giants, a team which won only two games last year, into a stronger football team.

He replied that "to build the Giants, we have a number of solid rookies, and veterans who want to play and win. We can pick up some players, young and old players, and put together a ball club of players that wants to be winners."

I then asked Robustelli about the quarterback situation on the Giants.

"I think we have a player in rookie Carl Summerall that has great potential," Robustelli said. "Right now he lacks experience, but we are hopeful that with experience, he'll develop into a top notch quarterback."

I asked Robustelli what his main concern was in building the Giants.

"I think we've already built the Giants," he replied. "Our first and second round picks, John Hicks and Tom Mullens, will be tremendous assets to our offensive line.

"We have some rookies who have looked good in the defensive secondary," Robustelli added.

My next set of questions dealt with the football strike. I asked how many more rookies did he think will make the team because of the strike.

"I can't say how many more rookies will make the team, but I think more rookies will make the team because the coaches have had more time to work with them," Robustelli commented. "Plus, they've had time to make mistakes and redeem themselves. When a veteran is around, a rookie can't afford to make a mistake because the veteran will be put right back into the game.

"Right now, if a rookie makes a mistake, he can redeem himself by making something like a good tackle or an interception on the next play. There's no doubt that the strike has been a great advantage to the rookies."

I also asked Robustelli about how many demands relating to the strike he thought were justified.

"I think the only demands that are justified are reasonable demands," he responded. "There are something like 95 demands, and I think that some of them are put in just for the sake of putting them in. It appears that there are several of those, and I think these kinds of demands are ridiculous demands."

I asked Robustelli specifically about the demand that a player be able to play out his option and become a free agent without complications.

He answered by asking me a question. "Let me ask you; you're a fan; do you feel that Jim Plunkett belongs to you?"

I answere, "Yes."

"How would you feel if Plunkett says, 'I don't want to play for you because I've got an opportunity to play somewhere else'?"

I said I would not feel too good, and Robustelli replied, "See, you've answered the question. The point in case is not whether the player is restricted. A player has the right to play wherever he wants to play, but the situation now in giving the player the opportunity to play out his option means that if Jim Plunkett doesn't want to sign a contract he says, 'Okay, I'm not going to sign a contract for the following year; I'm going to play out my option.' That's to let the fan know that Jim Plunkett is dissatisfied or he's going to look for something better than what he has now. That gives the fan a chance to realize for a year whether or not they want a Jim Plunkett."

I next focused on the rival World Football League. I asked the new Giants general manager how a team like Dallas would make out if it lost players like Calvin Hill, Rayfield Wright, Jethro Pugh, Craig Morton, and Otto Stowe.

"Every player you lose is going to you, but there's one thing you have to realize," Robustelli said. "No one's in a position not to be replaced, so no one is irreplaceable.

"There have been ball players that have been lost that teams never thought they could get along without, but somehow they managed," he added.

"Life is very simple. No one has a corner on all the ability in the world and no one has a market on all the assets, so everyone's got a chance. My belief is that a good coach can get something good out of somebocy, and if you find the good coach, you'll have the somebody."

My final question for Robustelli was "What chance does the World Football League have of becoming a successful league."

"First of all," he said, "the World Football League is the worst thing that has ever happened to us. We don't want to see their league destroyed, but we have to hope the best players play in the National Football League.

"I think as long as the World Football League can continue to sign top players from our league, plus good college players, they'll probably be a success. Right now, the National Football League is the premium league, but the National League teams can't ignore the World Football League. It's there, and we have to contend with it."

Robustelli is a man who is well-respected. He was a great football player, and tremendously successful in the Yellow Pages telephone business.

Now, he's trying his hand at being a successful general manager of what has been one of the worst football teams in the league. One reason for his taking the job is because he can't stand to see his old team look disgraceful.

A football magazine summed it up best when it said that the hiring of Robustelli is one of the most positive steps the Giants have taken in years. It noted that Robustelli is a winner and he will not tolerate lackadaisical play or bad attitudes from the players.

Fund-raising softball game next Thursday

Magoo's Saloon men's softball team will play an exhibition game against a ladies team fielded by the European Health Spa of West Newton.

Game time is 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 29, at Albemarle Field. Proceeds will go to the Leukemia Society of America.

Magoo's owner, Vince DeMattia, said tickets are $1 and can be bought at the field but they're on sale at his eating and drinking saloon, the health spa and through most merchants in West Newton Square.

Channel 7's Dave Rodman, president of the Greater Boston Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, will head a lineup of distinguished guests and will throw out the first ball. Both teams have agreed to swap pitchers to keep the sides somewhat even and make the game more interesting. The entire proceeds from the fund raising event will be turned over to the Society, which is reportedly the only national voluntary health agency devoted exclusively to conquering leukemia.

Joseph A. Galvin, executive director of the Greater Boston Chapter, said the Society currently sponsors 11 researchers in the medical and science fields in hospitals and other institutions around Greater Boston with grants totaling over $440,000. Last year alone, he said, leukemia and allied disorders claimed 35,000 lives across the nation.

DeMattia expressed hope that "the people of Newton will really get behind the project so that a sizable contribution can be made to such a worthwhile cause."

Marcie Ravech in national meet

Fourteen-year-old Marcie Ravech of Newton continued her progress in girls' gymnastics this month at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln by becoming one of the top six girls selected as national champions at the 1974 Junior Olympic Championships.

The A.A.U. Junior Olympic program is modeled after the World Olympics and involves opening ceremonies for over 1500 athletes, including a torch lighting and other traditions, and involves competition in track and field, gymnastics for boys and girls, wrestling, swimming, judo, and other sports.

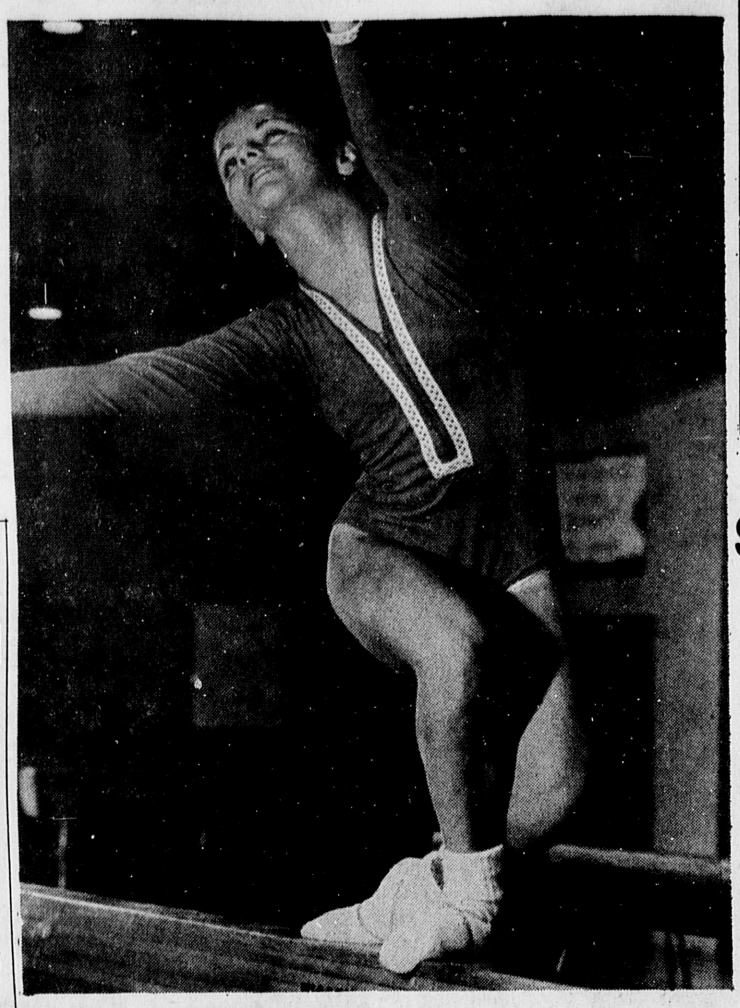
The gymnastic competition this year was at the highest level ever seen at this national tournament. The willing all-around scores were several points higher than in any previous year. As in the Olympic games, gymnasts must perform both compulsory and optional exercises in a grueling two-day competition.

The 13 regions of the United States were entitled to qualify one girl in each age category (13-14, 15-18), making a total of 26 highly talented gymnasts entered in the competition. Ms. Ravech qualified in New York this past May winning the Region I championship.

Over 2000 people attended the boys' and girls' gymnastic portion of the Junior Olympic program this year and C.B.S. Sports covered the events for television. Ms. Ravech achieved an all-around score of 70.00, averaging 8.8 in her eight exercises, and earning a fifth place in the all-around event. In the individual events, Marcie was awarded the highest score of the meet (9.3) on the balance beam. She finished third in this event despite a fall during the optional exercise. Ms. Ravech was impressive in her floor work, receiving a score of 9.2 in both the optional and compulsory exercises. She finished second in this individual event.

Channel 2 had filmed and interviewed Ms. Ravech prior to the trip, while still in Boston, and sent a special crew to Nebraska to take in the entire competition. The program is scheduled to be aired on national television sometime in November.

Ms. Ravech trains at the Brimmer and May School of Gymnastics in Chestnut Hill, Newton and is coched by Dr. Joseph Massimo of Newton.



Balance beam Marcie Ravech of Newton finished third in balance beam competition at the 1974 Junior Olympic Championships in Lincoln, Neb.

Murphy's, Magoos reach playoff final

Women's basketball

The Newton Recreation Department's City League for Women kicked off its play-offs at Cabot Park.

Murphy's Flip Tops, who finished on top of the league, took on Regan's who finished fourth for the season. Murphy's won the game 31-17.

The second game saw second place finisher, Magoos, taking on Fox Drug, who finished third. Magoos won the right to face Murphy's by beating Fox Drug 36-9.

City League Softball

The Newton Women's Twi-Light League started its play-off at Albermarle Field last week. League action saw the Why Not's beat Tony's Villa and the Jesters beat University Bank.

In the first game of the final series, the Why Nots took a 4-2 lead, only to have the Jesters come back to tie the game, which had to go eight innings, and had to be called because of darkness.

On Friday night, the Why Nots beat Jesters 10-7, but the Jesters came back to win 8-6 on Sunday night to force a third game, on Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Suburban Basketball

For the fourth year in a row, Newton's entry in the Girls Suburban Basketball League won the final to become league champion. Newton defeated Concord, 59-50.

Newton had to beat a tough Waltham team to gain entry into the final, but beat Concord 43-31 in the first game of the final series, and won again on Sunday to remain league champion. Newton's overall record has now been stretched to 61 wins and only three losses.

Golf tournaments held at Brae Burn

Four Newton residents have won silver at recent Brae Burn Country Club golf tournaments.

Colver "Bud" Gordon with partner Jim Orr of Dover won the Rogers Cup Four-Ball tournament. After being four down at the end of nine holes, they fought back to win on the 19th hole. Runner-up in the tournament was the team of Andy Dewire, also of Newton and Roger Furst of Wellesley.

Kevin Kelley was medalist with a net 67 in the qualifying round of the President's Cup individual tournament.

In the Senior Club Championship, Les Burton was runner-up to Chauncey Steele of Cambridge.

Brae Burn has been selected as the site of the 75th United States Women's Amateur Tournament to be played in August 1975. This same tournament was also held at Brae Burn in 1906.

Schmidlein wins N.E. Frisbee title

History repeated itself last week, when James Schmidlein of 37 Holly Rd., Waban, won first place honors in the New England Regional section of the National Junior Frisbee Championship held at Seaside Park in Bridgeport, Conn., on Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Schmidlein, 13, an eighth grade student at Newton Catholic School, thereby closely follows in the footsteps of his twin brothers, Kenneth and Kevin, who won the same title in 1971 and 1972, respectively.

Jim had previously been victorious in contests held at Angier School in Waban, and in the Newton "Throw-Off," and had gone from there to Beverly, where he was crowned Massachusetts Frisbee champion on Aug. 5. His next goal is the national championship where he hopes to extend his string of victories against 10 other regional champions.

His brothers, now 17, acquitted themselves admirably as New England representatives. Ken was the national junior champion in 1971, while Kevin narrowly missed duplicating this feat in 1972, winning the runner-up position. Both of these finals were held in Las Vegas, Nevada, at the International Hotel.

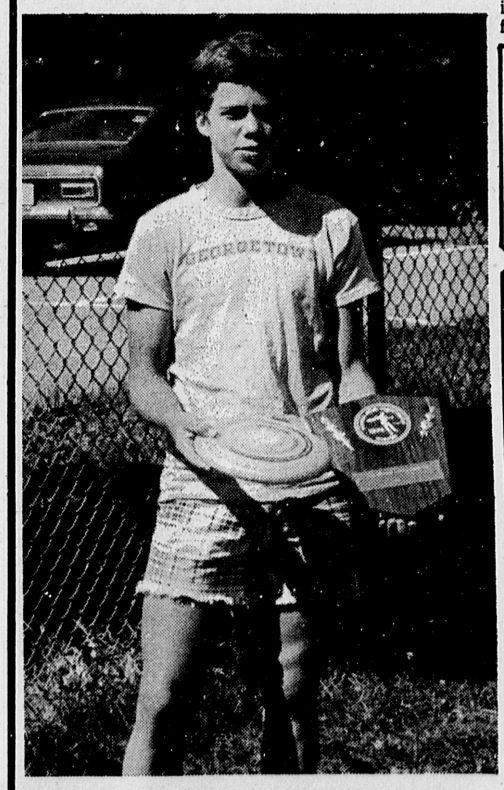
Jim, like all winners of the regional contests, will be awarded a $100 Savings Bon, as well as a free, all-expenses paid trip with parent, to the national finals. Prizes for the top finalists include a $1,000 Savings Bond for the winner, and $500 and $250 for the second and third place finishers. The finals are officiated over by the International Frisbee Association.

Junior Frisbee contests are conducted annually in all 50 states for boys and girls in the 12 to 15-year-old age bracket. More than a million youngsters participate in these games, supervised by community recreation departments and sponsored by Wham-O, a company which manufactures Frisbees.

Schmidlein was closely pressed for the New England Championship by representatives of each of the other New England states. Scoring was based on varous aspects of Frisbee proficiency. Approximately 60 per cent of total possible scores were based upon accuracy, including curves, straight throws, skips, sidearm tosses, etc. The remainder of the scores were awarded for distance throwing and catching thrown Frisbees.

Jim has been flipping Frisbees with his brothers for about six years now. His skills, however, are not limited to this endeavor. He is a member of the Newton Athletic Association Pop Warner football team, the Newton Lions, last year's Suburban champions. He is already in training for the coming gridiron season. (Is Jim, as Frisbee champion, a star passing quarterback? Surprisingly enough, no! He is an offensive guard.)

One might wonder why Bridgeport was chosen as the site for the New England Frisbee Championship. Trivia experts might correctly answer that Bridgeport is the home of the pie company whose pie plates reportedly inspired the creation of the now famous Frisbee.



Frisbee champion James Schmidlein of Waban finished first recently in the New England Regional section of the National Junior Frisbee Championship.

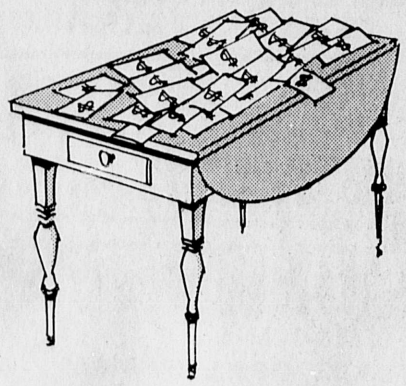
Make the kitchen table test . . .



Take 20 ten dollar bills, and spread them on your kitchen table.

Look at them carefully and you'll see a lot of shoes for the kids, — food for the table, a lot of bills that can be paid, or even a lot of good times. Two hundred dollars will buy a lot of necessities and a lot of pleasures.

Generally, this is the amount of money that people have saved when they purchased their cars from us after shopping other dealers.

So . . . if you're thinking of a new Ford or used car, remember the kid's shoes, — the meat and potatoes on the table — all the little things that two hundred dollars will buy — then see us.

Policemen, firemen to learn lifesaving

Legislation requiring all police and firemen to be trained by September, 1977, in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and other first responder medical techniques has been signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent.

This training will enable all policemen and firemen, who are usually first at the scene of an accident, to render life-saving care to stabilize the parent's condition until qualified emergency medical personnel arrive.

The new law expands last year's Emergency Medical Care (EMC) law which, in addition to regulating ambulance services, requires a minimum of 80 hours of emergency medical training for all ambulance operators and attendants.

Rep. Lois G. Pines, (D-Newton), a sponsor of last year's Emergency Medical Care Law, explained the need or extending training requirements to police and firemen: "In many cases the first responders to an accident are either police or firemen and citizens calling for aid do not always distinguish between medical emergencies that would warrant an ambulance or a trained public safety officer. Frequently the burden is on the individual policeman or firefighter to deal first with a medical emergency, without the benefit of medical advice or fully trained medical assistance. This new training will enable them to provide the nededd care."

The Massachusetts Heart Association, a strong supporter of the new training requirements, estimates that 20 per cent of those who die of heart attacks might have lived had adequate emergency medical care been available.

ROBERT DRINAN

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) has urged President Ford to lend his support to the National Energy Emergency Act, passed by Congress and vetoed by President Nixon earlier this year.

"Unity demands that the Congress and the President work together to solve the pressing problems of the day. Energy supplies will drop and prices will skyrocket again this winter unless we adopt a legislative remedy as soon as possible," Drinan said.

The National Energy Emergency Act, approved by Congress last February, provided for a rollback of crude oil prices, restrictions on windfall profits earned by the oil companies, and equitable allocation of energy supplies.

"The public mandate in support of this vital legislation was overwhelming," said Drinan, "but President Nixon vetoed the measure on March 6. President Ford now has the opportunity to rectify his predecessor's mistake by actively supporting the swift passage of similar legislation by Congree before the cold weather strikes again."

CHARLES I. CLOUGH, JR.

Charles I. Clough, Jr., of Concord, Democratic candidate for Middlesex County commissioner, is calling for the phasing out of the position for which he is running.

Clough stated, "Our objective is to wind down the size and costs of county government and return the power to the cities and twns h pay the bills."

Clough, 32, was founder and chairm of Citizens for Middlesex County (CMC), the citizens' group which supported the reform slate of county commissioners in 1972.

Clough stated that we must replace the present county commissioners with a full-time, professional county manager.

The Middlesex County commissioners' office is invisible to the voters. The incredible incompetence which created the East Cambridge Courthouse fiasco, the explosion of patronage abuse in the employment system, and the social abuses in the old training school operation must not be allowed to continue," Clough stated. "It is time to take politics out of the county employment service and guarantee professional management of county functions."

PASQUALE COPPOLA

Pasquale ("Pat") Coppola, 14 Leicester Rd., Belmont, formally announced his candidacy last week for the Democratic nomination for Middlesex County commissioner in the Sept. 10 primary.

In announcing his candacy, Mr. Coppola stated: "Uppermost in my mind are the taxes that the homeowners and business operators pay in Middlesex County. County taxpayers continue to be severely crippled by soaring real estate taxes and often do not realize that a portion of this tax goes toward the operation of county government.

"County government, however, has made improvements over the past two years but much remains to be done and I pledge that if elected, I will work for continued reduction of county taxes through a more business-like approach in the operation of county government.

"I believe a county commissioner should assume more of a leadership role and should become well-known to the citizens of Middlesex County. The county commissioner should take a more active part in the procurement of federal and state funds for the cities and towns in Middlesex County. He should be a leader in attracting new business into Middlesex County."

Coppola was educated in the Cambridge Public Schools, Newman Preparatory School and Boston University School of Business Administration.

Currently, he is president of his own company, Tracy Foods Inc., a distribution and brokerage company which covers all of the New England states, Canada and Puerto Rico.

Coppola is a member of the State Advisory Committee on Manpower development and Trainees for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the Massachusetts Commission of Food, Drugs and Cosmetics and is a trustee for Belmont Lodge No. 1094 OSIA.

Coppola was also a member of the board of directors of the Cambridge Economic Opportunity Committee, Inc., and was a leading member of the board which helped to form the corporation.

Coppola, a native of Cambridge, has lived in Belmont for the past five years since his marriage to the former Christine Tracy, a teacher in the Belmont public school system.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Coppola of Marshfield.

Summer programs held at Emerson School

More than 270 children, ranging in age from three-and-one half to 12 have attended one or more summer programs held at Newton's Ralph Waldo Emerson School during July and August.

The programs have included early childhood opportunity (ECHO), an enrichment reading laboratory, instrumental music, reading tutorial, drama workshops. These programs were offered by the Newton Public Schools and Title I.

The early childhood opportunity classroom enrollment almost doubled from the previous year. Last year's enrollment was 52 while this year there were 93 children.

An addition to the program was two nursery school classes. There were also pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, and first grade children.

Children were given individual help and encouragement to seek their own needs and interests. Each classroom was physically structured to blend the school's offerings into chilren's varius interests and needs.

The main focus of concentration in each classroom was language development. The children met from 9 a.m. to noon daily.

Some ECHO program activities included trips to Howard Johnson's at Gateway Center, Newton Big Buy, Natick Burger King, police and fire departments, Larz Anderson Park in Brookline, Stoneham Zoo, and an agricultural area in Norfolk.

Children also toured Boston Harbor on the Windjammer Spray, and were visited by Channel 38's Willie Whistle, folk singer David Welch, mimist Trent Arterberry, the Poobley Greely Puppet Theatre, the M.D.C. Traveling Zoo, and an installer from a telephone company.

There was parent participation during the summer as parents met with the program's psychologist to discuss children and community problems. Parents discussed problems particular to their own children and sought input from their peers. Meetings were held on a weekly basis and will continue in September during the school year.

A special summer food service for chidren in the ECHO Title I program was provided by the U.S. Department of Food and Nutrition Service. Meals were served daily during the summer months.

On Aug. 8, the ECHO program held its family day picnic and open house. Children were observed in a classroom environment from 9:15-10:15 a.m. A film of the program (put together by the principal and teachers) was viewed from 10:15-11 a.m. Parents, friends, children, and teachers then picnicked on the playground until dismissal time.

The Emerson faculty this summer included: Karen Challen, nursery; Peggy Marino, nursery; Judi Lynch, pre-kindergarten; Sue Carlin, pre-kindergarten; Toni Ethridge, pre-kindergarten and kindergarten; Melinda Rosenberg, pre-kindergarten and kindergarten; Joanne Kwarta, kindergarten and first grade; Rosemary Porfert, kindergarten and first grade; Eleanor Wollins, reading lab; Kathy Marsh, speech therapist; Barbara Yesley, psychologist, George Napoli, instrumental music; Marie Wilcox, secretary; and Thomas A. Etre Jr., principal.

More than 30 children, grades two to six, met in small groups on a daily basis as part of a four-week enrichment reading program. These children used the school's reading laboratory machines and equipment to enhance already developed reading skills and attitudes.

A four-week instrumental music program involved more than 50 children, ages five to 11. They met daily for flute, clarinet, recorder, violin, brass, and orchestra lessons. The program ended with a concert.

Forty-four children were involved in a five-week reading tutorial. They received tutoring in reading on a two-to-one or one-to-one pupil-teacher ratio as part of a Boston State College remedial reading practicum.

These children worked with 24 teachers from the Greater Boston area who are enrolled in advanced degree programs at Boston State College. The children ranged from grades one to six, and came from the Emerson, Hyde, Meadowbrook and Newton Catholic schools.

The community school sponsored a variety of mini workshops. Subjects included photography, weaving, drama, ceramics, film animation, candlemaking, and model railroad building. The courses were taught by parents, and junior high and senior students.

New position for Jane Wirsing

Educational Testing Service (ETS) has announced the appointment of Jane D. Wirsig as secretary of the corporation. She succeeds Catherine G. Sharp, who had held that post since 1958.

When Mrs. Wirsig joined ETS in 1960, her first assignment was to launch the ETS publications division. After 10 years as director of the division, she was named executive director for both the publications and information services divisions in 1970. In her new position, she will continue to have responsibility for ETS' public information activities.

Mrs. Wirsig is a graduate of Newton High School and of Vassar College in New York. She received a master's degree from Columbia University's Graduate School of Jornalism, where she was awarded a Pulitzer Traveling Fellowship, and spent several months writing and reporting from Mexico.

Before joining ETS, Mrs. Wirsig was at various times a news writer for CBS Radio Network News, a free-lance writer and editor, and public relations consultant. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the American Association for Higher Education, and is listed in "Who's Who of American Women" and "Foremost Women in Communications."

Newton women involved in vigil

Three Newton women participated this month in the seventh week of the "Tiger Cage Vigil and Fast" on the steps of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C.

They are Louise Bruyn of 48 Glenwood St., Newton Centre, Katherine Knight, 177 Cypress St., Newton Centre, and Eloise Houghton, of 152 Chestnut St., West Newton.

The Tiger Cage Vigil and Fast, under the sponsorship of the American Friends Service Committee and 17 other peace and religious organizations, is attempting to dramatize the plight of South Vietnam's estimated 200,000 political prisoners and the role reportedly played by U.S. aid in supporting this repression.

Ms. Bruyn, Knight, and Houghton have worked with the Peace Movement since the mid-1960s. Ms. Bruyn drew national attention when she walked too Washington over a six-week period in 1971 as a personal statement of protest against the U.S. role in Indochina. Ms. Houghton directed the Committee of Responsibility for War Injured children until 1973. Ms. Knight is a peace education staff member of the New England Office of American Friends Service Committee.

Biomechanics aid automobile safety

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

A mechanical "human" neck has become an integral part of a broad-based program to reduce the number of highway fatalities and injuries.

The mechanical neck is a recent addition to the science of biomechanics — the study of forces acting against the human body. Hundreds of scientists including mechanical engineers, anatomists, anthropologists and auto accident investigarors are currently involved in studies to determine exactly what happens during a collision when a knee hits a dashboard or a forehead strikes a windshield.

Research in this area is done by the car factories and by universities. At the University of Michigan, for example, researchers operating with a million dollars in grants from the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, the government and interested safety organizations, are involved in some 15 biomechanical projects, including studies of child restraint systems and whiplash injuries.

Much of the data on the body's tolerance to stress is obtained by placing specially instrumented dummies inside cars which are then slammed at varying rates of speed into fixed barriers. The results of these tests indicate what would have happened to human occupants under similar conditions.

The dummies themselves are the object of extensive research. In an effort to improve dummies so they will provide even more human tolerance dats, The Society of Automotive Engineers Vehicle Research Institute even has a "Better Dummy Panel" composed of experts in the field.

Safety devices resulting from biomechanical work include seat belts and shoulder harnesses, energy absorbing steering columns, padded dashboards, side door beams, and the high penetration resistant windshields.

These devices have been so instrumental in saving lives that Professor Donald F. Huelke, University of Michigan anatomy professor and crack auto accident investigator, considers them "the most important breakthroughs in public health since the Salk polio vaccine."

"Open dating" information on packaged meat and poultry

American consumers will soon be finding more precise "open dating" information on packaged meat and poultry to better assist them in determining the freshness of these products on food market shelves.

Mrs. Nancy H. Steorts, special assistant to the secretary of agriculture for consumer affairs, announced that in a move designed to eliminate the present confusion over product dating, meat and poultry processors who voluntarily elect to put a calendar date — rather than a coded date — on their products, must let consumers know what that date means.

Under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) newly amended federal meat and poultry regulations, the claendar date will have to be identified as a "MPACKING DATE," "sell by date," or "use before date." These dates may be qualified by such terms as "for maximum freshness," or similar terms.

Some processors are already using open dating in response to consumer demand, but there has been some confusion as to the specific meaning of such dates. This action should resolve that problem.

"The new regulations will provide consumers with significantly more information on the freshness of meat and poultry products," Mrs. Steorts explained. "However, the public is reminded that the ultimate quality and safety of such products also depends on how carefully they are handled between the processing plant and the consumer's dinner table."

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) proposed the "open dating" amendment March 21, 1973. An overwhelming majority of the more than 400 comments received strongly supported the amendment.

The new regulations will become effective 30 days after publication in the Federal Register. Publication will be August 8.

Grant given Franklin Park Zoo for new African exhibit

The Boston Zoological Society announced today the receipt of a leadership grant of $200,000 from the Permanent Charity Fund, Inc. of Boston. The grant, for capital improvements at the Franklin Park Zoo, is payable over four years toward construction of a new African exhibit.

Henry E. Russell, president of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company and co-chairman of the Zoological Society's fund-raising activities, said, "To this point our efforts have been directed at potential leadership gifts and pledges. This grant from the Permanent Charity Fund is a major step toward achieving our goal of $6 million. Before the summer ends, we will announce the opening date and plans for a wide-scale, public fund drive."

To date the capital drive has raised more than $600,000, just over 10 per cent of the goal. The $6 million from the general public will be combined with state and federal funds to construct and install a major exhibit of African plants and animals, total cost estimated at $24 million, that will include four pavilions to represent the major regions—savanna desert, bush forest, and tropical forest.

The new zoological gardens will stress educational and interpretive programs which will foster greater understanding of ecology, the preservation of the environment, and the interrelationships between mankind and the other living creatures with whom we share the world. In total there will be over seven acres under cover, making the Franklin Park Zoo a year round facility and a real adjunct to the schools.

The architects, Huygens and Tappe of Boston, are completing the design development stage of the planning, and after approval by the Metropolitan District Commission, will move to the production of working drawings. The new African complex is scheduled for completion in 1977. The project represents a unique joint effort by private and public institutions to create an educational faciiity to serve the entire metropolitan area. Planning studies indicate that when complete the new zoological gardens will attract more than 1.5 million visitors a year.

The new grant from the Permanent Charity Fund is not the first support the Foundation has given to the Boston Zoological Society. The first grant, for operating funds, was made in 1967, and since then the Boston Zoological Society has received $115,000 in operating funds from the Foundation.

The Boston Zoological Society operates for the Metropolitan District Commission the Franklin Park Zoo the Children's Zoo and the Walter D. Stone Memorial Zoo in Stoneham.

Real Estate Registry recovers funds

State real estate investigatorrs enabled consumers to recover $284,349.89 on complaints against real estate brokers during fiscal 1974, according to an annual report of the Board of Registration, state real estate licensing authority, operating under the Executive Office of Consumer Affairs, maintains a staff of ten investigators and four supervisors throughout Massachusetts to regulate the industry's 90,000 real estate licenses.

During fiscal 1974, the Board held 65 hearings, suspended 10 licenses, and revoked 7. Only the most serious cases, involving embezzlement of funds or employing unlicensed salesmen, reach a formal hearing. Most complaints are withdrawn after a broker returns the deposit money.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

One wonders how many strange birds have wandered into New England this summer and either escaped notice or were seen by birders who failed to feed the observation into a viable pipeline.

Along the Massachusetts coast, unexpected birds and new breeding records for species kept cropping up in late July. Surely something of that nature has been happening in the other New England states.

The latest coastal reports involve a small invasion by fulvous tree ducks, birds that most ornithologists think of as living in the United States along the Mexican border, and an even smaller invasion, since only one bird was involved, of the sandhill crane.

Earlier in the month, the discovery of glossy ibises and cattle egrets breeding in the commonwealth was reported. Whether they were the first of their species to bring off young in Massachusetts may be debated. But they built the first nests discovered in the state by man.

The first fulvous tree ducks of the summer were a flock of ten seen on Martha's Vineyard by Gus Ben-David, director of Audubon's Felix Neck Wildlife Sanctuary on the island.

Three fulvous tree ducks, which may or may not have visited Martha's Vineyard first, were found at a pond on Rowley, on the North Shore.

The tree ducks which have remained at the Rowley pond were discovered by Wayne Petersen of Abington and Richard Forster of Framingham.

Records indicate that the sightings on Martha's Vineyard and at Rowley were the third and fourth observations of fulvous tree ducks in the commonwealth. Prior to December, 1962, when a fulvous duck was shot in Chilmark, there had been no sighting of the species in Massachusetts in recorded history. The second record was a bird found dead in March, 1965, at Dennis. The specimen is in the collection of Wallace Bailey, director of the Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary.

The sandhill crane, which has been seen by several dozen birders, visits the Harwich marshes on cape Cod. Harold Smith was roaming the marshes with a camera and photographed the bird July 24. The following Saturday, 25 birders were scanning the Harwich marshes when Maurice Broun, retired director of Hawk Mountain Sanctuary, discovered the bird as it flew toward them.

The status of the sandhill crane in Massachusetts, other than as a rare vagrant, is not well known. There may have been a resident population of the birds in New England when Europeans arrived — at least, there are reports of "cranes" in early historic documents. Since cranes are edible, resident birds may have disappeared quickly. Forbush reported a sandhill crane shot at Natick Hill, R.I., in 1889; another shot at Lovell's Pond in Wakefield, N.H., in 1896, and another shot on the Connecticut River at Lunenburg, Vt., in the 1890s.

In his review of birds in Massachusetts, completed in 1955, Ludlow Griscom refused to endorse several sight records of the cranes in the state. Since then at least two sightings of sandhill cranes in the commonwealth seem valid, so possibly an occasional crane that should be flying across the Great Plains does arrive in the East.

Come Let Us Reason Together

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

"I'D RATHER BE ME"

"Who would you rather be than anyone else?" ... I asked Kay who was struggling with some heavy life situations. She was widowed ... two children ... good memories of her husband now deceased two years...she was working and growing in her position. Her greatest problem was loneliness. She had her children ... but she needed adult ... particularly male companionship. She had come to talk over this problem and to learn new ways ... and attitudes in the area of meeting and dating. "It's like being a teen-ager all over again," she said. We forget that teen-agers have their problems in meeting and relating ... and many go steady and even marry unwisely and too quickly just to get rid of the problem.

"But in answer to your question "Who would I rather be than who I am?", I think I would have to say "NO ONE. I'd rather be me than anyone else I know."

"Why?" I pressed her. I try to get people to think ... to reason with me. We know ourselves better and how to relate to others when we reason aloud with someone.

Kay and I thought through three reasons why she would rather be herself than anyone else. The first ... "I KNOW MY SITUATION ... its problems ... my limitations ... and I can go on from here to learn how to cope with it. If I could exchange places with someone else, that situation would also have problems which I would have to get acquainted with before I could even begin to deal with the problems." Kay is right ... and this applies to all of us. Whose situation could you really handle better than your own?

Kay's second reason for wanting to be herself ... "I'M GETTING TO LIKE MYSELF. I see a lot of potential in myself. I feel that I'm just beginning to live." Kay was 45 now. She was learning to "let go" of her children ... now in their teens. She had seen that her married life had been too much "trying to please George to the neglect of my own self." Now she's free ... free to be her own person... to do her own ting. She was liking her real self. No wonder she's saying "I'd rather be me."

Kay thought a moment ... and then came up with a third reason why she'd rather be herself. "I'M EXCITED ABOUT THE FUTURE. I can see that I'm coping better with my own personal situation ... that I'm liking myself so much better (for awhile she even blamed herself for George's death ... car accident) ... and now I'm getting excited about the future ... the new things I'm doing and plan to do." She was taking tennis lessons ... going to an art class ... was working full time ... refurnishing as she could the worn out furniture in her home ... making new curtains and besides these and her full time job she was eager and ready to meet new people ... particularly eligible men. She had never before been so attractive a person. She is confident. I guess no one is really ready to live until he or she comes to accept the fact that "I'd rather be me". It's rather important ... really now ... you have no other choise.

One out of every five families in the United States can testify to the joys of cat ownership.

If you've decided to add a kitten or cat to your household, there are several things you should consider before adoption day.

First of all, would a kitten or an older cat adapt best to your way of life? The appeal of a fluffy kitten is hard to surpass, but kittens must be trained, and fed as often as four or five times a day at first. Mature cats are already trained and are better able to defend themselves from overeager young children. Of course, if you do have young children, teaching them to treat kittens gently will provide a valuable learning experience.

Whether males or females make the best pets is really a matter of personal preference. Some people feel a male cat makes friends more quickly than a female which has a tendency to be cautious on first acquaintance. In either case spaying is recommended for females and neutering for males. These simple procedures not only help fight the pet population explosion, but also make the animals better house pets.

Where you go to get your cat or kitten depends on whether you want a purebred or mixed breed. If you want to exhibit in shows, or raise purebred cats, you will want a registered cat. Ask a veterinarian to recommend reputable pet shops and breeders in your area, and be sure to get your registration papers at purchase.

For unregistered cats, your local humane society is the best place to look. All animals offered for adoption there have been checked by a veterinarian and are in good health. If a neighbor or acquaintance has kittens looking for a home, be sure to have their health checked before accepting one.

Now that you know where to look, consider what to look for: a pet that's healthy, active, bright and responsive. Look for clear eyes, a glossy coat and a firm body free of rashes. Try calling the kitten you are interested in and see if it responds. Lack of reaction may be a sign of deafness or excessive shyness. If a kitten is unusually skittish or spits, observe him for a while to determine whether he's just playful or has a nervous disposition which could cause problems in adjusting to a home.

Old Sturbridge Village acquires 200-year-old Stratton Tavern

Old Sturbridge Villages has announced the acquisition of the 200-year-old Stratton Tavern of Northfield, Massachusetts. Eventually it will be restored and relocated in connection with the museum's planned recreation of an operating early nineteenth century mill community.

The tavern, built as a farmhouse about 1757 and enlarged as a tavern about 1810, is a gift of Bertha Smith Hammond of Greenfield, Massachusetts, whose home it was from 1916 to 1964.

NLOW VACATED, THE TAVERN AND SURROUNDING GROUNDS HAVE BEEN SECURED. The structure will be maintained on its original site on Rte. 63 until funds are available to move it to the museum.

Preservation of the tavern has been made possible by support from Dr. Lloyd E. Hawes of Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts, a trustee of the museum.

In receiving the Stratton Tavern from the family, Alexander J. Wall, president of Old Sturbridge Village, said that "the generosity of Mrs. Bertha Smith Hammond will make it possible over the years for the public to understand a significant part of daily life 150 years ago." The gift, he observed, represents an excellent collaboration between an individual and the museum that will advance Old Sturbridge Village's chief aims of representing the past authentically, offering programs of informal education, and promoting the popular understanding of history.

Wall also said that the steps taken by Trustee Lloyd Hawes are essential in assuring the structure's preservation. In behalf of the museum he thanked Dr. Hawes for his support.

Museum research and curatorial staff members are investigating the role of structures like the Stratton Tavern in the life of early New England mill communities.

It is planned that the tavern will be moved to Sturbridge and located on a road connecting the present agrucultural community and the projected mill community.

Establishment of an operating mill community, including a cotton textile mill and recreated machinery, mill owner's house, company store, tenements and other structures, as well as the interpretation of mill community life, will enable Old Sturbridge Village to present a still more complete account of early rural New England life during the first 50 years of independence, according to Mr. Wall.

One important aim of the mill community exhibits, as in the present village, is to illustrate authentically this time in New England.

"The Stratton Tavern remains excellent examples of wall and floor stenciling and construction techniques of the village historical period," John O. Curtis, director of the museum's curatorial department, said.

Ne noted that the renovation from farmhouse to tavern occurred during the period and that the building, viewed as an artifact, incorporates the characteristics of commercial places and dwellings that makes it exceptionally suitable for relocation at Old Sturbridge Village.

2.5 million voted for Bicentennial

Boston – 2.5 million dollars in state funds will be made available to communities of the Commonwealth in honor of the nation's Bicentennial commemoration. Governor Francis Sargent signed a bill in Boston Friday, August 2, 1974, authorizing a state bond issue to support this major community grants program.

The 2.5 million dollars will be distributed in five equal shares of $5000,000.00 each through 1975. Each city and town in the Commonwealth is invited to apply for these Bicentennial project funds. Such projects must have permanent value for the community. Special consideration will be given for projects involving youth, minorities and the elderly.

Guidelines and application forms for Round I are available from the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission, 10 Tremont Street, Boston 02108 (telephone 617;727;5046.) Regulations will be promulgated and final grant announcements will be made by the Executive Office of Educational Affairs.

All communities are urged to use this opportunity to develop a permanent gift for themselves for the Bicentennial.

Deadline for all applications is 5 p.m. Monday, September 16, 1974.

DRIED FRUIT SALES GO UP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nutrition awareness has boosted sales of dried fruits and natural cereals.

Condiment sales are up sharply over the past year, influenced not just by a long term trend toward greater variety in meals but also by the energy crisis and inflation, says Progressive Grocer. The trade publication said both factors have led people to entertain more at home instead of eating out or traveling long distances for entertainment.

Variety, more foreign type meals and economizing have helped spur sales of macaroni products. And the economy and natural foods trends have increased sales of baking needs, according to the magazine's second annual study of sales of about 320 product categories in super stores.

It defined a super store as a market whose dollar sales are $100,000 or more a week, or ten times as high as a standard supermarket, and which occupies 30,000 or more square feet. By 1980, such stores are expected to account for half of all grocery sales in the United States.

Intelligent and Sensitive

Q. Could you please tell me something about myself? I was born in Brighton, Mass., on June 23, 1903 at 9 p.m.

R. R. H.

A. Your horoscope indicates that even as a young child you were anxious to obtain and keep the good will and opinions of others. People in general and friends in particular are important to you and you are apt to find great satisfaction when you take advantage of an opportunity to render some practical service to them.

You are quite sensitive, have a high degree of what might be called a woman's intuition and can sense the needs and desires of others. You have been able to adjust yourself to changing conditions and this adaptability has helped you to be flexible in your dealings.

You have at times been restless and undecided and were likely to have preferred to develop a career than to be tied down to the routine of housework.

You have been and are very emotional and earlier in your life you probably experienced an erratic and even dramatic or tragic love affair. You can be independent in matters pertaining to your emotions and you tend to make your own rules where human relationships are involved.

You are likely to do best when guided by customs and tradition. Disregarding such may have opened an opportunity for a romantic adventure in the past but it could also have ended quite suddenly. You have now matured and would find your outlook changing from personal to the welfare of those who need help.

You will always be idealistic and inclined to follow your hunches but should be careful to avoid self deception which may result from depending only on your feelings. Combine reason and a consideration of facts with your feelings and you will do better.

HOG FARM

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — For years A. L. Milner raised hogs on land near downtown Fort Worth despite protests from city officials who said the hog farm was an eyesore than detracted from the city's image.

A jury refused to convict Milner of violating any ordinances and Milner claimed he was a victim of harassment by a motel on a bluff overlooking his hog farm.

But Milner finally sold his property and moved his hogs to a new location.

Ironically, the city now announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will construct a shcool for swine inspectors on the site of Milner's farm.

Star Market to open new Hyde Park store

""The store of the future" - the magnificent new Star Market in Hyde Park - will open its doors Tuesday, August 27th - as the 60th ultra-modern supermarket of this rapidly expanding food chain in New England. A brief ribbon-cutting ceremony is planned for 10 a.m. - just priot to the opening of the doors for shoppers. City officials and prominent community figures will take part.

"Mike" Donohue of Sharon will serve as manager for this sparkling-new store that's located at 1377 Hyde Park Avenue (between Cleary Square and Walcott Square in the old Allis Chalmers Building). Convenient store hours will be from 8 a.m. to 12 midnight, Monday through Saturday. There will be unusually good parking areas for all shoppers.

The Star Market Co., now engaged in the largest expansion in its history, is recognized in New England for its outstanding variety of top quality foods...with "specialists" in every department to serve its customers. Star's enormous Meat Department (on which Star built its reputation as the "Quality Leader" for almost 60 years), for instance, offers over 300 sparkling-fresh cuts of meat - to please every taste and budget; an impressive Seafood Shop yields one of the largest varieties of fresh and frozen seafood in New England (all "top of the catch") - the last and freshest fish caught - and prepared exactly to one's own specifications; a Produce Shop where shoppers can enjoy not only their seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables but also unusual fresh produce from around the world; a Deli full of tasty ready-to-eat items and, of course, a Grocery Shop with aisles and aisles of groceries - including an overwhelming selection of frozen foods, a Dorothy Muriel Bake Shop full of home-tasting breads and pastries...and enough cheeses (domestic and imported) to serve a different kind every day of the year!

As an exciting, added conveneince to Star's many speciality shops in one store, a beautiful Florist Shop will feature a complete selection of freshly cut flowers and plants, professionally prepared flow arrangements and corsages by expert floral designers, plus a full line of potting supplies and accessories for green and flowering plant care.

This full-line Flower Shop will also include the services of special flower arrangements being made up for particular occasions such as weddings, etc. In fact, Star customers will even be able to bring in their own favorite flower containers in which personalized bouquets can be arranged!

In addition to such special consumer benefit programs at the new Hyde Park Star Market - such as unit pricing, open freshness dating, in-store sanitation and meat cut designation, (all "firsts" from Star Market) Star will also offer an electronic check out system for greater accuracy and speedier check-outs; a bundle service to the car, or - if preferred - a delivery service from store to home. Food Stamps will be honored at the store.

Senior citizens in the area (as well as residents of the Fairmont Houseing Development and the Georgetown Development) will be able to take advantage of a courtesy bus service, starting the day after the opening, to include routes that will service as many people as possible.

To celebrate the opening, valuable prizes will be given away - including two Schwinn bicycles (10 speed for both men and women) plus three 19-inch RCA portable color TV's. Entry blanks will be available at the store...with the drawing to take place on Monday, Sept. 9. A pancake breakfast is planned, too, as a follow-up to the opening.

New small cars for the Fall

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's automakers have a gaggle of new small cars set for this fall that just don't fit the mold of the inexpensive small car designed to beat inflation and high gasoline prices.

Of the seven new small models, two are luxury versions somewhere between the compact and intermediate models. The others are sporty models that are sure to be optioned up into the $4,500-$5,000 class.

The reason for these models, according to Detroit's auto executives, is simple.

After a brief rush to "basic" cars during the height of the fuel crisis, the American consumer is heading back to the larger and fancier models —maybe not all the way back to the really large models, but up to something more than basic transportation.

Fuel, inflation and the continuing pressure of historical trends will push the fluctuating mix of 1974 to one-half smalls and one-half larger cars. And 1975 points to a moderate continuation of small-car growth.

Industry executives are counting on the "big" smalls, the compacts and the sporty models to take up the slack from the really small-car market.

"People don't want sterile little cars," is how John B. Naughton, sales vice president for Ford, explains the shift. "They want the best and fanciest packages in their smaller cars.

"There is a segment that wants a stripped little car and they want it at a price," Naughton says. "But those that move down to a smaller car from a bigger one want the best in a smaller car."

That's exactly where the new models fit. The new 1975 models, while fitting into the overall concept of the small car market, are as unlike in size and design as are existing models.

General Motors is adding the Vega-derived Astre to Pontiac Division's offerings. Three sporty small cars —again with the Vega heritage —will be offered by GM to counter the dominance of the small sporty market by Ford's Mustang II.

American Motors has its new Pacer as an entry sometime during the middle of the 1975-model year. It will compete in the same market as the Mustang II and GM's new sporty Vega-type cars.

Ford is banking on the Granada-Monarch duo, cars that fit somewhere between the compacts and intermediates, to grab the expanding small luxury market.

Lee Iacocca, Ford's president, referred to them several times in the recent national press preview as either the biggest, most elegant small cars or the smallest, most elegant big cars the company has ever made.

With the outlook for total 1975-model year industry sales about one-half to one million better than in 1974, the demand for small cars expected is to move from 4.7 million to about 5.5 million units.

That 800,000 increase will be fought over by the many existing domestic and imported small-car lines, as well as the first-time models.

It will be up to the American car buyer to decide whether the present trend of bigger and more luxurious small cars is what they really want. The automakers were caught short last fall, but now think the complete range of "small and low-priced" to "small, luxurious and expensive" will be covered this fall.

HARD-EARNED MONEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — An average American worker spends two hours and 39 minutes of his 8-hour work day earning money to pay federal, state and local taxes, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Earning enough to buy a day's supply of food and beverage requires only 58 minutes of work, while earning your clothing takes 25 minutes; recreation, 18 minutes; and housing, one hour. The remaining one hour and 37 minutes pays for all other categories.

GUEST ROLE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Brock Peters will have a guest role on a fall episode of "The Streets of San Francisco," with Karl Malden and Michael Douglas.

PROSPECTUS: THIS IS NOT AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF AN OPERATING PROGRAM. IT IS AN AN ANNOUNCEMENT TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER SUFFICIENT INTEREST EXISTS FOR CREATION OF A PROGRAM FOR ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION. ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION PROGRAMS ARE STILL IN A PLANNING STAGE.

BOSTON STATE COLLEGE

THE OPEN COLLEGE

BASICALLY, THE "OPEN COLLEGE" CONCEPT MAKES A COLLEGE EDUCATION AVAILABLE TO THOSE STUDENTS WHO HAVE FOUND IT IMPOSSIBLE TO ENROLL IN THE TRADITIONAL EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS.

COULD THIS BE YOU?

COLLEGE:
YOU ARE A HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE AND YOU WANT A COLLEGE EDUCATION BUT,

OPEN COLLEGE:
YOU WANT A STRUCTURED COURSE OF STUDIES, BUT,

MULTI-MEDIA EXPERIENCES:
YOU WANT THE CHALLENGE OF DEVELOPING A FIELD OF STUDY, BUT,

DIVERSE LEARNING EXPERIENCES:
YOU WANT TO BE EVALUATED OBJECTIVELY, BUT,

RESOURCE PERSONNEL:
YOU WANT INDEPENDENT STUDY, BUT,

YOU HAVE NOT HAD TIME TO TAKE COURSES IN AN "ON CAMPUS" PROGRAM!

YOUR WORK SCHEDULE, FAMILY RESPONSIBILITIES, OR YOUR STYLE OF LEARNING MAKE TRADITIONAL "ON CAMPUS" SCHEDULES INFLEXIBLE AND UNCOMFORTABLE?

YOU WANT THE OPPORTUNITY OF BEGINNING YOUR STUDIES WITH A FLEXIBLE SCHEDULE USING MATERIALS DESIGNED TO FIT YOUR PERSONAL LEARNING STYLE.

YOU WANT TO BE EXPOSED TO MORE THAN THE TEXTBOOK AND THE LECTURE. WHICH TYPE OF STUDY WOULD YOU CHOOSE?
—SELF-STUDY—BUDDY-SYSTEM —GROUP SEMINAR

YOU WANT TO LEARN BY MEANS OF SELF-PACED LEARNING EXPERIENCES WHICH ARE SUPPORTED BY TRAINED RESOURCE PERSONNEL TO WHOM YOU CAN HAVE ACCESS SHOULD DIFFICULTIES OCCUR.

The Open College Concept:

The program of off-campus instruction, using multi-media study packages, will be a unique approach to non-traditional education in Massachusetts. The goal is to reach those students whose work schedules, family obligations, and learning habits are not served by the traditional "on-campus" programs.

If the program were to become operational in your area, you would have the opportunity to do most of your work in your home. However, at local "learning centers" there would be other activities and resources designed to give you the opportunity to work with a small group of fellow students who are also studying in the program. Whether you choose self-study, a buddy system, or a group seminar, your study would be guided by materials designed to give you an academic experience as interesting and as varied as that which you would receive on-campus.

The learning-resource center would be staffed by trained personnel who will be responsible for working directly with the students and who will act as the liaison with the professors.

Course materials have been designed to allow the student to proceed at his own pace in as private or as public a setting as he desires. The ideal is to present you with a learning experience that will match the diverse learning habits that you have developed on your own.

All of us have our own learning styles some learn only by reading, others need visuals, and still others want to listen. Many want all three experiences plus discussions with fellow students. The Open College program of Studies is designed to meet all of these options while providing a genuine academic experience.

Opinion Survey:

This is the Open College program which is projected at Boston State. Our goal is to bring an education to you to match your learning styles and personal schedules. This program is being planned now. We need your help, however, to find out how many of you would like to begin studying with us and where to open the learning centers. Newton Country Players open membership drive

The Newton Country Players will open a drive for new members this week in an effort to double their number before the start of their 19th season of community theatre activity.

With the Bicentennial in the wings and many new projects in the offing honoring the birth of our nation, additional manpower is needed for the accelerated program in prospect.

In addition to their three annual major productions and their annual New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival entry, the Players are planning a number of workshop productions throughout the year for the aspiring actor or director with little or no experience in theatre craft. Co-chairmen of this new area are Vice-President Linda Pandolfe and Ed Bruce. All productions are mounted at Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton.

During the past six years, the Players have involved themselves with new playwrights and the production of new, untried one-act and full-length plays. During the year 1970-72, they developed their own theatre workshop in affiliation with Newton Junior College. They have affiliated themselves also with the Newton Art Association in an effort to bring both cultures to the Newton community, and were a factor in the formation of the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission.

Beside the three major productions and the NETC Drama Festival entry, members have been offered annual childrens' shows, lighting institutes, Emerson College scene shop tours, classes on stage management and play direction at Brandeis University, workshop showcases on mime and acting techniques, workshop productions of original one-act plays, and script-in-hand rehearsed readings of original comedies, dramas and musicals.

The Players is a non-profit, non-sectarian, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theater activity on community and educational levels in Newton.

Its purposes are to bring together those individuals who are active or interested in any and all phases of community theatre in order to make them aware of theatre activity on these levels, to foster and encourage interest and participation in the many facets of community theatre areas, to provide a medium for the exchange of information and ideas for mutual benefit, and to promote local interest in the dramatic arts.

From time to time, profits have been channeled into a scholarship plan set up by the Players with the Newton high schools. A fall social, bimonthly newsletter, and quarterly meetings are included among the Players' activities. Entertainment at meetings varies from lectures on the many phases of theatre by guest and member speakers, workshop playlets and rehearsed readings, ensemble and one-character performances from within and outside the group, to gala cast parties and group outings.

Each member is entitled, at no extra cost, to one ticket for each of three productions (two tickets on a "couple" membership), a subscription to the newsletter, and to advance announcements of all auditions and productions. There are four categories of membership:

A sustaining member is primarily a spectator, not a participatn, and does not have voting privileges in the organization. Although he is not required to share in the work of the group, his contribution is welcome in its activities.

A student member, who must be between the ages of 12 and 22 and regularly enrolled as a full-time student of an accredited educational institution, is required to participate in the activities of the group but does not hold voting privileges. At the discretion of the board, and based on the merit of his work and interest, he can be advanced to active membership.

An active member is expected to participate on a volunteer basis in the productions, either onstage or backstage, and in the maintenance of the group, but does not hold voting privileges. At the discretion of the board, and based on the merit of his work and interest, he can be elected too the board.

A board member, so voted by the board of directors, is eligible to vote and to hold elective office and share in the continuing responsibility for the artistic, financial and economical well-being of the organization.

Membership dues are $5 for student members, $7.50 for each single membership, and $10 for couples in all other categories. For additional information people may contact business manager Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre 02159.

Co-Presidents Alyn and Lee Pinkofsky have stressed that the Players is a community theatre and that everyone in the Newton community is most cordially welcome to join the group. The Players' current membership includes participants from all 11 sections of Newton, single memberships as well as couples, and student memberships as well as adults of all age categories.

Of course they all drowned.

But then, another 55,600 Americans were killed in motor-vehicle accidents. And 17,600 died from falling. Fire claimed another 6,300 lives.

The figures go on and on. But maybe you get the point.

Don't let us hear about you by accident.

Analysis

Politics play a part in disposal district's future

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Because of one surprise in refuse-disposal proposals received by the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District, Waltham, not Newton, may have the final say in whether the two cities join together to form an operating district.

Municipal politics are sure to play a large role in the decision.

On the basis of five proposals for rcbbish disposal received, consulting firm Camp Dresser & McKee has determined that the most economical five-year plan for Walthan alone would be to accept the proposal of Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI).

If Newton would remove the $1 surcharge it has decided to impose on all rubbish coming to the Newton incinerator building, which will be converted to a transfer station, Waltham would be more favorably disposed toward forming a district and accepting the low bidder for the combined Newton-Waltham disposal, SCA Disposal Services.

The most economical method for Newton lies in the SCA two-city bid, with the removal of the $1 per ton surcharge.

But even if Newton removes the surcharge, Waltham would still come out a little ahead by going alone with BFI. unless Newton can find a way to sweeten the combined disposal pot a little more.

The surprise bid by BFI only for Waltham throws the balance of power to that city.

Waltham Public Works Director Edward Delaney, a member of the district committee, commented after the meeting last week at which Camp Dresser & McKee presented its preliminary, verbal evaluation of the proposals that Waltham "could sign a contract tomorrow with BFI."

There is some concern, however, about BFI's committment on landfill availability past the next few years.

Asked why BFI did not bid on Newton's disposal as well as Waltham's, Thomas Dooley, a vice-president, replied, "That was a corporate decision made in Houston. I'm not at liberty to say."

Speculation was voiced outside the meeting that the reason was that BFI could not handle Newton's volume of rubbish, which is roughly twice that of Waltham's.

Until now many members of both cities' governments have assumed that Newton, not Waltham, would be the controlling municipality in the formation of a district. It was also assumed in Newton that Waltham, whose incinerator has already been closed down, was more in need of a means of disposal than Newton, whose incinerator will be shut down around the end of this year.

Waltham currently trucks its rubbish out of the city, using its own personnel and rubbish trucks, and doubt has been expressed about how long such an operation would be certain, especially as to the capacity for accepting rubbish at the landfill area used.

The Regional Refuse Disposal District is aiming at the eventual creation of a regional resource recovery region, encompassing 10 or 12 contiguous communities, whose goal would be to obtain state acceptance and funding of a resource recovery plant.

Most knowledgeable people in the field believe that such an achievement is at least eight years off, and in fact the extension of the district for another three years was just approved by Newton's and Waltham's legislative bodies so that the district could continue, with support from the state, to pursue its goal.

However, if the joint disposal proposal fails, there would seem to be little reason and little heart for continuing the existence of the district.

The decision as to which proposal to accept, and whether to go together or alone, will be primarily the responsibility of the two mayors. In Newton the Board of Aldermen will have to approve an appropriation for disposal, but Waltham already has the money in its budget for this year, according to Delaney.

Several members of the Newton Board of Aldermen are known to be strongly in favor of fixing up the incinerator, even though two consulting firms, Camp Dresser & McKee and Arthur D. Little Co., have advised against such a step because of the approximately $5 million (CDM's estimate) for upgrad9ng and the fact that the city, or cities, would then be "locked into" the future use of the incinerator to the exclusion of newer, more acceptable disposal methods that may be available later.

The district will depend on its life on a long-range, broad view on the part of Newton, some generosity and farsightedness on the part of Waltham, and some sacrifice from both.

The written, formal evaluation of bids by Camp Dresser & McKee, complete with comparative costs, will be ready this week and will be given to Mayor Theodore Mann of Newton and Mayor Arthur Clark of Waltham to consider before a meeting planned between the mayors and the district around Sept. 5 or 6.

Bids expire about the middle of September, and unless extensions are granted, the decision will have to be made by the expiration date.

McDonald's hearing set September 9

McDonald's Restaurants will petition the Building Laws Board of Appeals, Sept. 9, for restoration of its revoked building permit.

The building permit for alteration to a building at 330 Walnut St., Newtonville, preliminary to opening a 148-seat restaurant there, was revoked in July on a technicality.

The permit was issued in early July by Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson, who said there was no legal reason to deny the permit. Later it was discovered that the wrong person had signed the application on behalf ofgMcDonald's.

Opposition to the presence of a McDonald's restaurant in the Newtonville location because of parking problems, first began developing after the Licensing Board had granted the hamburger chain a common victualler's license in an unpublicized hearing.

Newtonville residents' and other opposition was countered by support from the Newton-Needhma Chamber of Commerce, which, through its executive director, Louis Songer, expressed the opinion that McDonald's would increase business in Newtonville Square.

New pedestrian signal may get tryout in Newton Centre

Maralynn Johnson of Auburndale has been traveling and writing all over the country in an effort to do something about the often confusing and misleading "walk" and "don't walk" pedestrian traffic signals.

She has even designed a better system and recently convinced the federal government to experiment with it.

This week another of her hopes was realized, when Newton Traffic Commission agreed to ask state permission to install some of her devices in Newton Centre Square.

Now she will be able to see for herself the reactions of pedestrians who will be instructed not only when to walk and when not to walk but also when it is not safe to start off the curb.

Mrs. Johnson's crusade has been directed against the generally misunderstood instruction given by the flashing "don't walk."

It is supposed to mean that a pedestrian should continue across the street if he is partway across, but should not start across the street if he is still at the curb.

The new message "don't start" avoids the misunderstanding. "Don't start" will come on with the "walk" message when the walk cycle leaves only enough time to complete a crossing already begun.

Mrs. Johnson designed the new device and her engineer-husband constructed it for her. She has demonstrated the signal in Washington and at national meetings of traffic and safety engineers.

Land Use says yes to day care

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

It took the aldermanic Land Use Committee only 30 minutes Tuesday night to make decisions about NCDF housing and a Lasell Junior College student center.

This did not mean, however, that everyone was able to go home at 8:30 p.m. The committee spent well over an hour debating a proposed day care center on land owned by Boston College.

The college initially sought a day care facility for 86 children at 258 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill. According to Eva Newman, director of early childhood education at B.C., the original intention was to open it to the community as well as children of Boston College personnel.

Attorney Robert Freeto, who was representing B.C., and the Chestnut Hill Association came in with a proposal Tuesday night which would limit the day care cent to 40 students at any one time. Under the compromise reached between the two parties, the center would only be open to children of college administrators, faculty and students.

Barbara Kasman, vice president of the Chestnut Hill Association, said that abutters of the proposed facility were "strongly opposed" to opening the center to non-B.C. personnel. She noted that the at-large association did not object strongly to non-B.C. people except that it was felt that the neighborhood does suffer when an influx of outside people occurs.

"The neighbors want to limit numbers," Ms. Kasman commented. "We can do that by limiting the center to B.C. personnel."

Alderman Michael Lipof said that "the rationale for limiting it to B.C. was to limit the amount of traffic."

Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell asked Freeto, "Why should I approve this in terms of the public good?"

After Freeto responded that it would serve a need, McDonnel replied that the need seemed restricted and "convenient."

McDonnell asked if Boston College would be agreeable to including four low-income children not connected to B.C.

Housing act might mean gain for city

Newton apparently stands to gain something financially from the $11.2 billion Housing and Community Development Act of 1972 signed last week by President Gerald Ford.

Exactly how much more Newton will receive, if any more, no one in city or state government was willing to say, however.

Under a former bill Newton was estimated to receive during the first five years of the program $3.4 million. The estimate was made last year by Donald Levitan, Newton's director of intergovernmental relationals, on loan from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The new law will give Newton $4,521,000 over the next six years, according to a spokesman for Cong. Robert Drinan. The money starts next Jan. 1 with a payment of $655,0 J.

Cong. Drinan was scheduled to meet with Newton Ma or Theodore Mann yesterday (Wednesday) to discuss the new law.

The new act consolidates several previously individual categorial grants into one "block grant" covering open space, urban beautification, and historic preservation; public-facilities loans; water-and-sewer and neighborhood facilities; urban renewal and neighborhood development; the Model Cities program; and housing rehabilitation loans.

The catch may be that from the $4.5 million that Newton will receive in the next six years, some money may have to be deducted for current urban renewal already in the works.

The interpretation of this point has not been made by the federal government yet, at least not to the community recipients.

The significance of the block grant is that cities and towns will have a lump sum to spend in defined areas as it sees fit, rather than certain amounts earmarked for certain projects.

Federal control is exerted by the requirement that the communities submit a community development plan every three years. The plan must show how the city is working to improve the lot of low-income and minority people and identify the needs and objectives of the plan.

Restrictions on spending include civil rights provisions and antidiscrimination provisions.

Another section of the law increases the ceiling on FHA-insured mortgages from $33,000 to $45,000, but prospective homeowners will have a difficult time finding a bank to grant a mortgage with a very low down payment.

Of the total $11.2 billion approved, some $1.2 billion is allocated for a new rent subsidy program for low-income families.

Discover the artist instead of the art

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of the Graphic Staff

That painting on your living room wall probably has more meaning than you realize.

And that's what "Discovery" is trying to tell you.

"Discovery," is a novel program developed by Ellie Mamber of Newton and Sylvia Rosenfeld of Westwood, sisters and partners in the firm M—R Communications.

Both women ave been frequent gallery–goers for many years now, and their many trips gave birth to "Discovery."

The philosophy behind the program that began earlier this year, Mrs. Rosenfeld explained is quite simple: "We want to bring artists and people together."

When do the people that buy art ever really have a chance to see and talk to artists? At an exhibit when they are swamped with attention? Perhaps, the women reasoned, artists would enjoy an opportunity to get some feedback from their public.

Mrs. Rosenfeld and Mrs. Mamber began contacting artists and asking them.

They found 15 who were agreeable to letting a group of women visit them in their own homes, talking to the group about their work, and their respective philosophies of art, and answering any questions the women might have.

All the legwork done, they marketed "Discovery," a program involving one visit per week for four weeks on either Tuesday or Wednesday to the homes of two or three artists, transportation and luncheon included in the fee.

In the early spring, artists close to home, such as painter David Shapiro and Edward Movitz of the Lincoln-Weston area were visited.

As this perfect New England summer developed, "Discovery" began to wander further afield, traveling up the coast to Gloucester and down to the South Shore to see the weavings of Barbara Herbster, beach glass by Helene Dorne, pottery by Sandy and Ralph Terry, and the abstract watercolors of Erma Wheeler, among others.

The summer trips are now almost at an end, and M—R Communications is getting ready to start a new season off in September.

"We're constantly discovering new artists who want to participate," Mrs. Rosenfeld said.

She and her partner have decided the fall trips would also be planned with an eye toward autumn scenery, and that winter's "Discovery" will head into Boston and Cambridge.

Candidates

DAVID MOFENSON

State Rep. David J Mofenson, Democratic candidate for reelection in the 18th Middlesex District, said this week the governor has signed a measure making it an unlawful employment practice for an employer to discriminate against an applicant or employee because of refusal to disclose some past criminal records. Included is information regarding: an arrest or disposition of any violation where there was no conviction or the conviction was vacated; the first conviction for simple misdemeanors, i.e. drunkeness, disturbing the peace, motor vehicle violations; any conviction of any misdemeanor where the date of conviction or completion of sentence occurred five or more years prior to the request for information.

Mofenson is the chairman of the Legislature's Special Commission on Privacy.

LOIS PINES

State Rep. Lois G. Pines urged the Children's Campaign to investigate potential regulation of violence on television when she testified at the recent platform hearings.

Rep. Pines is a Democratic candidate for reelection in the 19th Middlesex district.

"When was it that sex was branded obscene and violence became glorified?" she asked at the hearings. "Violence is a form of obscenity."

Rep. Pines also discussed the need to eliminate sexist attitudes in public schools, the need to assure privacy of student records and student and parental access to these records.

LETITIA ANGELONE

The recent Land Use Committee hearing on the Chestnut Hill NCDF project was biased, Letitia Angelone, Independent candidate for state representative from the 19th Middlesex district, charged this week.

"Although this project will lead to a transformation of Newton from a rustic suburban community to a congested appendage of the City of Boston, the matter of approving its progress was placed at the end of a very long schedule and regulated on an entirely different basis than other matters on the agenda," she said.

JACK BACKMAN

Citing Massachusetts' 8 percent unemployment rate as proof of urgency, State Sen. Jack Backman of Brookline this week called upon the governor to make three necessary appointments so the Special Unemployment Commission can operate.

Backman is a Democratic candidate for reelection in the Newton-Brookline state senatorial district. He is also the chairman of this special commission.

"Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has asked for a public service employment program if unemployment goes over the 6 percent mark," the legislator noted.

"It is long past the time here when we could be leisurely about initiating programs to cope with our problems," he continued. "We need the combination of new business and public service employment to break the cycle which has given our state one of the highet unemployment rates in the nation."

IRVING FISHMAN

State Sen. Irving Fishman of Newton said this week he is filing a package of bills for 1975 aimed at protecting individual rights of privacy.

The bills will cover data banks, the misuse of social security numbers, consumer credit and bank and telephone records, he said.

"The assault on individual rights of privacy from public and private institutions has reached intolerable proportions," Fishman said. "We must stop the abuses of computer technology before our private lives become public property."

The first step, he said, is to "register all government and private data banks and specify what kinds of information cannot be justifiably included."

Fishman, Democratic candidate for reelection in the Newton-Brookline state senatorial district, is a member of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy.

JOSEPH WEINREBE

Joseph Weinrebe of 154 Oliver Rd., Waban, officially announced his sticker candidacy for the Republican nomination for state senator in the Newton-Brookline district this week.

He will be a sticker (write-in) candidate in the Sept. 10 primary. If he receives 300 votes in both Newton and Brookline, his name will appear on the November ballot.

Weinrebe is vice president-marketing of Republic Travel Service in Boston. He has been a member of the Newton Republican City Committee, the Newton Republican Club, chairman of the Ward 5 Republican Committee, a state committeeman and a delegate to the last five Republican state nominating conventions.

He is also a member of Temple Sinai, Shawmut Lodge A.F. & A.M., Disabled American Veterans, Jewish War Veterans, and is president of the Association of Incentive Travel Organizations.

PAUL GUZZI

Secretary of state candidate Paul H. Guzzi this week issued one of the campaign's more novel press releases.

The Newton Democrat and his wife Joanne announced the birth of their second son, Michael Paul Guzzi, late Friday night.

Guzzi, who said he expected the birth to be nearer the Sept. 10 primary, was campaigning on the North Shore when called back to Newton and was at Newton-Wellesley Hospital when his son was born.

MARK FURCOLO

"The recent sale of high-yield United States government notes and the billion dollar bond issue of two federal agencies show there is a large market for individual investors who want to obtain ownership of government securities, some of which offer tax-free income," Mark Furcolo said Monday.

Furcolo is a Democratic candidate for state treasurer.

The candidate proposed that the state treasurer's office assume the work of leading "in the innovation of offering government bonds in low denominations to the public and without any banker middlemen."

"The banking community can offer many reasons why such a plan can't work and why banks are necessary as middlemen," he said; "but let's dare to think of some new procedures where a taxpayer can get a break for a change."

CHARLES CABOT

A group of 45 lawyers across Massachusetts have endorsed Charles Cabot, Republican candidate for attorney general, the candidate announced this week.

Among the attorneys who signed the endorsement letter were: Theodore Chase, former president of the Boston Bar Association; Archibald Cox of Harvard Law School; Edward Barshak, president of the Boston Bar Association; Peter F. Coogan, Newton; and David L. Weltman, Newton.

WILLIAM COWIN

Republican candidate for attorney general William I. Cowin of Newton Tuesday outlined his program for fighting corruption in government.

He proposed establishing a special investigatory unit within the criminal division of the attorney general's office to concentrate solely on political corruption.

The unit "would not only serve as the focus of citizen complaints and allegations, but would randomly investigate financial transactions involving state and local officials," he said.

"I would begin by investigating land deals involving officers of local renewal and housing authorities and zoning appeal boards," he said.

"You can't examine every potentially improper transaction, but you can deter corrupt activities if you establish an effective and credible selective enforcement program," he said.

GEORGE L. SACCO

Democratic candidate for attorney general George L. Sacco has called upon fur of his Democratic opponents to make public disclosure of their personal assets and federal income tax returns.

"Public disclosure by candidates of their personal finances is not unusual or rare," he said. "The moral and legal sensitivity of the attorney general's office combined with widespread doubts on th part of the public with regard to credibility demand full financial accountings by all candidates for attorney general."

EDWARD HARRINGTON Edward F. Harrington, a Democratic candiate for attorney general, called for the creation of a "Corruption hotline" this week.

Harington said he was making the proposal "to give the average citizen the opportunity to report wrongdoing by public officials at any level of government and to do so without fear of reprisal."

"As attorney general, I would see to it that all complaints received n the hotline received serious attention in strict confidence," the candidate said. "Where justified, I would initiate exhaustive investigations and seek prosecutions of the public officials no matter how high their offices."

JOHN P. LYNCH

Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor John Pierce Lynch of Springfield began his walk across the state Monday.

He said he was walking "to demonstrate the need for unity in the party and would attempt to unite western Democrats with eastern Democrats.

He said he is following the same trail General Knox traveled to deliver artillery from Ft. Ticonderoga to General Washington in Boston.

ROBERT QUINN

Robert H. Quinn, the state's attorney general and a Democratic candidate for governor, said Friday he would "welcome an opportunity to help the Sargent Administration settle the financial mess caused when the state Dept. of Public Works built a bridge and roadway on land now owned by the United States government."

At issue is who is going to pay for the rebuilt Ft. Point Channel Bridge near the South Postal Annex in Boston.

According to Quinn, the state DPW did the work and Massachusetts taxpayers are getting the $329,000 bill. Motorists can't use the facility because the Post Office claims the access road is theirs and has blocked it to all traffic.

MICHAEL DUKAKIS

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Dukakis said this week that as governor, he would "bring more women into high levels of government than ever before."

"Massachusetts needs its women in all aspects of its economic, social and political life and it needs them as full and equal partners," he said.

The candidate said he would eliminate non-job-related job descriptions and qualifications "often used to discriminate against women;" assure equal pay for equal work throughout the executive branch, recruit women on college campuses and in local communities; and have training programs to bring more women into Civil Service.

ROBERT F. DRINAN

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton, Democratic candidate for reelection in the Fourth Congressional District, Monday urged that the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) become "more responsive to the needs and welfare of the American consumer.

Testifying in Boston public hearings on Project Independence, Drinan charged that consumers are paying inflated prices for petroleum products as a result of the FEA pricing policies and that they are not represented in the FEA decision making process.

Project Independence seeks to bring the United States to energy self-sufficiency by 1980.

LAURENCE CURTIS

Speaking at a Republican rally in Framingham last week, former congressman Laurence Curtis, GOP candidate in the fourth congressional district, charged that the Independent candidate in the race "made a last minute shift from a Democratic primary candiacy to an Independent, and secured his nomination as an Independent by a sharp practice which had confused many voters."

Curtis said the Independent, Jon Rotenberg, circulated a second set of nomination papers to run as an Independent shortly before the final deadline for filing. He charged that voters who signed the second set of papes may not have realized "the real import of what they were doing."

"In the November election there will be an assistant Democratic candidate masquerading as an Independent," Curtis said.

Police report

$20,000 worth of equipment reported missing

A breaking and entering and larceny at Aquanautics, 67 Chapel St., Newton, was reported to police at 6:55 a.m. on Monday.

A list of missing materials valued at more than $20,000 was reportedly submitted.

Entrance was gained by an unknown manner, and alarm wires on an inside system were reportedly cut.

Newton police arrested four men early Tuesday morning and charged them with larceny of a motor vehicle.

Two officers reportedly saw a car going in the wrong direction on the bridge at Centre and Washington Streets while on patrol. The officers reportedly apprehended the vehicle and noticed that the ignition was punched out, and that plates were improperly attached. The operator of the car reportedly had no license or registration.

A stolen car check revealed that the car was stolen out of District IV in Boston.

David Richards, 19, of 13 Euclid St., Dorchester, was charged with larceny of a motor vehicle, no license in possession, operating in a wrong direction, and attachement of a plate to a different motor vehicle.

Rodney Stinson, 21, of 129 Beacon St., Boston; Deborah Mullen, 21, of 15 Gloucester St., Boston; and Phyllis Delair, 19, of 15 Gloucester St., Boston, were charged with larceny of a motor vehicle.

Three Boston juveniles were arrested last Friday in connection with an alleged theft of a diamond ring from Shreve, Crump and Low of the Chestnut Hill Mall.

The youths were reportedly pursued by a security officer and apprehended in a parking lot in front of the building. They were charged with larceny to wit over $100. A missing ring was recovered by Officer Matthew Pini.

A break at 1806 Beacon St., Waban, was reported to police on Sunday. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass in a rear side door, police said.

Reported missing were a color television and a brown mink stole.

A break at 33 Newtonville Ave., Newton, was reported late Monday night. Missing were two stereo speakers, a turntable, a stereo receiver, a cassette player, and a gold watch, police said.

There was no sign of forced entry.

Conservation Commission considers 'compromise' lot

The Newton Conservation Commission is deliberating on the "compromise" parking lot proposed by Cramer Electronics, Inc., for 2.8 acres on Wells Avenue, Newton Centre.

The compromise, arrived at in discussion with the Planning Department, situates the lot farther from the street and preserves natural characteristics of the land but locates some of it in the Charles River floodplain.

The parking lot has received approval from Newton's Board of Aldermen. The Conservation Commission is responsible for enforcing the Wetlands Protection Act as it applies to the Cramer lot.

Anthony Medaglia, attorney for Cramer, argued that the creation of the new lot would in fact add to the water storage capacity of the adjacent land, since more fill will be added than will be removed, but Conservation Commission members Deborah Howard and Thelma Fleishman were concerned about the rate of runoff from the large paved area.

Both members asked for consideration of drains in the lot that would feed into something like dry wells. City Engineer U.M. Schiavone replied that the effect could be achieved by leaving the brickwork open and the joints uncemented.

The new parking lot is made necessary by the fact that Crmaer plans to build another office building, which will take up some of the present lot.

According to Medaglia and Richard Ganley, Crmer's vice-president in charge of distribution, the 25 per cent parking reduction mandated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for employers of more than 50 persons will cause no problem to Cramer.

At the base date used by EPA, Oct. 1, 1973, Cramer had 385 parking spaces to accommodate two shifts of employees totaling about 600, Ganley said. Medaglia said this averaged about 74 per cent of the larger shift. The EPA reduction is based on the 1973 date.

By 1980, Ganley said, Cramer expects to have 1000 employees at the Newton facility. Medaglia said that Newton zoning ordinances would require 468 parking spaces for the enlarged plant, but despite EPA reduction regulations Cramer should "be fairly close" to EPA requirements.

Ganley said the company was trying to set up carpools, as required by EPA, and although it has discontinued its company bus between the Newton Highlands MBTA station and Cramer due to lack of patronage, it does cab about a dozen employees to and from the station now.

Ms. Howard commented that until 1980, Cramer will have more parking than the EPA allows.

Anthony Mondello of the Metropolitan District Commission reminded the Conservation Commission that the MDC is "violently opposed to any filling of wetlands," and Margaret Lindsay of the Needham Conservation Commission said, "we're opposed in general."

Good time to clean Charles

Because of the very dry summer, the flow in the Charles River is unusually low, exposing areas of the river bed normally under water. This affords an excellent opportunity to remove debris not usually visible at the time of the spring clean-up.

The Charles River Watershed Association has sent letter to all mayors and selectmen in the watershed communities urging them to take advantage of the low water conditions and available summer employees to clear away their sections of the river and its tributaries.

Individual residents as well as organized groups in search of a valuable summer commitment of very short duration are encouraged to offer their assistance to their local public works departments.

The Metropolitan District Commission has also been asked to cooperate in the spontaneous clean-up while the river is low. As trash relates to the river, it is much better to take than to give, says CRWA.

Paintings stolen

The FBI, State and Newton police are investigating the theft of 17th century art works from the home of George S. Abrams, 22 Bernard Lane, Waban.

Initial estimates placed the value of the paintings at between $500,000 and $1 million but their value is now believed to be closer to $100,000.

Abrams has been quoted as saying that the art works would be "virtually worthless" to the thieves because "it would be virtually impossible for them to find a buyer."

Some of the paintings taken were reportedly by Dutch artists Peter Codde, Anthony Waterloo, and Adrian Van Ostad. According to Abrams, there are few private collectors in the world who collect the type of art which was taken from his home.

Officer Robert Fitzsimmons of the Newton Police Department reportedly found a pillow case with pictures inside of it in front of a house on Collins Road, Waban, last Saturday afternoon.

The paintings were traced to Abrahams' home and a break at the home was discovered. Entrance was apparently gained by smashing glass at the rear of the house.

Abrams, an attorney, was reportedly away for the weekend. The items taken are said to have included both paintings and sketches.

Lt. Richard Duffy is directing Newton's part of the investigation.

Sex discrimination charges brought by Newton professors

Two Newton professors have charged Tufts University with sex discrimination in employment and salary, and one has already obtained an injunction against the university ordering her reinstatement until the landmark case has been decided.

Professor Lonnie Carton of Newtonville, who had taught in Tufts' education department for 10 years but was never granted tenure, was in effect fired when the university refused tenure on the grounds that Prof. Carton was a part-time employee.

This assertion has been disproved and Prof. Carton has been ordered reinstated.

The co-filer of the sex-discrimination suit, Prof. Christine Joost-Gaugier of Newton Highlands, filed suit on behalf of all women faculty members of Tufts in August, 1972, and after investigation by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, was joined by the EECO in August, 1973.

The suit is the first sex-discrimination suit in the country to be brought against a university by the EEOC.

According to Prof. Joost, an EEOC report issued from Washington in March of this year showed unanimous opinion of the five commissioners.

Prof. Joost has been testifying this week in U.S. District Court in Boston.

Prof. Joost, who has three degrees, from Harvard University, including a Ph.D., charges that the chairman of the Fine Arts department, Ivan Galantic, and Tufts University have discriminated against herself and another professor, Barbara White, in pay and in granting tenure.

Prof. Joost was fired in August, 1973, by Tufts, but has been paid under court order, until last week, when she was notified by Tufts that they will not continue paying her despite the order.

Tufts University in general, and the fine arts department in particular, Prof. Joost charges, gives favored treatment to men, both faculty and students.

Galantic lectured publicly in class that women are inferior to men, not capable of thinking, and not as intelligent as men, Prof. Joost says, and has told women graduate students to "stay home and make babies."

Galantic was given tenure upon his being hired as chairman of the fine arts department, Prof. Joost said, while she was denied tenure and was notified that her contract would not be renewed although she was well qualified.

Galantic made it known to university officials before his employment at Tufts that he wished to have only men employees in his department, Prof. Joost claims.

Prof. Carton, who has a Ph.D. from Pennsylvania State University, says that in her department a woman has never been given tenure.

He and his wife, Margaret, will live on a farm owned by Penney's family in Center Strafford, New Hampshire.

Hampton, Merrill named to state planning council

Mary B. Newman, secretary of the Executive Office of Manpower Affairs of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has announced the appointment of two Newton men to serve as members of the Commonwealth of Mass. CETA "Balance of State" Prime Sponsor Planning Council.

Those appointed are Eugene Hampton, Jr., principal engineer, Polaroid Corp., Cambridge, and Carleton P. Me4rill, veterans' agent for the City of Newton.

Secretary Newman has advised, "Governor Francis W. Sargent has delegated to me the responsibility for the implementation and operation of the CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program for the Massachusetts 'Balance of State' area. This 'Balance of State' area is composed of 294 cities and towns and represents more than 65 per cent of the State's population.

"The provisions of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 reuire that each prime sponsor have a manpower planning council whose major functions are to: (1) submit recommendations regarding program plans, basic goals, policies and procedures, (2) monitor and provide for objective evaluations of employment and training programs conducted in the prime sponsorship area and (3) to provide for continuing analysis of needs for employment, training, and related services in the prime sponsorship area."

Prior to their appointments to the Prime Sponsor Planning Council, both Hampton and Merrill had served as members of the Newton Advisory Manpower Planning Board (AMPB) by appointment of Mayor Theodore D. Mann. Both will continue to serve on the Newton Sub-Grantee AMPB Board as well as on the state council.

Hampton, a Newton resident, attended college at Tennessee State University as well as graduate schools at the University of Washington, Univesity of Iowa, and at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, He is presently chairman of Black Citizens of Newton (BCON); a member of the steering committee, Newton Coalition for New Politics, member of the board of directors, Newton Mental Health Association, and founding member and chairman Economic development task forces (BCON) 1973.

Merrill has served the City of Newton as veterans' agent since 1962, previous to which he served as amember of the Newton Board of Aldermen for eight years.

He presently is a member of the Newton Service Unit, Salvation Army, member of the Neton Rotary Club, and member of the advisory committee of the Newton Community Relations Committee. He is a corpoator and a former member of the board of directors of the Newton Boys Club.

Drinking ban on its way back to Board of Aldermen

The Legislation and Rules Committee Monday night disposed of a dozen items, including the much-debated prohibition against drinking in public places. Some of the measures have been before the Board of Aldermen for more than two years.

The proposed ordinance to control public drinking had the word "possession" restored, and a slight modification of the permit procedure was added to the ordinance. It will be before the full Board of Aldermen for another vote Sept. 3.

A proposed resolution submitted by Ald. David Cohen to express support by the Board of Aldermen for the city's request for state legislation authorizing Newton to formulate rules for sticker parking in residential areas received a favorable report from the committee.

Cohen's proposal, he said, would be applied mainly to those residential areas where there are blanket prohibitions against parking, such as the neighborhood around Boston College where not even the homeowners are allowed to park in front of their homes.

The concept could be applied, Cohen said, to overnight parking, commuter parking, and parking for teachers near schools.

The committee specifically removed the latter two categories from the proposal, but approved the resolution to petition the state legislature for permission to create an ordinance.

After long debate the committee agreed on hours for restricting operation of gasoline-powered lawnmowers, chain saws, and the like. The hours during which such equipment may be operated was finally decided as 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

Other measures that will receive a favorable report to the full Board includes a resolution proposed by Ald. Edward Richmond that the Licensing Board notify the Board members of applications for common victualler's and alcoholic beverage licenses.

The committee voted "no action necessary" on two items to change the procedure followed by the Purchasing Department involving a performance bond and the amount fo a contract or purchase requiring competitive bidding, on one proposal to establish a department of public celebration (the Cultural Affairs Commission has filled the gap), and on a proposal by Richmond to amend the state alcoholic liquor act (Richmond did not follow through with proposed legislation).

A holding action was taken on several items, and a subcommittee of the L&R committee was appointed to meet with the Newton Highlands Neighborhood Area Council, approved as a sub-unit of city government by the Board of Aldermen earlier in the summer, to arrive at a date for election of officers of the council.

One of the items held for further work by the Law Department was a ban on billboards on MBTA property and at MBTA stops and a proposed resolution from A.LD. Matthew Jefferson to allow private dumping of trailers full of rubbish at the same rate as now charged to passenger cars.

All measures approved must be voted on by the full Board, whose next meeting is Sept. 3.

City employees donate blood

Heeding the call, "Give Someone A Chance To Live," a total of 73 City of Newton employees donated, or attempted to donate, blood at the recent Red Cross Bloodmobile held at Newton City Hall, according to Carleton P. Merrill, coordinator of the City of Newton Employees Blood Bank.

Merrill advised that the success of the program was a direct result of the fullest possible support received from Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Administrative Assistant James Salter, President Murdock Fraser of the Newton City Hall Associates and from Louis Rufo, Robert Hand and Daniel MacLaren, officers of Local 800, Municipal Workers.

City employees answering the call of "Give Someone a Chance to Live" were: Robert K. Arabian, Frederick T. Arata, Lloyd B. Arvedon, Henry W. Baker, John F. Barry, Louis L. Bell, Frederick S. Due to the success of this drive, which was the most successful one held by City of Newton employees in recent years, the officers of the City Hall Associates and of Local 800 have jointly advised that arrangements have been made with the Newton Chapter, The American National Red Cross, to have the bloodmobile back to Newton City Hall in February or March 1975.

Withhold opinion

Many across the United States are predicting that President Gerald Ford not only will be nominated for the Presidency by the Republican party in 1976 but also will be elected to it by the voters.

The students and scholars of politics reason that the people will be in no mood for another big change and upheaval in their national government, a little more than two years from now.

There is no doubt that the Republican presidential nomination will be Ford's for the taking in 1976. He will have the power and patronage of the Presidency at his command. His men will control the party machinery in Washington.

By nominating Nelson Rockefeller to be vice president yesterday Mr. Ford wiped out serious opposition from the former New York governor who has been consumed with the desire to be President. Now they are teammates and Ford is captain calling the party plays.

But any opinions concerning Mr. Ford's chances of winning the Presidency in his own right should be delayed until time permits an appraisal of the job he does as President. He is confronted with some tough problems which will not be easy to overcome.

President Ford will have an excellent chance of winning election in 1976 if he eases the nation's economic problems in the next two years — curbs inflation, brings the cost of living under control, increases employment and generally improves the prosperity of the United States.

He will have virtually no chance of gaining a full term in the White House unless he at least has made some progress in that direction by the time of the next Presidential election.

Gerald Ford also is much more conservative than most people apparently realize. The change from the role of Congressman from the Grand Rapids section of Michigan to President of the United States may cause some revision of his views, but there is scant likelihood President Ford ever will be accused of liberal leanings.

It is highly unlikely, for instance, that Gerry Ford ever could carry a state such as Massachusetts against any Democratic opponent. On the other hand, he should be strong in the South and the Middle West.

President Ford's record of accomplishments during the next two years will pretty much determine whether he will be unbeatable in 1976 or if a Democratic candidate such as Senator Edward M. Kennedy might topple him.

President Ford's political honeymoon will end about Thanksgiving.

Democratic spokesmen will begin to forget that he once was a member of "the club" on Capitol Hill.

Probably by Christmas the Ford-Rockefeller team will be targets of partisan fire and thoughts will be turning to the 1976 election.

But in the past few days — at the VFW convention where he proposed conditional amnesty — and by the selection of Rockefeller who has more than a few GOP enemies — President Ford has shown courage and candor that are more than welcome after the dark months past.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Sargent leads Sheehan by about 30,000 votes

Polls made under the writer's direction indicate that Governor Francis W. Sargent will defeat former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan by less than a 3-2 margin in the Sept. 10 primary.

If the primary had been held at the time the survey was concluded and if 320,000 Republicans had gone to the pools, the returns would have been about 130,000 for Sargent and 100,000 for Sheehan.

That would indicate that Governor Sargent faces a tough, uphill fight in the November election.

An upset victory for Sheehan is improbable but not impossible. Sheehan appeared to be gaining during the poll,nand Sargent definitely was running scared.

At the start of the poll, the straw vote showed Sargent leading Sheehan by about 20 per cent. When that phase of the poll ended, Sargent's advantage appeared to have dropped to about 14 or 15 per cent.

Governor Sargent is taking a calculated risk in this contest. He is looking beyond the September primary to the November election and is directing his campaign messages to liberal Republicans and to Independents and moderate Democrats, almost all of whom will not vote in the Republican primary.

Mr. Sargent's campaign strategy has tended to alienate further the conservative Republicans and to consolidate them behind Carroll Sheehan.

The outcome of the battle between Sargent and Sheehan could hinge on the size of the Republican turnout on Sept. 10. The larger it is, the better Sargent's chances will be. The smaller it is, the brighter Sheehan's hopes will be.

Sheehan is predicting a small turnout of about 207,000 Republican voters in the primary. The GOP conservative wing obviously would make a stronger impact if the GOP vote is only about 200,000 or just slightly higher.

This observer believes that at least 230,000 Republicans and possibly as many as 250,000 will go to their polling places to cast ballots Sept. 10. As the turnout goes up, so does Sarge's percentage of the vote total.

The conservative Republicans comprise a hard core of the GOP in Massachusetts. However, they are in the minority. They make their weight felt when they vote and the more liberal Republicans fail to do so.

It appears that public interest is higher than usual in the Republican primary contests for the GOP nominations for Governor and Attorney General.

In all the years this writer has been covering politics no incumbent Republican Governor ever has been challenged as vigorously within his own party as is Francis Sargent today.

At the outset of the primary campaign this agent considered that a primary victory by Carroll Sheehan was not within the realm of political possibility.

That hard opinion that Sheehan was certain of defeat has gradually softened. Sargent is a heavy favorite and should win. Sheehan is a definite underdog and should lose. But it is a political possibility that he might execute a spectacular upset on the night of Sept. 10.

However, the odds are heavily against him. He would have to come from behind to won, and he does not have the money to finance the kind of campaign he must put on to win. Approximately $50,000 stands between Carroll Sheehan and possible political fame and glory.

Strong evidence of how a candiate feels he is doing in a promary or election race is provided by his own actions. A contender wmo thinks he is losing invariably challenges his winning opponent to a debate in the hope that his adversary will lose some support by refusing to debate or—if he accepts the challenge—will commit some fatal blunder during the debate.

Sheehan, understandably earlier was challenging Sargent to a debate. Sargent, until recently, when the fight tightened up, has just as understandably, has no intention of giving Sheehan the exposure he would receive from such a confrontation.

Sarge was candid about it when he was pressed on the matter. "I'm the Governor, and I'm not going to debate Carroll Sheehan," he declared. Then he changed his mind.

On the Democratic side, former State Repgesentative Michael Dukakis, who originally obtained an agreement with Attorney General Robert Quinn that they would not criticize or attack each other, recently has been challenging Quinn to a debate.

Quinn insists he would like nothing better than to debate Dukakis but that he just hasn't been able to work such a meeting into his schedule.

What candidates are able to work into their schedules usually depend on who appears to be winning and who seems to be losing.

Former federal crime buster Edward F. Harrington of Needham approached Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy at a Democratic unity meeting and challenged him to a debate. Bellotti declined. That ended what little unity, if any, had existed.

Other candidates in that Democratic Attorney General fight, incidentally, are former Representative George L. Sacco of Medford, Governor's Councillor Edward M. O'Brien of Easthampton, Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon of Braintree and Somerville Mayor S. Lester Ralph.

Poll gives Quinn lead over Dukakis

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn appears to be leading former State Representative Michael S. Dukakis by about 10 per cent in their contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

A poll taken to determine the standing of the two Democratic gubernatorial contenders produced returns which fluctuated in various sections of the state and among voters of different ethnic origins.

Quinn ran ahead of Dukakis almost everywhere the survey was made, but his advantage over Dukakis varied from eight to 12 per cent.

Attorney General Quinn made his strongest showings in areas where there were Catholic voters of Irish and Italian origin.

While neither Quinn nor Dukakis has made what this observer would consider a good campaign, many of the voters questioned seemed to be aware of at least some of the issues on which Quinn and Dukakis disagree. However, some asked where the two men stand on important questions.

One of the matters on which they differ is abortion. Quinn favors the adoption of a Constitutional Amendment to outlaw abortion. Dukakis opposes such an action. Dukakis says he would not support an amendment to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Both Quinn and Duakais served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Dukakis voted for the Racial Imbalance Law. Quinn voted against it.

Quinn has opposed the forced busing of school children. Dukakis offered an alternative proposal—a community control plan which would divide Boston into 11 or 12 school districts. Dukakis announced his plan last spring, but it received little support.

Dukakis and Quinn both served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Quinn was first elected to the body in 1956, Dukakis six years later in 1962. Quinn became Majority Whip, Majority Leader and finally speaker and presiding officer of the 240-member House.

Quinn was serving as Speaker of the House when Elliot L. Richardson resigned from the position of Attorney General to become Assistant Secretary of State.

He was appointed by the Legislature to be Attorney General at the start of 1969 and in 1970 was elected to the office by the voters.

Quinn has been campaigning on his record as a member of the House, as Speaker of that body and as Attorney General. He places considerable stress upon his work against organized crime and the steps he has taken for the protection of consumers.

Dukakis joined a small group of liberals in the House upon his election to the body. He frequently votes against the Democratic leadership. He is generally considered the "father" of the present no-fault automobile insurance system.

Ex-Representative Dukakis gave up his House seat four years ago to make a bid for election as Lieutenant Governor. He won the Democratic nomination but was defeated in the final election.

Quinn is generally rated a favorite over Dukakis. He is being supported by a number of Democratic leaders, among them House Speaker David M. Bartley and State Senate President Kevin Harrington.

Congressman Michael Harrington, a cousin of Senate President Harrington, is backing Dukakis.

Two young Democrats in uphill struggles

Two young Democrats, one the son of a former Governor, are making tough, uphill primary campaigns against strongly entrenched Democratic office-holders.

They are Mark Furcolo, son of former Governor Foster Furcolo, and Representative Paul H. Guzzi of Newton, son of a former Alderman in that city and a Harvard graduate.

Furcolo is opposing State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, one of the strongest of the elected state officials.

Guzzi is challenging Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren, a former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Both Furcolo and Guzzi are underdogs in their contests. Neither has much chance of finding a political rainbow at the end of a rugged trail. A victory for either would be an upset.

Close race for GOP Atty. Gen. nomination

The three candidates for the Republican nomination for Attorney General seem to be coming down to the wire in a close race.

In alphabetical order, they are Charles C. Cabot of Dover, William I. Cowin of Newton, and Josiah Spaulding of Manchester.

Spaulding id the only one of the three who previously has made a state-wide campaign. He was the Republican nominee against Senator Edward M. Kennedy in the 1970 election.

A former chairman of the Republican State Committee, Spaulding defeated conservative John J. McCarthy of Chatham in the 1970 GOP primary.

Cowin was Secretary of Administration and Finance in Governor Sargent's Cabinet, a position which carries with it the unofficial and informal title of Deputy Governor. Some Sargent supporters are also backing him.

Before joining the Sargent administration, Cowin worked at Boston City Hall under Mayro Kevin H. White. His first job in the Sargent regeme was chairman of the State Public Utilities Commission.

Cabot is a Selectman in Dover and chairman of the State's Outdoor Advertising Board, in which capacity he has done an exceptional job. He is an active and highly respected practising attorney.

All three are attractive candidates. Any one of the three would be an asset to the Republican State Ticket.

Need better care for mentally ill patients

One of the most sacred trusts vested with the state government is to take proper care of mentally ill and retarded persons who are unable to care for themselves.

A recent report by six legislators indicated that at times the fulfillment of this serious responsibility leaves something to be desired and that the supervision of mentally sick patients is not always as close and careful as it should be.

The report of the six lawmakers, after a study of the death of a 19-year-old boy at the Danvers State Hospital, where his body was undiscovered for three days last fall, has produced some improvements in the care provided for mental patients.

But Representative John G. King of Danvers declares that provisions for the safety of mentally ill patients at the Danvers Sate Hospital are still inadequate. That is an extremely serious allegation by a responsible legislator.

During the past three years 11 patients reported missing from state mental institutions later were found dead. Most of the deaths are listed in the records as suicides. Some of those deaths may have been accidental. It's difficult to be certain in some cases because of the mentality of the persons involved.

Richard Cunningham, 19, was a night patient at the Danvers State Hospital and a day patient at the nearby Hogan Regional Center for the Retarded. He had been hospitalized almost continuously since he was three years old.

The records listed Richard as retarded but contained the unusual notation that he was "very bright when he wanted to be." Exactly what that meant was not clear.

Richard did not like to be secluded. His condition seemed to improve when he was moved from a smaller to a larger room.

He "escaped" or ran away 13 times. The legislators referred to his disappearances as "escapes." They might more properly be described as "run-aways." He was punished by being put in seclusion which apparently did more harm than good because he was so averse to being isolated.

On several occasions while in seclusion he broke or attempted to break the gratings and vents in the heating system, presumably so he could get away.

At 11:45 on the morning of Nov 24, 1973, he was found sitting on the floor crying in a ward of the Danvers State Hospital. When a ward check was made an hour later, the boy was missing.

Almost exactly three days later, an attendant mentioned that a 13-inch-by-9½-inch grating had been removed from a heating duct. The director of nurses went immediately to the duct with the attendant, and they found the body of Richard Cunningham in it.

The removed grating was clearly visible. It was known that Richard had entered such ducts on numerous previous occasions. Yet, no one searched the duct for three days after the youth's disappearance.

Many dedicated men and women work in the mental hospitals maintained by the state. They are confronted with difficult problems, and often they give more of themselves than could reasonably be expected.

Silver Lake

Dear Editor:

I have read E. Siegel's article "Silver Lake has been disappearing for 40 years," and I wish to add the following as information and amplification.

The primary fact is, that the Cedrone family is not a neighbor to the lake, but the owners of the remaining portion. Th basic point being that from early times, it was owned by the various properties along both the Adams Street and Nevada Street areas that border it. This is established on city maps.

I anticipated the Hatch Act and wrote to both city and state governments in 1930 asking that some system of care be set up to preserve the Silver Lake of that time. It was extensive. Blue heron and other water birds visited, while mallards regularly nested and eared ducklings.

The replies were that the lake did not come under the "great pond" statute, and as it was totally owned by abutters, there was nothing to be done. Subsequently, sporadic and unsupervised filling started as it suited the various owners.

Only due to our constant vigilance have we been successful through the years in retaining the small portion that remains, and this is our immediate property. Had we not persisted through the years in fighting off the constat encroachments, the now misnamed Silver Lake would no longer exist.

As all the other abutters have seen fit to fill in their portions and use the resulting land areas for buildings and various other commercial purposes, we are firm in the conviction that our own portion, regarded bu us as valuable, is an integral part of our family property and should remain so.

It is an "open space" maintained by us with sheer willpower, and neither is it suited for a public park, in its present setting amongst warehouses, nor do we wish it to be so.

There are open spaces near, such as the Hawthorn Playground, open space at the Carr School, the areas at the Horace Mann School between Watertown Street and Craft Street, as well as the Charles River area nearby on California Street.

The interest of the Committee for Open Space is misplaced in this instance. The Cedrone family wishes to retain it in its status of private property and not as a park.

Peabody Camp a rewarding venture

Dear Editor:

These past six weeks I had the unique and rewarding experience of being a volunteer at the Peabody Camp which was held at Bowen Eelementary School in Newton.

I wonder how many people know about this fun-filled program and the enthusiastic staff who made it possible. From 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily, retarded children in the Newton area were able to go on numerous trips and have arts and crafts, swimming and cooking activities. What a thrill it was to see these children splash in the water at Crystal Lake, make and eat their own pizza.

I really feel privileged to have participated in this program. It is refreshing to know how interested and helpful the Newton Park and Recreational Department is, and also that there are dedicated and caring people like Eleanor Weiner (director of the camp) and her tireless staff of high school and college students.

I hope that in the years ahead, this summer program will continue and grow. Certainly, the joys and pleasures derived by the campers and staff alike, make such a camp a credit to the city o Newton and its citizens.

Newton Savings Bank is now
MUTUAL BANK FOR SAVINGS

The name "Newton Savings Bank" has served us well for more than 100 years. But "Newton Savings Bank" no longer adequately describes us. We started in Newton in 1829, but because you've liked our way of doing business, we've grown. We now have offices in Needham, Waltham and Wellesley in addition to the Newtons. But more important, we're a Mutual Savings Bank. And proud of it. It just makes good sense to tell people about it. So we're changing our name. Newton Savings Bank is now MUTUAL BANK FOR SAVINGS.

The word mutual has a very special meaning. Mutual means that our only purpose is to serve our customers and our community. Not our stockholders, because we don't have any stockholders.

We've kept everything that you liked about Newton Savings Bank. The same friendly tellers, the same eight neighborly offices, and we're still dedicated to saving, lending, insuring and helping your town and money grow. Because our customers make up our strength, we're now bigger and stronger than ever.

Our new name MUTUAL BANK FOR SAVINGS describes not only what we are, but the way we serve you.

What's in a name? Now you know.

MUTUAL BANK FOR SAVINGS

You can still call us Newton Savings Bank till you get used to our new name.

Thibault, Rufo vying for spot on retirement board

Raymond J. Thibault, a 27-year veteran of the Newton Police Department has announced his candidacy for re-election as the employee representative of the Newton State Retirement System.

He is being opposed for the position by Louis J. Rufo, Newton Street Department employee and president of the city workers union, Local 800.

The employee representative, by law is elected by all members of the Newton Retirement System to serve for a three-year term. A board acts on all request for retirement. Other members of the board include Ernest Angevine, chairman, appointed by law by other two members of the board, and Lawrence H. Marino, comptroller, ex-officio.

Thibault was born in North Attleboro, Mass., and moved to Newton at an early age. Upon graduation from Newton High School he saw service with the U.S. Army Infantry during World War II, entering as a private and being discharged as a first sergeant. While in the Army, Thibault attended the U.S. Army School of Administration at Fort Devens, Mass. He served in the European Theatre and earned the Infantry Man's Badge and was awarded both the Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

Following his discharge, Thibault entered police service with the Newton Police Department and was assigned at first to patrol duties. He was later assigned as ambulance driver and then as night desk clerk at Headquarters. Subsequently, Chief William F. Quinn, upon being elevated to the chief's office, appointed Thibault his administrative aide.

In his present function, he has represented Chief Quinn in directing Police Department fund-raising for such charities as: Heart Fund, Cancer, Muscular Dystrophy, Jimmy Fund, Salvation Army, easter Seals, American Jewish Hospitals.

Thibault's education since high school and Army service has included courses at the University of Michigan, St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, Gllassboro, New Jersey (Police-Community Relations Studies), and Judge Baker Guidance Center for the Studies of Youth Problems.

In addition to his studies in the police-community relations field at St. John's and Glassboro, he was a member of the planning committee for programming at both schools, and staff member of the New England Police-Community Relations Institute held at Newton College of the Sacred Heart. Currently, he is enrolled in the law enforcement development program at Boston College.

Thibault is presently a member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, treasurer of the Newton Police Memorial Association, treasurer of the Newton Branch of the Massachusetts Police Association Union (a collective bargaining unit for police officers), and formerly served on the board of directors of Elizabeth Seton High School in Wellesley. He is also a notary public.

He is married to the former Geneva Dinitte of Newton Highlands and they are the parents of: Ray, Jr. a student at Boston College, Kenneth G., graduate of Xaverian Brothrrs High School, Westwood, and Janice M., a student at Newton North High School.

The election for the Retirement Board position will be held in the Newton City Hall Cafeteria on August 30, 1974, from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

School of Nursing classes start Sept. 3

The Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing's freshman class is beginning orientation procedures. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 3 for 82 students who will graduate in 1976, the same year the Boston area celebrates its bicentennial anniversary.

The freshman class is a diversified mixture of students. Fifty percent of the class is over 21, and of this group, 20 already hold degrees. Two have associate degrees, 16 have bachelor's degrees and two hold master's degress.

Eight of the 16 bachelor's degrees are in the sociology or psychology fields and the master's degrees are in English and biochemistry.

The class of '76 is composed of seven men and 75 women, ranging from a 16-year-old woman who completed high chool in three years to a 45-year-old man. The youngest man in the class is 18 and comes to the School of Nursing directly from high school.

One of the men in the class has a master's degree, and two others hold bachelor's degrees, one of which is a B.A. in psychology, and the other is a B.S. in biology. These two have already been employed at N-W-H, one as an orderly and one as an inhalation therapist.

Two of the women in the class of '76 also have been employees of the hospital. One has been working in the pathology laboratory, and the other in medical records. There are four LPN's (licensed practical nurses) in the class, three women and one man.

Two members of the nursing school's freshman class have served in the armed forces. One man mas a medic in the Navy, and a woman was a recruiter for the WAC's.

Several of the women in the class are married and have children of varying ages, and one of the married men also has a family.

Kay Delaney, coordinator of admissions for the nursing school, cites three main reasons for the nursing school's attraction for such a diversified group. "The weak economy has undoubtedly attracted many people to the profession because there's always a big demand for nurses. Also, many college graduates have found that their degrees are ineffectual in our present economy.

"In addition, nursing attracts some people because of previous exposure to hospitals - weekend jobs, summer employment, volunteer programs," Mrs. Delaney says.

Orientation for the class of '76 began Monday, August 26.

Joining in the meeting, to be held at the Red Coach Inn in Newton's Gateway Center on Tuesday, Sept. 3, at 8 p.m., will be representatives from Cambridge, Framingham, Lexington, Medford and other communities in Middlesex County.

For the first time a countrywide group will be asked to consider a coalition of citizens which will collaborate and work cooperatively on their common concerns for equitable treatment in all areas of community affairs in the county and Commonwealth.

"In this election year, with critical unemployment or underemployment of blacks in the county and Commonwealth, we are exttremely concerned about the lack of equity in the county and state governments," Hampton said.

DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX
"Make Friends"

The older one gets the more need one has to have friends. My father, 89, has many friends in his Rest Home in Topeka, Kansas, and when I visit him he enjoys introducing me to his friends on his floor and in the dining room. Older people benefit greatly from having friends.

So do younger people. One of the conflicts between parents and their children is over the kids' friends. Parents are too forrever trying to limit their children's friends . . . based on the parents' conception of what another person "ought" to be. So if the little kid always has a dirty face . . . and your little kid is always "mother-kept-clean," . . . the other little kid isn't eligible to become your little kid's friend. The same principle applies in the teens. I remember how I fought off the "black leather jacket motorcycle guys" from my sweet . . lovely . . pure teen-age daughters. Some of those guys are now young successful teachers . . . business men . . . one is a doctor. Get the idea? We parents aren't gods. Let's quit trying to play god in choosing the friends we think our children should have. It's hard enough to make friends without having the added parental "ball and chain" aound our legs.

But the most difficult period is not the young and the old . . . it's the middle years where it's difficult to make friends. Often because parents placed such heavy restrictions, people in their 30's . . . 40's . . . 50's are almost friendless . . . with seldom a visitor . . . seldom an invitation . . . just sit there alone . . . watching television . . . turned in to themselves. No friends. Don't know how to begin . . . fearful to try. Let me make these suggestions.

First . . . Be open with people. Show an interest in the person you want as a friend . . . which may be anyone you meet on your street . . . in your apartment complex . . . at work. Don't be reluctant to open conversation with another person . . . you're no more likely to be attacked if you're friendly than if you're cold to people . . . maybe less. I once read of an older couple who received a letter from a man they had picked up on the road. The letter read . . . "look under the back seat of your car . . . you'll find my gun. I was going to rob you . . . but you were so kind to me and showed such interest in me that I changed my mind." Talk with the other person . . . be complimentary . . about his tie . . . his dog . . . his car . . . her suntan . . . her handling of her children . . . the way she's doing her job. Be open. Listen to the messages that are given back to you. He-she may be just as much in need of friends as you are.

Secondly . . . don't place narrow limits on who can be your friend. If you have a lot of prejudices (brought over from childhood or wherever) get rid of them. No Protestants . . . no Catholics . . . no Jews . . . no blacks . . . no poor . . . no rich kids . . . you've now cut out almost all of us who might be your friend.

Thirdly . . . Be sensistive to the needs of other people, regardless who he-she is or does for a living. The plumber has needs which his banker friend may be able to meet. Plumbers have human needs . . for talking . . . for sharing problems . . . for going out together with their wives . . . just the same as the banker. Whatever the needs of another person we are friends when we meet each other's human needs.

Recognize that all people don't know how to return friendly gestures . . . so don't make rejection personally. Most people are afraid to be a friend . . . you'll have to help him-her to break through that fear. But . . . what a friend you've made if you succeed.

Revenues from tourism were up 6.4 per cent for the year, with a total of 509,707 visitors arriving last year compared with 479,256 in 1972. Of last year's total, 91,453 were cruise ship passengers.

Nearly 2 per cent U.S. veterans are women

Women comprise 1.9 per cent of the U.S. veteran population. Of the 551,000 female veterans of the armed forces, 103,000 are Vietnam era veterans, the Veterans Administration reported today.

About 12,000 have entered civil life during the past year.

The total number includes 303,000 World War II veterans, 74,000 from the Korean Conflict, 14,000 from World War I and the Spanish-American War, and 57,000 who were in service between the end of the Korean Conflict and the beginning of the Vietnam era.

In Massachusetts, according to Boston VA Director William F. Connors, there are more than 5,000 post-Korean Conflict female veterans. Of these, 3,000 served during the Vietnam era, Connors said.

Nationally, about 494,000 served during wartime periods; 426,000 are married, and 55,000 are heads of households. By age, the largest grouping (128,000) is in the 50 to 54 years range.

There are about 9,000 Army and 5,000 Navy (including Marine Corps) women veterans of World War I and the Spanish-American War.

Q — Does the Veterans Administration, which advocates hiring veterans, practice what it preaches?

A — It certainly does. More than 82 per cent of the nation's 87,000 fulltime male employees are veterans — more than 20 per cent of them Vietnam-era veterans.

CPPAX endorses Clough, Buckley

Citizens for Participation in Political Action, an independent government reform organization, has announced its endorsement of Charles I. Clough, a Democrat, for Middlesex County Commissioner and Replican incumbent John J. Buckley for reelection as County Sheriff.

CPPAX endorsement was based on a mail poll of the groups' 1100 members who reside in Middlesex County. Both Clough and Buckley were named on more than 90 percent of the member ballots.

In a statement announcing the endorsement, CPPAX stated, "The election of Chuck Clugh and John Buckley is necessary to complete the task of county reform. Both men stand far above their competition in their ability and desire to continue the job begun in the last two years."

"Clough is a recognized expert in county government and one of the leaders in the citizens' movement to cut back patronage and waste while improving the delivery of public services. As a founder of Citizens for Middlesex County in 1971, he led a campaign to build awareness of county mismanagement and then organized the Middlesex County Convention which selected the reform slate of S. Lester Ralph and Paul Tsongas who went on to defeat two of the incumbent commissioners.

"Clough's opponent in the primary, John Danehy,is the sole holdover from the administration which made the construction of the East Cambridge Courthouse a national symbol of waste and incompetence. During the last two years, Danehy has worked against the efforts of the two reform commissioners to cut patronage, abolish useless agencies, and transfer inefficient county functions to appropriate state agencies.

"John Buckley's reelection is similarly crucial. In his four years as sheriff, he has turned the Middlesex County law enforcement system into one of the most progressive in the country. His sponsorship of landmark legislation in the fields of penal reform, alcoholism, and drug addiction. On his record, Sheriff John Buckley merits a second term."

CPPAX is a 3000-member Massachusetts-based organization of issue- and action-oriented citizens who are directly engaged in a variety of legislative, electoral and community activities.

Watch out for children as schools reopen

According to the Newton Police Department, back to school means many things.

It means: Thousands of children using sidewalks and crossing streets.

It means: A dramatic increase in the number of bicycles from the fourth to the 12th grades coming to schools.

It means: Thousands of children walking to bus stops and waiting for buses.

It means: Approximately forty school buses making hundreds of trips to accommodate our children.

It means: Forty school buses stopping with lights flashing to board or discharge children.

It means: That when anyone of the forty buses are stopped, with lights flashing, all traffic must stop.

It means: All drivers must exercise caution for children crossing streets, crossing to a school bus, crossing in front of a school bus when alighting; it means cyclists making legal left turns; it means cyclists legally sharing our streets.

It means: A good community if we share our streets and yield the right of way whenever it is indicated.

Above all, it means make our streets safe.

Police and Registry to emphasize bus safety

The Massachusetts State Police, the Registry of Motor Vehicles, and Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department have announced that, during the month of September, their enforcement agencies will concentrate on all phases of school bus safety. A cooperative effort towards increased enforcement of all laws and regulations relating to the transportation of children in the school bus is planned.

Many complaints have been received from citizens from all areas of the Commonwealth of school bus violations, a great many of them citing the driver who fails to stop for the flashing lights of the bus.

One of the main objectives of this new program, is to bring about an awareness on the part of the motoring public (the commuter), the school bus driver, the police, and the educator. An all out effort on the part of everyone concerned, cannot help but bring safer school days for children throughout the Commonwealth.

All available State Police patrols will be alerted to pay specific attention to school buses on all highways or wherever a violation may be observed.

Safety Officer Roy Fairweather will coordinate the effort between the different agencies.

The Newton Free Library is circulating membership cards. There are two membership cards for each institution and they will be on loan for seven-day periods and will be subject to the regulations for seven-day materials - no renewals, five cents fine for each day overdue - in addition, no reserves will be taken.

These membership cars permit the bearer free admission to an institution, admission to special members' rooms and discounts on purchases. These cards will be available at the circulation desk of the Main Library.

The cards are from the Smithsonian, Washington, D.C.; Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; National Wildlife Federation, Washington, D.C.; Massachusetts Audubon Society; American Museum of Natural History, Washington, D.C. and the Wilderness Society.

Main Library hours are 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Friday, closed Saturday and Sunday through Sept. 2.

Volunteers sought

Recruitment has again started for the mother-child home program sponsored by Family Counseling Service (Region West).

The project, supported by federal and state grants, has reportedly been recognized by the American Institutes for Research in the Behavioral Scciences as one of the model pre-school programs in the country.

Volunteers are needed for a weekly commitment as home visitors under proressional staff supervision. They will visit the homes of mothers and their 2-and-e-year-olds to demonstrate the use of play materials and books. The main purpose of the program is to help mothers and their small children talk with each other about things both can enjoy in order to enhance the intellectual growth of the child.

There are opportunities for visiting Spanish-speaking and French-speaking families as well as those who speak English.

Training workshops led by professional staff will be starting in late September. To arrange an interview with staff and for further information, people may call Diana Franklin, Jennifer Coplon or Eva Tomlinson at 965-6200.

Land use says yes to day care

Ms. Newman said that question might have to be part of renewed discussion between the college and the Chestnut Hill Association.

McDonnell moved that the population of the center be set at 44 students, four of whom would be low income children not connected to B.C. He added that tuition and transportation would be provided for these four children. The motion was defeated, 4-3.

Lipof said that he would not vote for the day care center until he had seen a master plan of Boston College's plans for Newton. Lipof noted that B.C. is now negotiating with the Chestnut Hill Motel to use that facility for dormitory space. He said also that he wants to see B.C.'s plan for use of its recently acquired Newton College site.

In relation to the day care center, Lipof remarked that, "I think the neighbors have been coerced to the point where they are willing to settle."

Ms. Kasman responded that the day care facility has been viewed from a "limited perspective." She said that it seemed reasonable if limited to B.C. people and a limited population.

After Alderman Alan Barkin and Lipof again expressed interest in B.C.'s overall plans, Alderman Michael Antonellis said that "it has been indicated that the future of the private university today is so uncertain that its impossible to make commitments."

In response to the question of whether B.C. should provide space for low income children, Antonellis said that "I don't think we can accuse the university of slighting the underprivileged." He noted that universities make large expenditures in scholarships to needy students.

Alderman Matthew Jefferson was distressed about the compromise reached between B.C. and the Chestnut Hill Association. He said he believed they "had a narrow view.

"For every day care or nursery school, we have asked if they would contribute a number of scholarships," Jefferson commented. "This is a large institution; I can't see any reason for giving (the day care center) to B.C. without a stipulation."

Alderman Richard McGrath expressed agreement with Jefferson. "I will not support this unless a percentage (of low income children) is in there," McGrath remarked.

Freeto said just prior to the vote on the compromise proposal reached by B.C. and the Chestnut Hill Association that he did not want the aldermen "to feel that B.C. is averse to low income people.

The committee approved a facility of no more than 40 children at any one time by a 4-3 vote. Jefferson, Lipof and McGrath cast dissenting votes. Both McDonnell and Barkin, who voted in favor, said that they may argue about the day care center before the full Board of Aldermen.

The committee approved a petition from the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) requesting permission to revise site and grading plans for 50 dwelling units and community building on Hamlet Street by a 5-2 vote.

Lipof asked initially that action be delayed until the committee received a complete site plan. Lipof noted that there has to be a Hatch Act hearing on the property which may cause changes in the site plan.

McDonnell asked the committee if it wanted to impose conditions on NCDF. Two matters which concerned the committee were the possibility of NCDF acquiring land through eminent domain and its apparent desire to pay 15 per cent of its gross rentals to the state in lieu of city real estate taxes. The money paid to the state would theoretically be refunded to the city.

Lipof pointed out that NCDF initially said it would pay taxes like other corporations. He added that "to give them eminent domain rights would scare the entire neighborhood."

McDonnell asked if NCDF could become a corporation which could take land by eminent domain. City Planner Charles Thomas offered the opinion that "if they had the tax provision, they could not exercise eminent domain."

NCDF spokesman Marc Slotnick said that "our application is for tax provision; we have no intention of eminent domain."

McDonnell proposed that no statutory eminent domain powers be granted to the NCDF without the approval of the Board of Aldermen. This was approved by the committee 5-2.

Barkin asked about why NCDF wanted a 15 per cent tax provision. Slotnick replied that it is "not feasible to have moderate mixed income housing without a tax arrangement which which (state Chapter) 121 A allows."

McDonnell added that "the state is imposing the condition on them that they seek this kind of relief."

Barkin made a motion to deny NCDF's petition and it was defeated 4-3. After McDonnell's eminent domain motion was approved, the committee voted in favor of the petition, 5-2, with Barkin and Antonellis dissenting.

The committee approved Lasell Junior College's petition requesting permissive use for a student center at 220 Woodland Rd. by a 6-0 vote.

On one recent outing, a group of five accompanied Mrs. Rosenfeld to Gloucester to visit Helene Dorn, painter Celia Eldridge Finberg and Erma Wheeler.

The most striking thing these three artists had to offer the group was not really what they had to say but was the opportunity for these few members of the public to see how much a part of their lives art really is.

Ms. Dorne, in a small house in residential Gloucester, is at home among her beach glass. It is inside her small, light studio, carefully arranged in trays according to color. It is in her unfinished works of art in the studio, carefully selected pieces and shapes mounted to make hanging, translucent mosaics, candle screens, stained glass windows.

But more than that, in thus house where all the walls are painted white, the beach glass adds its special touch of color to every room. It is on the table for sorting in the living room, or on the floor sorted onto yet another tray. It is part of the artist.

Ms. Finberg, in a wharf-side loft in Gloucester, has the simple light environment too. Her paintings are towering oils, a departure from her earliest works in pen and ink or her current work in print making.

Ms. Wheeler has a restored home in Annisquam, her antiques making the most striking contrast with her bold, free-form watercolors.

"The key," Mrs. Rosenfeld, putting the program's goal again into a one sentance summation, "is to take people where they cannot ordinarily go."

"These are adventures in creative leisure."

The fall program will also be offered on four Tuesdays and four Wednewdays. Groups are limited to no more than 15 people per trip. M—R Communications can be reached at 329-9583.

McDonald's

Out of the McDonald petition arose a proposed ordinance, patterned after a similar law in Cambridge, that will allow the entry of fast-order and automobile-oriented food establishments into Newton only by special permission of the Board of Aldermen.

This proposed ordinance is to be heard by the Land Use Committee of the oard on the same night as the Building Laws Board of Appeals meeting, Sept. 9.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

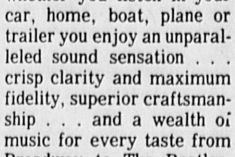
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

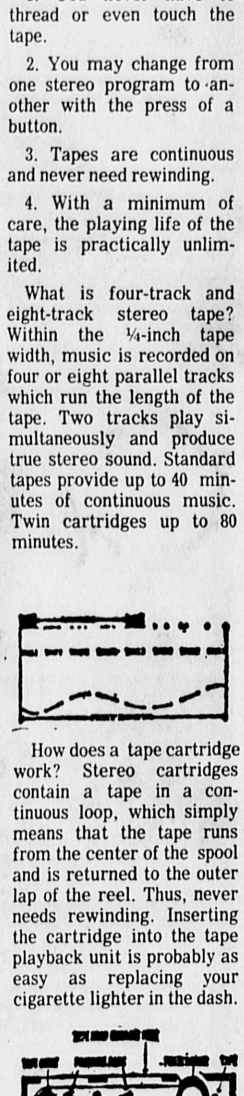
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Question: Would any of your readers have a recipe for Spanish Sauce to be used with an Omelet? Thank you.

M. K.

Answer: Not only do we have the sauce, but the omelet recipe too!

SPANISH OMELET

Omelet:
4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup water
Spanish Sauce:
¼ cup sliced onions
½ green pepper, cut in strips
½ red pepper, cut in strips
2 tablespoons butter
2 cans (8 oz. ea.) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 clove garlic

To prepare omelet: Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Separate eggs. Add pepper to yolks and beat until thick and lemon colored. Add salt and water to whites and beat until stiff and shiny and whites have peaks when beater is withdrawn. Fold yolks carefully into whites; heat butter in omelet pan which is hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in omelet mixture; level surface gently. Cook slowly on top of range until puffy and lightly browned on bottom, about 5 minutes. Lift omelet at edge to judge color. Bake 12-15 minutes in 325 degree oven until knife inserted in center comes out clean. To serve, fold omelet in half. Makes 2 servings.

TO PREPARE SPANISH SAUCE: Cook onion and green and red pepper in butter until tender but not browned. Stir in tomato sauce and seasonings. Cook over low heat for 10 to 15 minutes. Serve over omelet and pass additional sauce if desired.

Question: We have a plum tree and would like to have an easy recipe for making a plum jam that does not require pectin of any kind. Thanks.

Mrs. P. N., Roslindale

Answer: If your plum harvest is abundant you'll want to put up many jars of the following conserve:

PLUM CONSERVE

2 pounds Italian plums
1 cup raisins
1 medium orange
3 cup sugar
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Pit the plums. Grind plums, raisins, and the orange. In an 8-10 qt. kettle or Dutch oven combine the ground fruit. Stir in the sugar. Bring mixture to full rolling boil. Cook, uncovered, till thick, about 10 minutes. Stir in the coarsely chopped walnuts. Remove from heat; quickly skim off foam with metal spoon. Pour at once into hot sterilized jars. Seal. Makes 6 half pints.

Question: We recently bought a home and find that two apple trees on our land are bearing quite heavily. Can you provide me with a recipe I cannot find in any of my recipe books, for individual apple cobblers? I know it's an old fashioned type recipe and hope you can help me. Thank you.

Mrs. S. M., Dedham

Answer: Congratulations on your good fortune! I found your recipe among a group of recipes from the Apple Kitchen, a service of the International Apple Institute.

INDIVIDUAL APPLE COBBLERS

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup water
4 cups thinly sliced summer apples
3 cups biscuit mix

Combine sugar, flour, salt, spices and water; mix well. Add apples; blend well. Cook over low heat, stirring often until apples are tender and syrup thickened so that mixture resembles pie filling. Prepare biscuit mix as directed on package; divide in half. Roll ½ dough to ⅛ inch thickness; use to line four 6-inch pie pans. Flute or crimp edges. Fill pans with hot apple mixture. Dot with butter. Roll out remaining biscuit dough about ½-inch thick, cut with 1 inch cutter. Place 4 biscuits on top of each filled pie pan. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 minutes. Makes 4 individual cobblers 6 inches in diameter.

Mrs. E. R., Canton writes: "I'll bet the idea of making a Yam Banana Pudding seems strange to most people, but in a recent vacation with relatives in the Midwest, a neighbor brought in this dessert and it was so delicious we just had to bring the recipe East. So here it is and I hope you and your readers enjoy it as we do."

YAM BANANA PUDDING

2 cups mashed cooked yams
1 cup mashed banana
one-third cup light brown sugar
¼ cup melted margarine
½ cup milk
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
½ cup orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
4 eggs, separated

In large bowl combine potatoes, banana, sugar, margarine, milk, sour cream, salt, pumpkin spice and egg yolks. In small bowl beat egg whites until stiff and fold into sweet potato mixture. Pour into greased 2-quart baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for 1¼ hours. Serve as is or with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream. Serves 8.

The bells are ringing

By RUTH LENSON

Look at the calendar. The school bells will be ringing-precipitated by the ringing of cash registers across the country as mothers purchase back-to-school wardrobes for their children.

Most children will go to school looking as fashionable as their older sisters and brothers . . . no longer the docile child who is told by mother what to wear. Children have gotten into the act and know exactly what's new in fashions.

For example sweater sets for children—they come in as many varieties as adult styles. From the colorful Nordic patterns done in the reds, blues and heather tones, turtlenecks over which matching V-necked patterned vests may be pulled.

Plaids for children promise to be as popular as ever—rich reds, oranges, yellows, blues and earth tones. The layered look is seen everywhere in pieces or one-part pseudo layers, in checks, stripes, dots, geometrics and figures.

Reminiscent of the pacifying blanket that tots would drag around, they still love the soft touch in fabrics. And so the preference for plushy pile raincoats, sweaters that look and feel like cuddly, fuzzy kittens and fake fur coat collars that offer good looks as well as protection from the elements.

Also present in outerwear, luscious leather and soft suede that give fall fashions that back-to-nature touch. The new interest in pantcoats is in details, including grommets, nailheads, lacing and leather (or pseudo leather) trimmings on melton or denim fabrics.

Today children's wear manufacturers are turning out handsome western looks and smart interpretations of the classics in practical cotton and synthetic blends and fashionable wool flannels, wool mohairs and wool blends.

Well aware that mothers will not tolerate shoddy workmanship or fabrics, textile engineers are as unrelenting on quality control as kids are on clothes. Fabrics are "torture-tested" to withstand even the most severe punishment a kid can perpetrate. Polyester with cotton or nylon fibres lock-in extra strength. In addition, many manufacturers add special patented processes of their own—to reinforce wear-areas and to insure that once over lightly with the iron will suffice.

No newcomer in the children's market, corduroy has long been the fabric kids love to wear and this year will be no exception with the endless array of new colors and patterns available to spice their wardrobes. Not only in plaids that "sing" but florals and bright whimsical patterns to brighten up the schoolroom the entire year.

High school and college students will be heading back to campus in clothes that are unique to the individual's lifestyle.

Those who shun the classics and consider wearing shoes a great concession to the older generation, will show up in their well worn denims and sneakers, while others will wear clothes that range from casual and sporty to classic and sophisticated.

According to Chip Tolbert, Fashion Director of the Men's Fashion Association, classrooms around the country will be filled with boys wearing a wide variety of fashions that range from dress jeans embellished with studs, rhinestones and hand-appliques to sport slacks in natty donegal tweeds, wool blend plaids, herringbones and checks, plus other fabrics and patterns too numerous to mention.

"There has been a gradual decrease in the degree of fashion conformity," states Chip. "The result has been the demolition of the generation gap in fashion and a new freedom that allows youth to wear what best fulfills their own needs and forms of expression."

No longer is it necessary for a young man to look like a Wall Street banker when he gets dressed up. The new Easy Suits are just what the name implies—suits that easily pass the dress-up test but have a youthful, action-like feel that goes with the lifestyles of today's young people. Within this category falls the waist-length blouson jacket, the shirt suit, whose jacket goes past the waist, and the safari suit which looks exactly like its name.

Shoes will have thicker soles and a higher heel with color emphasis on the lighter shades of brown and tan. Boots, too, will be popular.

How does a girl turn last year's school clothes into this year's back-to-school wardrobe? By adding separates with an eye to coordinating with clothing in the closet. If she's rich in slacks and sweaters and jerseys, concentrate on a few skirts and dresses and perhaps a sweater-jacket to dress up the slacks.

Parents seem happier about school fashions this year. As one mother put it: "I don't mind spending a little more on clothes this year because my children tell me it's not considered "square" anymore to look nice."

Food and Fashions

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

America's favorite shellfish is shrimp to the tune of about 250 million pounds netted each year!

This delicious little shellfish is known to the Italians as "gamboleri" not "scampi" which, strictly-defined is Italian for "crustacean." Furthermore, scampi to us means "large shrimp broiled in garlic butter." Prawn is also a name referring to large meaty shrimp.

Did you know that:

All shrimp are pink when cooked and before that they can be many colors? Raw headless shrimp are called "green" and the most common color, light gray, are called "white," whereas the brownish-pink shrimp are described as "grooved" and bright red ones are called "royal" and there is a variety that is pink before cooking and is called "pink gold."

The Maine Department of Sea and Shore Fisheries advises you that the secret of the delicate flavor and texture of the Northern Shrimp is in its preparation. Shrimp should be placed in a small amount of boiling water to which has been added salt to taste and ¼ teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice per pound.

Stir briskly once and cook for 45 seconds to a minute to protect the delicate flavor.

Cooking time actually depends on the size of the shrimp. Anywhere from one to five minutes cooking (boiling) time is plenty; start timing when water comes to a boil after shrimp have been added. Drain immediately, rinsing very well with cold water.

One pound of fresh or frozen shrimp yields ½ to ¾ pound of cooked and shelled shrimp. Therefore, if a recipe calls for one pound of raw shrimp, use ½ to ¾ pound of cooked and cleaned, or canned shrimp.

Shrimp are sold according to "count" or size.

Fifteen-count shrimp means there are 15 or less shrimp per pound. These would be large ones. 26-count shrimp would be smaller, and so on—the larger the number, the smaller the shrimp.

You may shell and clean shrimp either before or after boiling. Some people think it's easier to remove the small sand vein when the shrimp is raw, while others prefer to cook the shrimp before peeling. The vein is harmless but some object to the appearance of the black line.

SHRIMP AND MACARONI SALAD

4 cups cooked macaroni
1 cup cooked peas
1½ cups small shrimp, cooked and cleaned
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup raw sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Lettuce leaves

Mix all ingredients except lettuce. Arrange salad on bed of lettuce. Serves 5-6.

LEMON SCAMPI

1½ pounds shrimp
½ cup butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, minced
Juice of 1 lemon
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt

If shrimp is frozen, let thaw on paper towels to absorb moisture. Shell shrimp. Melt butter in sauce pan or skillet and add garlic, lemon juice, pepper and salt. Arrange shrimp in broiling pan and brush with butter mixture. Broil 3 inches from source of heat for 5 minutes. Serves 4.

SCAMPI MILANESE

28 very large shrimp, fresh or frozen
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sifted flour
2 large eggs, beaten
½ cup fine bread crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup olive oil
Juice of 1 lemon
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Shell and devein shrimp. Wash in cold water and dry. Combine black and red pepper and salt. Flour the shrimp, shaking off any excess. Dip in beaten eggs; then dredge with crumbs, and shake off excess. Combine margarine (or butter) and olive oil; reserve 3 tablespoons. Brush broiling pan with some of oil mixture. Arrange shrimp in oiled pan and spoon rest of oil mixture over them. Sprinkle with combined peppers and salt. Slide pan into preheated broiler 8 inches below source of heat and broil for 5 minutes; turn shrimp and cook for 7-10 minutes longer. Place reserved oil mixture in medium skillet and heat, being careful not to burn. Stir in lemon juice and soy sauce. Heat thoroughly and spoon over broiled shrimp. Makes 6 servings.

SHRIMP 'N RICE CASSEROLE

1 pound mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup margarine (½ stick)
1 pound cooked shrimp, shelled and deveined
2 cups cooked white rice
1 cup evaporated milk
One-third cup chili sauce (or catsup)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt and dash pepper
½ cup shredded American cheese

Saute mushrooms slowly in margarine for about 10 minutes or until tender. Mix mushrooms, shrimp and rice. Combine evaporated milk, chili sauce, Worcestershire, salt, pepper and grated onion and add to first mixture. Mix lightly but well and pile into a greased casserole. Sprinkle with shredded cheese and bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves 8.

Temple Shalom will offer expanded program this fall

Temple Shalom of Newton Religious School, 175 Temple St. in West Newton, will offer an expanded program this year.

A new schedule will provide the opportunity for a religious education to those students who were unable to attend because of conflicts with public school hours and will eliminate needless car pooling.

The Hebrew Studies Department will now offer classes on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in both the early session (2-3:30 p.m.) and the late session (3:30-5:10 p.m.) for garden Aleph (first year, tht coincides with the 4th grade in public school) through Gimel (6th grade in public school). The Daled and Heh classes (7th and 8th grades) will continue to meet in the late session.

New classes have also been formed for first and second graders in the Religious School on Tuesday afternoons (2-3:30 p.m.) and on Saturday mornings (9-11:30 a.m.). These early session Tuesday classes meet simultaneously with the early session Hebrew classes.

All the innovations have been made for the convenience of students and parents and make it possible to elect a schedule that will ease transportation problems and conspicously reduce the number of trips necessary to bring children to religious school.

Classes throughout the school are small, supervised by Rabbis Murray I. Rothman and Terry B. Bard and Miss Elinor Needle, and taught by qualified teachers.

All faculty members are required during the year to participate in in-service training workshops, where they are kept abreast of the latest education materials and where they explore new avenues of learning and teaching.

The emphasis in the Hebrew Studies Department is on the learning of modern Hebrew. In the fourth and fifth years of Hebrew School, students concentrate on mastering conversational Hebrew with the use of the highly successful and thoroughly enjoyable audi-visual program, Habet Ushma.

The Religious Studies Department is unitized: Kindergarten through third grade deals with the holidays and the Jewish family; grades 4 and 5 with Israel and "Our Jewish Heritage"; grades 6 through 8 with American Judaism through core courses and an extensive elective program. Specialists in music and art present integrated programs for all students in the religious school.

Grades 9 and 10 deal with questions of Jewish identity and culminate in confirmation. The 9th and 10th grades will have a unique conclave and workshop program that will be in full swing once again this year. Post-confirmation explores contemporary issues and problems. Post-confirmands are urged and encouraged to help mold the curriculum to their interests and needs.

For further information about the program at Temple Shalom of Newton Religious School, call the Religious School Office, 332-9550, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to noon, and speak with Miss Needle.

In Israel, Zippor was graduated from State Teachers' College. Pursuing his education in the United States, he received a B.A. degree in religion from Boston University and a Master of Hebrew literature degree from the Hebrew College of Boston.

Zippor comes to Temple Reyim from Temple Beth Am in Randolph where he served for several years as assistant educational director.

South coach optimistic

By HOWIE APPLESTEIN

Newton South's football team ended up with a record of 3-6 last year, but the record was deceptive. With a more potent offense, the Lions could have won up to seven games.

South lost four games last year by eight of less points; a 3-0 loss to Maynard, a 6-0 defeat to Bedford, a 14-6 loss to Acton-Boxboro, and an 8-6 setback Thanksgiving against Lincoln-Sudbury.

"First of all, we have 14 lettermen returning from last year's team, which is more than we had the previous year," Winkler said. "I like the attitude the players have shown and I think there is more overall speed on this year's squad.

"Another plus is having All-Dual County linebackers Greg Moan, who is our captain, and Aaron Moynihan returning," Winkler added. "As juniors they were tremendous and it will be great to have them back again this year."

When Winkler was asked what problems he is faced with, he said that one is the quarterback situation. "In the pre-season we hope to find the guy who can do the job. Last year we had trouble finding a number one quarterback and it cost us several ballgames," Winkler commented. "Right now, the position is up for grabs between senior Jeff Lawson and juniors Matt Sabetti, Phil Small, and John Amicangioli.

"Another problem is finding a good end and a good tackler for our defensive and offensive lines," Winkler added.

Winkler said that it was disappointing to have lost two starters from last year's team. Senior Kevin Hoban has been ruled ineligible and junior Gary Fried was lost to the team because he will be attending private school.

The Lions are expected to have a strong offensive backfield as three starters have returned. Seniors Pete Maples and Peter Nathanson were starters at halfback while senior Joe Donlan started at fullback.

Nathanson may do much of the running. As a sophomore, he came off the bench to score five touchdowns, but last year he was not used much until late in the season.

When given a chance, Nathanson did well as he led the Lions to an 8-0 victory over Wayland and scored South's touchdown in the final game of the season against Lincoln-Sudbury.

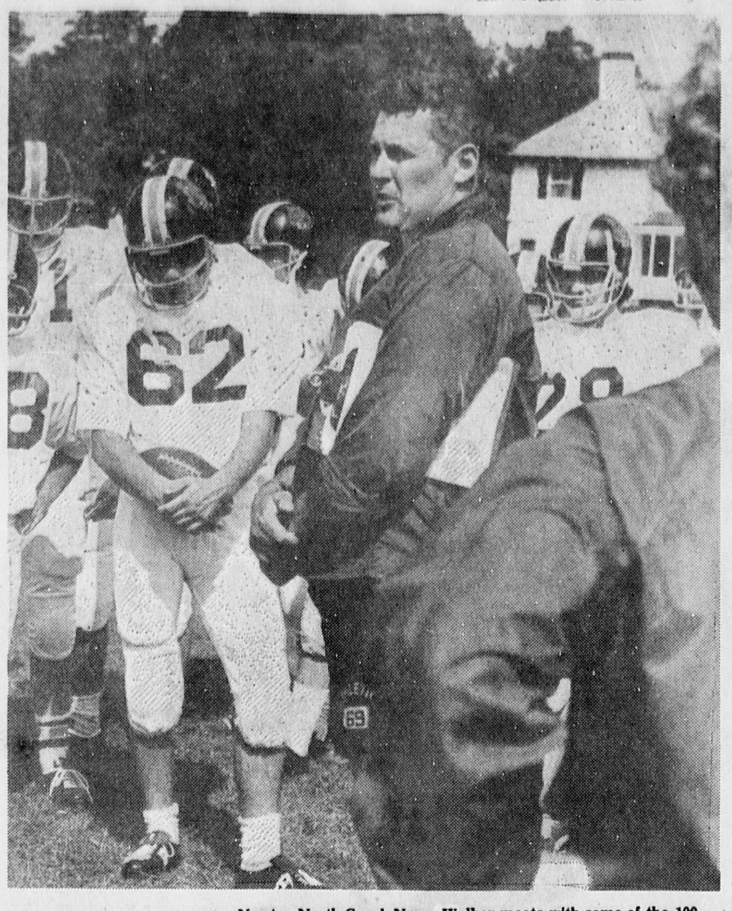
Nathanson and junior Rich Gosmon have good chances to start in the defensive backfield as both gained experience there last year. McKinney and Amicangioli are vying for the third starting position.

South has a lot of experienced defensive linemen, as seniors Rick Taranto, Paul Tormey, Maples and junior Sabetti all started at some point last year. Juniors who could see action include Jeff Goldsmith, Keith Washington, Mike Berzon, and Dave Costa.

Juniors Bob Lipson is expected to do the placekicking while senior Scott Groper is slated to be the punter.

Offensive end candidates include seniors George Brockman and Jerry Antonellis, and Gosmon.

South's regular season opener will be against Brighton on Sept. 14.



Head coach Newton North Coach Norm Walker meets with some of the 100-plus aspirants for this year's football team. Newton North will scrimmage against Milton on Saturday at Albermarle at 10 a.m. (Lupo photo)

N.A.A. Lions open season on Saturday

The Newton Athletic Association Lions Pop Warner football team will open its 1974 season this Saturday at Newton Highlands Playground at 10 a.m. against the Norwood Blue Devils of the South Shore League.

The N.A.A. Cowboys of the Pee Wee League and the Junior Midget Tigers continue to practice most every night in preparation for their season openers Sept. 15.

Many positions are still up for grabs on the Lions, but certain individuals are assured of seeing a lot of action.

Starting at center will be John Kane; at right guard will be Jason Michaels. Left guard is undecided, but Chuck Pepper, John McLellan, and Bill McGary have the best shots.

At right tackle will be Jim Schmidlein backed up by Frank Oglesby. Sean Foley and Dave Foley are expected to play left tackle. At right end will be Noel Foley, backed up by Mark Waters.

At left end will be Scott Seidman, Dough Jackson, and Charlie Rogers.

Tim Hoban will get the starting nod at quarterback, but will share the position with Charlie Slack. At left half will be Rich Filler and Paul DeLuca. Jack Forti and Gary Chin will play right half.

Paul Butters will start at fullback although he will also be used at both halfback positions. Also seeing action at fullback will be Greg Cooper and John Franco.

The 1974 schedule is as follows: Aug. 31, 10 a.m. vs. Norwood at home; Sept. 8, 1 p.m. vs. Framingham at home; Sept. 15, 1:45 p.m. vs. Brookline at home; Sept. 22, 1:45 p.m. at Sudbury; Sept. 29, 1:45 p.m. at Waltham; Oct. 6, 1:45 p.m. at Brighton; Oct. 13, 1:35 p.m. vs. Wayland at home; Oct. 20, 1:45 p.m. at Dracut; Oct. 27, 1:45 p.m. vs. Patriots at home.

Home games will be played at Newton Highlands Playground. The games with Norwood, Framingham, and Dracut are non-league encounters.

Lots of candidates for North football

By TOM GRAVES

Newton North football Coach Norm Walker has a lot of bodies to work with as he enters his second season.

Walker, whose team was 7-2 last year, had a turnout of over 70 juniors and seniors on Monday and expected more than 60 sophomores on Tuesday. He called the large number of candidates "amazing."

Walker attributed the interest this year partially to the work of coaches at the junior high schools. He noted specifically the efforts of John Eldert at Day, Dick Fletcher at Bigelow, and Joe Piciarello at Warren.

In comparing this year's turnout to that of last year, Walker said that "we were real green last year; we have a lot more experience now.

He pointed to the defensive secondary and the offensive line as areas where there is a lot of experience. Returnees to the secondary include seniors Bob Meek, Art Murphy, Gordon Mac Neil, and Gary Tutungian. Offensive linemen with experience include center Richie Doolin, and tackles Chris Jones and Don Morrell.

The prospective Newton North quarterback is senior Bob Kinsella. Walker said that Kinsella is "a good quarterback; he's such a hustler that he will continue to be good; he's a winner."

Walker commented that one part of Kinsella's game which will be worked on is his passing. "We will have to work on his not trying to complete every pass," Walker said.

Walker pointed out that one way in which this year's team is different from last year's is that he cannot immediately determine who the standouts are going to be.

"Last year, Jerry Kelleher was a super back; we knew that," Walker remarked. "We knew Cal Moffie was a good back and we had two good tackles."

He added that this year, "we have a lot of good kids," but he cannot put his finger on people and say that they are going to be great. Walker called the seniors "such a team group of kids."

Walker said that he is still looking for defensive linemen, but that there are good junior candidates. One returnee is defensive end Steve DiBenedetto.

North's offensive backfield is expected to include halfback John Vizakis, Peter Toyias at fullback, and junior Steve Cononica. Dana Foley will be back at wingback.

Both kicking posts may be filled by veterans. MacNeil will be back to punt while Foley is expected to do the place kicking.

Walker commented on Monday that there were "no real disappointments" from people who were expected not showing up.

North is scheduled to meet Milton for a scrimmage on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at Albemarle. Other scrimmages are scheduled with B.C. High and Natick.

Newton's regular season opener will be against Framingham North on Sept. 21 at Dickinson Stadium.

Walker's assistant coaches include Peter Capodilupo, Pat Coleman, and Don Crowley.

In A flight, Manny Meirovitz placed first and Marshall Rakusin was the runner-up. Leonard Levine was victorious in B flight and Al Berg finished second.

In C flight, Lou Eisman was the top finisher and Phil Paisner was runner-up. Harold White won D. flight and Edward Fine finished second.

Wortis reported that there have been several holes-in-one at the club in the last six weeks. There were two within a month by Bernard Cohen, and single aces by Adelle Lewis and Phineas Alpers.

Commentary by J. Pepper Frazier

A look at the obscure ball players

I'm not exactly sure why, but no matter what they accomplish some baseball players never gain recognition.

Possibly it could be the city they play in, obviously something that happens in New York is more important than something that happens in San Diego, if anything does happen in San Diego.

Still, how would you account for the fact that Bobby Murcer plays a leading role with the media and fans while Thurmon Munson wallows in the backwoods of incognizance?

Also Petrocelli is not exactly a household word while Yastrzemski, mediocre year or not, wears the wreath of recognition on the road and at home. Anyhow, my main point is, that you could comprise a pretty damn good team of unrecognizables.

For example, at first base you could have either Mike Hargrove or John Ellis, two of the better hitters in the league yet both virtually unnoticed by the press.

At second base Jorge Orta and Doug Griffin are top flight, but play in relative obscurity.

However the real mystery to me is how Rod Carew could get almost two million more all star votes than Bobby Grich. Grich is the Orioles' meal ticket and their only bone fide Big Bopper. Without him fifth place would be a real possibility.

Remember when Earl Weaver added Grich to the all star squad a couple of years ago and the media raised an indignant, "Who's he?" Well, he happens to be the best second baseman in the American League. I'm not sure the Orioles even have a second string second baseman unless, and I hold my breath when I say this, Enos "the great" Cabell backs up Grich.

The only thing I can think of that would be comparable to Cabell at second would be Tommy Harper playing in the infield. Incidentally, as much as I admire Darrell Johnson and the job he's done, he's virtually conceding a run or two every time he puts Harper in left field. I've never seen the position played with greater incompetence. Can you imaging Harper in Yankee Stadium? With that thought off my mind, back to the all-obscure team.

For a third baseman take your pick of Petrocelli, Money, or Randle, certainly superior ballplayers to Aureilo Rodrequez or Craig Nettles.

For an outfield, there is a choice of Ken Henderson, George Hendrick, Dwight Evans, Hal McRae or Steve Braun, all pretty good ballplayers and all, this year at least, better than Bobby Murcer.

As for a catcher, anybody, even Danny Cater, will do in place of Earl "the stiff" Williams. The question is, will Williams drive in 50 runs, also, if as some people say his catching has improved then I shudder to think of what it was before. If he were still in the National League the mere presence of Williams behind the plate would have already enabled Lou Brock to have broken Maury Wills' base stealing record.

I'd never thought I'd see it. but in Earl Williams we have found the direct heir and successor to the throne occupied by the immortal Choo Choo Coleman, about whom Casey Stengel once said, when asked why he used Coleman as his catcher, that because if he didn't the ball would roll to the back stop; a theory that also applies to Williams.

It must be galling for these players to perform well and yet labor without fanfare, and also I'm sure it makes a difference at contract time as well as potential product endorsements.

Another thing that confused me is why a player of Lou Brock's abilities has not received anywhere near the acclaim accorded a Pete Rose. Anybody who saw Brock in action against the Red Sox in the '67 series can attest to his skills, which at 35 he has honed even further.

As for some other thoughts on the National League it is my opinion that the Dodgers have to be a full ten games better than the Reds to win their division. Why? Because that is the difference between the managerial abilities of Walter Alston and Sparky Anderson. The material the Dodgers have is stunning, deep at every position, not to mention that their top farm club, Alberquerque, is the best in the business.

Never has a team been so poorly handled. The other day I stared in disbelief as Alston failed to pinch run for Steve Yaeger in the ninth inning against the Pirates. A move that eventually cost the Dodgers a run and the game. What does Sparky Anderson do when the Reds are in a tail spin, he starts his top reliever Clay Carroll, a move that has paid off with astounding success.

Would Alston ever start Mike Marshall? No! What does he do, he starts Al Downing, who may be a gentleman, but he sure as hell can't pitch. Still when all the evidence is considered I think a Dodger-Red Sox World Series is in the cards, I certainly hope so, anyhow.

Also, while we're on the subject of pennant races, smart thinking says that, if they haven't already by the time this is printed, the Red Sox bring up Jim Rice from Pawtucket before Sept. 1, thus making him eligible for post season play. Certainly the home team would not be weakened by the demotion of Terry Hughes or Dick Pole and a Rice homer here or there might prove very valuable down the stretch.

One more thought, to wit, I haven't missed football one iota and the only thing that could conceivably be more boring than watching a Patriots game on TV would be going in person to Schaefer Stadium. Ah! Schaefer Stadium, the Boston Garden of stadii, in a class by itself for bushness.

Murphy's Flip Tops win women's basketball final

Women's City Basketball

Murphy's Flip-Tops' Judy Blinstrub contributed 22 points to lead her team to a 37-20 victory over Magoos in the Wmen's City Basketball League final. This upped their record to 12 wins without a loss and gave them the league championship.

Cindy White contributed 10 points as Magoos stayed right with Murphy's during the first half of the game. Laura Rice and Allison Toney controlled the fast break and the defensive press used by Magoos in the first half, which proved very effective. But Sue Blinstrub and Ann McGowan went to work with some nice steals and good defense to pace Murphy's to a third quarter lead. In the fourth quarter, Murphy's outscored Magoos 10-8.

Women's City Softball

The Troubador Jesters once again are the league champions as they ousted the Why Not Dewire Team 4-1 on the two-hit pitching of Jean Cole. The series was tied at one game each going into the final game at Cabot Park.

The Why Not's took the second game 8-6 to even the series, but a determined Jester Team took the field and never trailed as they went to a quick 2-0 lead after some head's-up baserunning by Kathy Taglianti and Donna Hopkinson.

Later, in the bottom of the fifth inning, Donna Hopkinson hit a two-run homer to put the game away for the Jesters.

The Why Not's Phyllis Savage hit a booming home run clear over the fence at Cabot Park to give the Why Not's their only score of the game. Ms. Savage had come to the plate to bunt, but after foulding off two pitches, reared back and hit a sky-high blast clear over the fence, and crossed the plate to a standing ovation.

Trophies and awards will be presented at the annual banquet at Post 440 on Sept. 12. This is the fifth year for the League and the Jesters have been winners for the past two years. The Why Nots were a new team this year and should be applauded for their fine effort.

Trips

On Wednesday, Newton Centre Playground people enjoyed a day trip to the Larz Anderson Automobile Museum. They looked at antique autos and had a picnic on the spacious grounds.

Newton Highlands Playground people took a trip to the Wallex Sports Center where they had fun bowling, miniature golfing, and roller skating.

A group from Burr Park enjoyed a picnic and swim at Lake Cochituate in Wayland on Thursday. Also on Thursday, Thompsonville Playground spent the day bowling, roller skating, and playing miniature golf at the Wallex Sports Center in Waltham. All the above trips were made by the Newton Recreation Department van.

Children at the Newton Highlands Playground also enjoyed a picnic at the playground on Thursday. Maureen Barry and Ned Moan, assisted by parents, cooked hot dogs and hamburgers for the children.

Softball leagues

The Newton Recreation Department softball leagues are rapidly coming to a close after a long season. Recently crowned as a league champion for the second year in a row was Silver Lake Dodge. It swept three straight in the final from the Bryant Club. It was led by the strong pitching of Paul Lockett, and the hitting of Bill Woodlock. Starring for the Bryant Club was Pearley Bryant.

The N.C.P. Club swept to the C. Division championship, defeating St. Regis three games to one. The pitching of Bob Worden was a big factor in winning the championship.

Tennis lessons

Tennis lessons for boys and girls proved very popular this summer on the Newton playgrounds with over 1200 lessons given by tennis instructors Leon Geller and Steve Freeman.

Tag football

Newton Recreation Department tag football will open its season Monday Sept. 23. The league will be held to a ten-team limit. Managers from last year's teams should contact Bill Barry as soon as possible.

We want your children to go back to school... SAFELY

Mon. Aug. 26th thru Sat. Aug. 31st

The Dedham Mall wants to be sure that your child goes back to school understanding basic safety rules. Maybe this is your child's first year in school. In that case, it's even more important that he is aware of safety facts. During our campaign, we invite you to talk with guest speakers, collect complimentary literature, enjoy a visit to Safety City, and find out more about your Red Cross. The Registry of Motor Vehicles Safety Education Department will be represented. Talk to Inspector Newell --- he'll be glad to offer any help he can. And the Boston Council of the Boy Scouts of America will be represented, too. We think we have a program that has something of interest for everyone. So come to the Dedham Mall for all your Back-to-School needs. We're doing all kinds of things to make the Dedham Mall an even better place to shop.

GUIDELINES ON ALCOHOL PROBLEMS

WHO MAY HAVE ALCOHOL PROBLEMS?

BELIEVE!! There are such things as "instant alcoholics" . . . people whose physical or mental make-up is just waiting for the first encounter with alcohol.

There are many others with serious, steady problems at an early age. However, most of the problems involve the long-time users who have gradually progressed to big-volume daily, week-end, or "bender" drinking. Of course, getting intoxicated regularly at parties can cause many alcohol-related problems . . . accidents, deaths, fights, loss of license, job, marriage, and reputation. Seventy-five percent of Americans do drink some alcohol. Nine million are alcoholics. Millions more have big problems. Statistics say caution will pay.

Jimmy and Chris the tennis sweethearts

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Beyond any question, Jimmie Connors and Chrissie Evert are America's most celebrated sweethearts since Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler.

Okay, so make it Mickey Rooney and Ann Rutherford.

They also play a much better game of tennis.

When Connors and Chris competed at Wimbledon seven weeks ago, London bookmakers, always quick with a price or a phrase, coupled them as the "Lovebird Double" and offered 36 to 1 odds against both winning.

Both won.

In the process, they did something to help combat inflation.

The U.S. Open tennis championships get underway here today and you can forget all about those astronomical London odds.

Jimmie Connors is the 3 to 1 favorite to take the men's title and his bride-to-be, winner of 52 straight matches and 10 straight tournaments, is the even money choice to wind up with the women's crown.

Right now, the world is nothing but a nice round tennis ball for both. The irrepressible, uninhibited Connors, particularly, has everything going for him.

He won't be 22 until Sunday, but this year already he has won the Australian and Wimbleton championships as well as the hand of lovely, talented 19-year-old Chrissie, whom he marries Nov. 8.

The difference in Connors since he won at Wimbledon has been a marked one with much of it being reflected in the tremendous confidence he exudes now.

Shortly after Wimbledon, Bill Riordan, Connors' advisor and close friend for the past 14 years, sat down with him for one of those heart-to-heart talks.

"You've arrived," Riordan said. "You're among the real champions now, and you have to understand that. The four-letter words have to go. The gestures, too. Okay?"

"Okay," replied Connors.

The other day he buttonholed Riordan and reported:

"No more four-letter words."

"What about the gestures?" Riordan wanted to know.

"Pretty good," Connors beamed. "I've got 'em all down to the pinky now."

Jimmy Connors has been labeled a lot of things, things like "immature," "abrasive," "poor sport," "court jester" and sometimes worse.

Romania's Ilie Nastase, one of his best friends, attended a luncheon at which Connors was awarded the Dewar's Cup Tuesday, as was Chrissie Evert, for the general contribution they have made to tennis this year. Nastase can't see all those adjectives applied to his friend.

"I don't think he's any of these things," said his doubles' partner. "I think he's very friendly. He's like a kid. He never rubbed me the wrong way. Maybe one of the reasons some of the other players call him these things is because he beats them so much."

Someone asked Connors if it upsets him to hear people call him "independent," and he said the people who call him that never bother him.

"Maybe they'd like to be independent like me," he said.

Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors sat next to each other at a huge round table answering questions before receiving their awards Tuesday.

They did what all sweethearts do. They held hands.

Originally, when they first met two years ago in London, Chris Evert was attracted to Connors because they were complete opposites.

"I was 17, shy and wasn't out-going at all," she said. "It was my first time in Europe and I was in kind of awe of everything. The fact he says what he feels, that he isn't always quiet, doesn't bother me. He isn't meant to be quiet. Sometimes I don't like it, and he knows that. I don't think he should change, though. That's his way, and it's a winning way."

Outwardly, Connors doesn't seem nervous about he getting married.

"All I gotta do is wear a tuxedo and be there," he said.

Does discussing any one phase of the marriage disturb him, a newsman asked Connors.

"No," he said. "As long as you don't get too personal."

"What would you consider 'too personal?'" persisted the same reporter.

"What we're gonna do on our honeymoon," laughed Jimmie Connors.

Antoine M. Gaudin

Antoine Gaudin

A memorial service for Antoine M. Gaudin, Richards Professor of mineral engineering emeritus at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was held Sunday, Aug. 25, at Trinity Episcopal Church, Newton Centre.

Mr. Gaudin, an internationally recognized pioneer in the field of process metallurgy, died Friday morning, Aug. 21, at the Massachusetts General Hospital, following a long illness. He was 74.

Professor Gaudin, who made extensive contributions as educator, author, and consultant to government and industry, was particularly active in research on flotation, a technique for the recovery of fine mineral particles. His reference work, "Flotation," written in 1932 and revised in 1957, has been the standard text in English on that subject and has been translated into other languages.

Mr. Gaudin directed the research that led to the first continuous production of uranium from ores, and for that work he received, in 1957, the distinguished Robert H. Richards Award of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers.

Besides his wartime research, Mr. Gaudin served in 1942 and 1943 as consultant for the Materials Division of the War Production Board and, in 1942, as head production specialist for the Board of Econimic Warfare.

Mr. Gaudin came from a distinguished French family. His paternal grandfather was Marc-Antoine Gaudin, a well-known chemist and mineralogist and for many years secretary of the Academie des Sciences in Paris, whose primary interests included the synthesis of precious stones and silicates.

His father, Paul Augustin Gautin, was an engineer and Mr. Gaudin was born on Aug. 8, 1900, in Smyrna, Turkey, where his father was general manager of a French-owned railroad. Later, the family moved to Haifa when Gaudin senior was commissioned by Sultan Abdul-Hamid to construct and operate a railroad from Hifa to Mecca.

Following the "Young Turk" revolution in 1908, the family returned to France, where the younger Gaudin studied at the Lycees in Versailles and Toulon and in 1917 completed requirements for the bachelor's degree at the University of Paris.

During World War I, his father was sent to the United States as a member of the French War Mission in charge of purchases of rolling stock and other railroad materials. The younger Gaudin joined him in 1917 and entered Columbia University, where in four years he completed a six-year course leading to the degree of engineer of mines. In the summer of 1918 he enlisted in the United States Army, serving until shortly after the Armistice.

In 1924 he was invited to become a lecturer in mining at Columbia University, where he remained until 1926. Rapid developments in the field of mineral dressing and the application of flotation methods to the complex metalliferous ores of the Rocky Mountain region led him, in 1926, to accept an appointment as associate professor of metallurgical research at the University of Utah. Three years later, he was appointed research professor of mineral dressing at the Montana School of Mines, where he remained for 10 years. In 1941 that school awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Mr. Gaudin joined the M.I.T. faculty in 1939 as professor of mineral dressing and was appointed Richards Professor of mineral engineering in 1948. He retired from the M.I.T. faculty in 1966.

Mr. Gaudin became an American citizen in 1926 but throughout his life carried forward the heritage of internationalism from his youth. Well-known abroad and fluent in French, English and German, he was a member of the Societe des Ingenieurs Civils de France and an honorary member of the British Institution of Mining and Metallurgy, which invited him in 1952 to give the third Sir Julius Wernher Memorial Lecture — the first to be delivered by a representative of the American mineral industry. In 1957 he was a special lecturer in Russia at the invitation of the Academy of Sciences of the USSR.

In American science, he was named in 1964 as a founding member of the National Academy of Engineering in recognition of his outstanding contributions in engineering. He was a member also of a number of scientific and engineering societies, particularly the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers, the Mining and Metallurgical Society of America, the American Chemical Society, and the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Mr. Gaudin is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna (Nancy) Brooks Gaudin of Newtonville, whom he married in 1926; two sons, Paul Brooks Gaudin of Upper Saddle River, N.J., and Robert Morris Gaudin of Birmingham, Mich.; a daughter, Elinor Ruth Everts of Needham, and 12 grandchildren.

Spectacular air show at Naval Air Station, Weymouth

The world's first civilian jet aerobatic team, the Bede Jets, will perform at the annual Air Show and Open House to be held at NAS South Weymouth, on Sept. 7 and 8.

Also featured at the air show will be the Navy's Blue Angels, the Flying Pierces with their wing riding act, the world aerobatic champs Red Devils, plus a Brithish-built "Harrier" jet equipped for vertical take-off and landing.

The Bede Jet team blends the talents of top aerobatic pilots and the world's smallest jet—only 12½ feet long.

The fullet shped BD-5j jet can fly 350 mph and climb to an altitude of 30,000 feet. The wing span is 17 feet.

Corkey Fornof began his aerobatic career flying a P-51 Mustang. He later advanced to the F8F Bearcat which he flew at last year's air show at the air station in Weymouth.

Bob Bishop won national acclaim for his aerobatic performance beginning with his 1965-66 eight place finish in the National Aerobatics Championship when he was 18 years old. During 1971-72 he performed at major air shows in the United States and Canada in a Bellanca Viking 300.

Ed Mahler is one of the most sought after air show pilots in America. Best known for his inverted ribbon cut performed at only 50 feet above the runway, he won the National Aerobatic Competition in 1968.

Air Station gates will be open at 9:30 a.m. both days for the open house. The air show will begin at 1 p.m.

The open house will feature many aircraft on display, military vehicles, art exhibits, avaiation exhibits, marching drum and bugle corps, children's amusement rides, refreshments and airplane rides.

Show Stoppers Walt Pierce and wife, Sandi, The Flying Pierces will perform their wing-walking act, flying loops and rolls, as one of the featured aerobatic teams scheduled to perform at the 1974 Air Show to be held at the Naval Air Station, South Weymouth, Sept. 7 and 8.

The gold of ancient Columbia on display at Fine Arts Museum

The legend of El Dorado - "the golden one" - tantalized the treasure-hunting Spanish conquerors of the New World. Thousands of years before any foreign conquests, the Indians of Colombia were producing goldwork which is still one of the marvels of that land. Samples of this legendary art will be exhibited at the Museum of Fine Arts September 10 through November 3, when El Dorado: The Gold of Ancient Colombia visits Boston.

The art of gold craftsmanshif flourished during the Pre-Columbian era over a period of almost 2,000 years. From its beginnings in ancient Peru in 800 B.C. the craft spread north to the "golden land" of Colombia. There, a complex geography of three mountain ranges, two seacoasts, vast plains and forests, encouraged a distinct regionalism among Prehispanic cultures.

Objects and artifacts from seven archaeological sites in Colombia have been selected from a collection of over 20,000 pieces in Bogata's Museo del Oro. Personal ornaments crafted of gold such as crowns, ear plugs, pectorals pendants, nose plugs, and pins will be on view.

The exhibition will focus on tools of daily life - chisels, needles, fishhooks, as well as objects of status - spoons, bowls, staves, all fashioned of gold. A number of vessels - "poporos" - used in a ritual of coca chewing, are considered by many to be the greatest products of the ancient Colombian goldsmiths.

A variety of metalworking techniques are represented by flat, hammered pieces, and by forms cast by the lost wax method. Styles range from a strong naturalism of human figures to stylized, inorganic patterned shapes.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

There's a great deal of talk about relaxing clean air standards in order to help solve the energy crisis.

The argument goes: How can we justify spending money to make the air more pleasant whe we have serious problems of energy supply to deal with?

Most of this talk misses the entire point of the clean air standards: Public health.

Air pollution is a public health problem. It's not an aesthetic problem.

Air pollution isn't just a middle-class concern. Air Pollution, in fact, does the most harm to those least able to fight it — the poor, the sick, the black, the old, the very young, the people who live in the inner corge of big cities.

According to the American Public Health Association, 21 million people are "at risk" from air pollution. Urban dwellers and industrial workers encounter the most pollution, but many catefories of people are particularly susceptible to air pollution. Major factors in susceptibility include:

—Aging or debilitation (weakness).

—Pre-school age (when detoxifying enzyme mechanisms have not yet matured).

—Overcrowded living conditions.

—Malnutrition.

—Genetic defects (such as asthma, sicle cell anemia, atrial or ventricular wall defects).

—Developmental defects (including coronary insufficiency, rheumatic heart diseases, chronic bronchitis, and emphysema).

—Cigarette smoking or exposure to cigarette smoke.

Other suspected causes of increased susceptibility are childhood infections, heavy physical exertion, and obesity.

It is estimated that the conversion of 46 power plants in the eastern corridor from oil to coal (now being considered) could increase the death rate from respiratory and cardiovascular diseases by as much as 40 per cent, unless adequate measures are taken to control stack emissions.

Of course, these are only statistics. They don't seem real . . . until I or my loved ones are hit with them.

Who wants to become a statistic?, Let's have less talk of relaxing clean air standards, and more thought about how to go about doing a job that needs doing: making the air clean for everyone.

PROSPECTUS: THIS IS NOT AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF AN OPERATING PROGRAM. IT IS AN ANNOUNCEMENT TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER SUFFICIENT INTEREST EXISTS FOR CREATION OF A PROGRAM FOR ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION. ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION PROGRAMS ARE STILL IN A PLANNING STAGE.

BOSTON STATE COLLEGE
THE OPEN COLLEGE

BASICALLY, THE "OPEN COLLEGE" CONCEPT MAKES A COLLEGE EDUCATION AVAILABLE TO THOSE STUDENTS WHO HAVE FOUND IT IMPOSSIBLE TO ENROLL IN THE TRADITIONAL EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS.

COULD THIS BE YOU?

COLLEGE:
YOU ARE A HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE AND YOU WANT A COLLEGE EDUCATION, BUT . . . .
YOU HAVE NOT HAD TIME TO TAKE COURSES IN AN "ON CAMPUS" PROGRAM.

OPEN COLLEGE:
YOU WANT A STRUCTURED COURSE OF STUDIES, BUT . . . . . .
YOUR WORK SCHEDULE, FAMILY RESPONSIBILITIES, OR YOUR STYLE OF LEARNING MAKE TRADITIONAL "ON CAMPUS" SCHEDULES INFLEXIBLE AND UNCOMFORTABLE.

MULTI-MEDIA EXPERIENCES:
YOU WANT THE CHALLENGE OF DEVELOPING A FIELD OF STUDY, BUT . . . . . .
YOU WANT THE OPPORTUNITY OF BEGINNING YOUR STUDIES WITH A FLEXIBLE SCHEDULE USING MATERIALS DESIGNED TO FIT YOUR PERSONAL LEARNING STYLE.

DIVERSE LEARNING EXPERIENCES:
YOU WANT TO BE EVALUATED OBJECTIVELY, BUT . . . . . .
YOU WANT TO BE EXPOSED TO MORE THAN THE TEXTBOOK AND THE LECTURE. WHICH TYPE OF STUDY WOULD YOU CHOOSE?
—SELF-STUDY—BUDDY-SYSTEM —GROUP SEMINAR

RESOURCE PERSONNEL:
YOU WANT INDEPENDENT STUDY, BUT . . . . .
YOU WANT TO LEARN BY MEANS OF SELF-PACED LEARNING EXPERIENCES WHICH ARE SUPPORTED BY TRAINED RESOURCE PERSONNEL TO WHOM YOU CAN HAVE ACCESS SHOULD DIFFICULTIES OCCUR.

The Open College Concept:

The program of off-campus instruction, using multi-media study packages, will be a unique approach to non-traditional education in Massachusetts. The goal is to reach those students whose work schedules, family obligations, and learning habits are not served by the traditional "on-campus" programs.

If the program were to become operational in your area, you would have the opportunity to do most of your work in your home. However, at local "learning centers" there would be other activities and resources designed to give you the opportunity to work with a small group of fellow students who are also studying in the program. Whether you choose self-study, a buddy system, or a group seminar, your study would be guided by materials designed to give you an academic experience as interesting and as varied as that which you would receive on-campus.

The learning-resource center would be staffed by trained personnel who will be responsible for working directly with the students and who will act as the liaison with the professors.

Course materials have been designed to allow the student to proceed at his own pace in as private or as public a setting as he desires. The ideal is to present you with a learning experience that will match the diverse learning habits that you have developed on your own.

All of us have our own learning styles. Some learn only by reading, others need visuals, and still others want to listen. Many want all three experiences plus discussions with fellow students. The Open College program of Studies is designed to meet all of these options while providing a genuine academic experience.

Opinion Survey:

This is the Open College program which is projected at Boston State. Our goal is to bring an education to you to match your learning styles and personal schedules. This program is being planned now. We need your help, however, to find out how many of you would like to begin studying with us and where to open the learning centers. If you would like to be placed on our mailing list, fill in the form provided below:

Duncan elected to Chamber post

The election of Paul C. Duncan of Dover, manager of the Newton office of the New England Telephone Co. as vice president for public affairs of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce has been announced by Robert L. Tennant, president.

Duncan, who has served as chairman of the membership "chargers" committee, also becomes a member of the Chamber's executive committee.

He succeeds Lewis M. Sherer, Jr. who has been named general manager of the Marriott Motor Hotel in New Orleans. Sherer previously managed the Newton Marriott.

Also, the election of three persons to fill vacancies on the board of directors was announced. Theq are Henry Maioranna, Needham Garden Center; Dexter Marsh, Meredith & Grew, Inc.; and Eugene Tarsky, CPA. Mairoana and Marsh have been appointed as members of the Needham local issue committee and Tarsky is the 1974 chairman of the chamber image committee.

Duncan and the three directors were elected by the Chamber's executive committee, which during the summer months has the full authority of the board of directors. They were nominated by a special nominating committee of past presidents named by Tennant, including Robert P. Lurvey, West Newton Savings Bank, chairman; Donald J. MacMillan, Calvert's, Inc.; and Victor A. Nicolazzo, Bigelow Oil Co.

At the same time, Tennant announced the successful completion of the Chamber's 1974 membership campaign, which has achieved 26 new members and a little more than $2,400 in new membership income. Victor A. Nicolazzo, Bigelow Oil Co., with six new members, was named the 1974 outstanding membership salesman and will receive recognition at the Chamber's annual achievement dinner on Oct. 3.

Other successful membership salesmen include membership "chargers" Chairman Paul Duncan; Philip Bram, Philip Cacciatore, William Cahill, Paul Daley, Donald MacMillan, PaulRubenstein, Carl Sjoquist, Robert Tennant, and William Woodcock.

Newton Savings Bank is changing its name

The Newton Savings Bank was founded as the Institution for Savings in the Town of Newton in 1829, and changed its name to Newton Savings Bank in 1973, when the City was incorporated. Now it is changing its name to Mutual Bank for Savings. The reasons for the present change are both practical and philosophical, and are as follows:

The bank now has offices in three communities outside of Newton: Needham, Waltham, and Wellesley. While all of the Newton offices have shown good deposit growth, the offices outside of the city have played a major part in the bank's move from 23rd largest savings bank in Massachusetts 20 years ago, to 10th largest in the late 1960s, to sixth largest currently.

The bank's mortgage activities cover over a total of 70 cities and towns. As a result, the present name no longer adequately describes its coverage.

The second fundamental, and in some ways, even more important, purpose of the name is to include the word "mutual" in the title. A mutual savings bank has no stockholders, but springs from the community, derives its strength from its community identification, and is responsible only to its customers and the long-term interests of the community. There are no stockholders whose interesszs and needs must be reflected in the bank's actions.

The Newton Savings Bank has consistently tried to live up to the high ideals of mutuality by pioneering in the offering of new services, by paying its depositors the highest dividends possible (in recent years limited by federal regulation), by investing funds within the community to as great an extent as feasible, and by attempting to make the kinds of loans that will advance the community's interests, even when this does not maximize profits.

The use of the term "mutual" is not viewed as an ornament, and the bank hopes that it will not be considered pretentious. Instead, the bank thinks that it reflects what it has done, and hopes the name will inspire it to continue in that direction and even improve its performance.

The third reason is less significant, but nevertheless, is important. There are four other banks with the name Newton in their titles and, increasingly, the bank has noted a degree of confusion on the part of customers and the public in general in distinguishing among them. It is believed that the new name, once it is firmly established in the minds of the people, will enhance identification.

The Newton offices will have the name of the village in which they are located as a part of their titles, for example, "Mutaul Bank for Savings - Newton Highlands," "Mutual Bank for Savings - Chestnut Hill." In the communities outside of newton this will be expressed as follows: "Mutual Bank for Savings in Needham," "Mutual Bank for Savings in Wellesley," "Mutual Bank for Savings in Waltham." In the latter cases the bank intends the change to be more than simply a new label. There will be a genuine and continuing effort in increase participation in community affairs and to make the bank's activities reflect community needs.

Total assets, including the Savings Bank Life Insurance Department, are more than $410,000,000, and depositor surplus exceeds $26,000,000.

Boston State College plans off-campus learning center

Under a $20,000 grant from the Massachusetts State College system, Boston State College Faculty has been designing a new method of instruction. The method is called "Modular Learning" and may permit Massachusetts residents to earn college credits at home.

The projected program from Boston State College's Modular Learning Center is geared to those who want a college education, but because of circumstances are unable to attend classes on campus.

Using "modular learning" an off-campus student learns subject matter in small segments called modules. By means of cassett recordings, film strips, films, video tapes, and experiments, the student is guided to an understandng of each learning segment. Since there are no scheduled classes to attend, the student can study at his or her own pace and scheduled. Mastery quizzes are self-administered as part of the course but there is a mid-semester and final examination which is taken under professional supervision.

Recent research has indicated that "modular learning" can be attractive and successful, and in many cases the only practical way for large numbers of new students to have access to college. Surveys have shown that those who will take advantage of the program are:

Persons who have irregular work schedules, those who are confined to homes or hospitals, those in prisons, and especially even those who have been away from school for some time and would like an opportunity to prove to themselves whether they want a college career.

Prof. James McGregor, who heads the faculty team working in the Modular Learning Center said in a recent interview:

"Both national and state studies have shown that adult education will become one of the main preoccupations of higher education in the 1970's and 1980's.

Large numbers of students that have never thought of a college education as practical for them are going to be seeking a college education not merely for accreditation, but for the self-fulfillment and development that a college experience give to them."

The bulk of this new student popularion will be mature adults who have generated in themselves the need and desire for this type of experience. The Open College concept, using techniques for "mediated materials" such as modular instruction, employs multi-media information systems are the key to this development.

Of essential concern to the overburdened taxpayer has been the expense in making higher education available to this newer student body. But this is one of the strong points of modular instruction. It can make a quality educational experience available in a cost-effective manner and still respect the flexibility that the adult students need to satisfy their personal and occupational schedules. In the past many educators have been disappointed in the results of such experiments as T.V. courses, etc. because of a number of reasons, but the problem there has been that the use of T.V., as an information dispensing technique, is incomplete. Modularized instruction will utilize television, but only as one of a number of informational and motivational systems to generate an effective educational experience.

To insure the student involvement the Open College will use a number of local learning centers which can serve as a resource and a seminar center where students can have access to professionals in the field of study as well as the professors who have designed the courses.

Modularized instruction will help solve the problem of accessibility, and rather than adversely affecting the educational market, the success of the Open College program will generate a more educated citizenry that will have a greater respect and a greater desire for advanced college and graduate learning.

Freshman level courses in mathematics, music, philosophy, psychology and psysical science are anticipated to be ready for enrollment in the fall of 1975. All of these courses would carry college credit as if taken as a regular student at Boston State.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

The average snake in New England at this season is a little longer than this sentence.

The statement may sound odd, since most persons think of giant cobras or boa constrictors when they hear the word "snake."

Actually, most New England snakes are not large. At this season, the young are emerging. If there is anything that draws down the averages for any population, it is the season when birts become prevalent.

Recently we encountered a new edition garter sanke on a woodland path we walk. Although books measure young garter snakes at about seven inches long, this one surely could not have exceeded five inches. It scurried to the safety of a log about a foot away in one second. It gave the impression of really hustling. Yet, if my arithmetic is correct, its burst of speed barely exceeded one-half mile an hour. But it's not poor speed when you're traveling on your ribs, and the ribs are very young.

Garter snakes are among the more common snakes in the East. Not as common as they seem, perhaps, since a very close cousin with almost identical markings, the ribbon snake, usually is mistaken for the garter.

In common with many snakes, garter snakes and ribbon snakes give birth to young much as mammals do. The young emerge in membrane capsules which they slit immediately and crawl away.

Garter snakes give birth to 14 to 40 young, the average brood being about 28. Ribbon snakes are more conservative, having five to 20 young, with a brood average of about 10.

Since snakes still remain somewhere near a pivotal base in evolution, their methods of bearing young vary. There are snakes that lay eggs encased in tough pliable shells that are incubated by decaying vegetation. Some bear young that have been incubated within the mother's body. In these species, the young in effect develop within eggs, since the capsule in which they grow has no connection to the mother. In a few species there are indications that the young actually have placental connections inside the mother and draw nourishment from her as mammals do.

At the fecent FOCUS: Outdoors conference at Mt. Holyoke College, Springfield naturalist Bill Tompkins had 12 live specimens of the 14 snake species that live in Massachusetts. He had failed to find the worm snake, an obscure little reptile that pursues angle worms in their burrows. He did have a black snake, but it was more muscular than he suspected and it escaped by pushing up a couple of bricks that held the cover on its glass case.

The roll call to this point accounts for four Massachusetts snakes: garter, ribbon, worm and black. The other species that made it to FOCUS were the northern water snake, northern brown snake, red-bellied snake, eastern hog-nosed snake, northern ringneck snake, eastern smooth green snake, black rat snake, eastern milk snake, northern copperhead, and timber rattlesnake.

Most of these snakes occur in all New England states, and a few live as far north as Nova Scotia. The exceptions are the copperhead, rarely north of Massachusetts; the timber rattler, confined to southern New England, plus parts of New Hampshire and Maine; the black rat snake, Vermont plus southern New England; the hog-nosed snake, New Hampshire and the southern states; and the worm snake which is rare to non-existent north of Connecticut.

PRECIOUS METAL

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (UPI) — A gold nugget found in Dawson City in 1898 weighed 72 ounces and 8.5 grains. It was nearly six inches long, was two and two thirds inches wide at the heavy end and one and one quarter inches at the small end.

At $16 an ounce it was valued at $1,158 when it was found. On the London market these days the nugget would be worth about $12,500.

Music and children's programming discussed at workshop in Concord

A remark by Joseph Barbera, president of Hanna-Barbera Productions, Inc., that "we may be getting ready for a new approach to music and children's programming" was typical of popular sentiment at a recent workshop omhmusic and children's programming sponsored by Action for Childrens Television at Concord Academy this month.

The three-day conference, attended by 60 professionals in the fields of music, broadcasting, and education spotlighted the artistic, technical, and budgetary reasons for the condition of the art in this medium, and how it could be improved.

An array of well-known composers for children's network and public broadcasting programs were on hand to demonstrate their work and to explain the ingredients necessary for quality musical programming directed to a young audience.

Joseph Raposo, former music director for Children's Television Workshop, suggested that some of these ingredients include "sincere emotion, polished technique, and careful research."

Raposo explained that he had refined the techniques used by television commercials to sell products for the purpose of "selling knowledge" about word recognition and reading in the music he composed for "Sesame Street" and "Electric Company."

The use of music to communicate important information was also illustrated by Claire O'Brien and Norman Paris of Alphaventure, who played the theme song from "The Big Blue Marble," an international program that has been syndicated in about 80 U.S. markets for the fall.

During another discussion, Bob Dorough, composer of ABC's "Multiplication Rock" showed film clips of several of his multiplication songs and previewed a new melody entitled "Unpack Your Adjectives," which will be included as part of the "Grammar Rock" series on ABC this fall. Dorough disclosed that the original idea for "Multiplication Rock" came from David McCall of McCaffrey and McCall.

On the topic of why there was so little participation by today's young people both in musical performance and active musical appreciation, Newton Wayland, composer for WGBH in Boston, pointed out that "the practice of music demands immense discipline. This concept is almost totally alien to today's kids." He suggested that music educators capitalize on the fact that the heroes of today's younger generation are rock musicians to stimulate more interest in other musical forms.

Other highlights of the weekend included a demonstration of the reportedly poor technical sound quality transmitted by television sets manufactured according to current standards.

Mal Albaum, director of engineering at WNET—13 showed a video-tape of a contemporary ballet, using stereo components to amplify and refine the musical background. He then disconnected the stereo system and allowed the audience to listen to the sound quality produced by the television monitor.

In another session, Ron Hays of WGBH—TV explained his experiments with a video synthesizer, and showed clips illustrating how this technical devise can be combined with various accompanying melodies to achieve brief interludes between both adult and children's programming.

Rothmans and Golubs to be honored at Sept. 22 dinner

Members of Temple Shalom of Newton and friends will honor Rabbi and Mrs. Murray I. Rothman and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Golub at a State of Israel Tribute Dinner on Sunday evening, Sept. 22 on behalf of the Israel Bond program.

The spiritual leader and president of the Newton congregation and their wives will be honored for dedicated and distinguished service to their congregation, their community and the State of Israel.

Keynote speaker at the Tribute Dinner, which is being held in cooperation with the Greater Boston Israel Bond Committee, will be the journalist David Schoenbrun.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Schwartz, who are serving as co-chairmen of the testimonial dinner, lauded the guests of honor for their on-going leadership in the Jewish community and commended the members of Temple Shalom for their continued support of Israel through the Bond program.

"Our participation in the Israel Bond effort is an investment in the future of Israel and the Jewish people," the co-chairmen remarked. "The loan dollars provided through the purchase of Israel Bonds are vital to Israel's continued domestic development. We are confident that the members of our congregation will express their esteem for Rabbi and Mrs. Rothman and Eli and Ruth Golub by attending the well-merited tributd providing additional economic support for Israel in their honor."

Rabbi Rothman, who celebrates his 20th anniversary as spiritual leader of Temple Shalom this year, was recently awarded an honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati from which he was ordained.

Rabbi Rothman is current director of the Greater Boston chapter of American friends of Hebrew University; member of the Archiocesan Committee on Catholics and Jews; member of advisory board of the Community Relations Commission of the City of Newton; an incorporator of the Newton Community Development Foundation; member, national commision on interfaith activities of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations; member, mixed marriage committe, Rabbinic Alumni Association of the Hebrew Union College - Jewish Institute of Religion; the Combined Jewish Philanthropies - Jewish Community Council joint committee on Mid-East policy; chairman, interfaith committee, Jewish Community Council; designated CCAR liaison with the Israeli Consulate in Boston.

Rothman was also elected recently as vice-president of the Jewish Community Council and elected representative of the CCAR to the Board of Trustees of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. In addition, he is a lecturer on Judaism at Andover Newton Theological School.

In addition to her activities on behalf of her congregation and community, Charlotte Rothman is an occupational therapist, active with both the American Occupational Therapy Association and the Massachusetts Association for Occupational Therapy. She received a BS degree in occupational therapy from Ohio State University in Columbus.

Rabbi and Mrs. Rothman have made several trips to Israel, leading a youth pilgrimage in 1971 and a Temple Shalom pilgrimage earlier this year. In 1970 and again this year, they traveled to Israel where the rabbi was a delegate to the annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. In addition, Rabbi Rothman was the leader of an interfaith clergy mission to Israel in 1973.

Eli Golub has long been active at Temple Shalom, serving in a variety of leadership roles. A past vice-president of the Brotherhood and of the Temple, he is currently serving his second term as president of the congregation.

His communal endeavors include life membership in the Boston Aid to the Blind, Temple Masonic Lodge in Boston, and New England Villages. He is also a member of B'nai B'rith Apparel Lodge; Beth Israel Hospital Men's Auxiliary; Business Men's Council of CJP' Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged; Jewish Chautauqua Society; and the Jewish Big Brother Association.
